BLAME NEBRASKAN FOR 7 DEATHS

YOUNG WOMAN ACCUSED IN POISON CASES

Husband and Mother-In-Law and Five Children Said To Have Been Victims Of Mrs. Emmanuel Sorenson, Adjudged Insane.

ADMITS SPOUSE POISON VICTIM.

ST. PAUL, Neb., April 18.—During questioning Saturday evening by County Attorney Dobrey. Mrs. Sorenson is said to have admitted that her first husband died of poisoning. She did not reveal what kind of poison caused his death. No admission that she was responsible for any of the deaths being investigated was made by Mrs. Sorenson. County Attorney Dobrey planned to further quiz her before sending her to the state hospital at Ingleside.

(Special to The Star.)

ST. PAUL, Neb., April 18.—Mrs. Della Sorenson, 28, is in the county jail here, and though she is held responsible for the death of no less than seven people, and the attempted killing of two others by poison, she will not be prosecuted. Instead, she will be sent to the state hospital for insane, the county insanity commission having Saturday found her to be a fit subject for incarceration there and not accountable for her actions.

Two adults and five children were the victims of the murderous mania of Mrs. Sorenson, whose husband is a day laborer at Dannebrog in this county, where the family has resided. He is her second spouse, the first, Joe Weldan, being one of those to succumb to poison which the authorities believe was administered by her. Wildan's mother also died in convulsions, and is believed to have been poisoned.

The poisonings date back to 1918, the order of deaths being as follows:

Viola Cooper.
Joe Weldan, first husband.
A Weldan baby, name and age not given.
Mrs. Weldan, mother of Joe.
Clifford Cooper.
A Sorenson baby.
Ruth Brockby.

Circumstances Not Reported.

County Attorney Dobrey stated this evening that no official action had heretofore been taken in the matter because the circumstances of the deaths had not been brought to the attention of the authorities. Relatives of the first husband believed his death a natural one, though they considered it very sudden. It took place in 1920, and was the second in the list, that of Viola Cooper being first.

The third to die was a baby of the Weldan's and this death was soon followed by that of the mother-in-law. Clifford Cooper died in August, 1922 and the Sorenson baby died in February, 1923. Ruth Brockby died this same month while another Sorenson child and Wetzel Cooper were ill during October, 1920, but recovered.

Mrs. Sorenson's maiden name was Stdle and her family resides near Farwell. Her present husband's name is Emmanuel Sorenson. The Cooper family resided at Scotia, but was visiting at the home of the Weldan's when the death took place. Mrs. Cooper is a sister of Joe Weldan. The Brockby child was also a guest at the home of the alleged poisoner at the time of her death.

Unofficially Mrs. Sorenson has been under observation for some time, but the official investigation began only recently. Dr. W. S. Fast, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Ingleside, was among the witnesses called and he stated that the woman is a paranoiac and should be confined in a hospital.

All of the victims are said to have died in convulsions. About three weeks ago Mrs. Sorenson visited the Irwin Knott family in Dannebrog, and two of the children became suddenly ill with convulsions. They said, according to County Attorney Dobrey, that they had eaten cookies given them by Mrs. Sorenson. The investigation started when and showed that they had partaken

NO POISON IS FOUND IN BODY OF DR. OLSON

CORONER WOLFF NOT ENTIRELY SATISFIED

Asserts If Prussic Acid Had Been Administered No Trace Would Remain Due To Length Of Time Since Death.

(United Press)

CHICAGO, April 18.—All known tests have failed to disclose traces of poison in the organs of Dr. Oscar Olson, Coroner Oscar Wolff announced tonight. Coroner Wolff, however, is not entirely satisfied that Dr. Olson died from natural causes.

"If prussic acid caused death we would not find traces of the poison now, due to the length of time since death," he said. Dr. Olson died three years ago.

Judge Olson of the Municipal court, brother of the doctor, had the body exhumed to determine whether murder had been committed. It was Justice Olson who started the investigation that led to the indictment of William D. Shepherd on a charge of murdering Billy McClintock, "millionaire orphan."

To Resume Inquest.

The coroner's report on Dr. Olson clears the way for resumption of the inquest into Billy's death.

The inquest will be resumed Tuesday and probably will be extended to the case of the youth's mother, Mrs. Emma McClintock, died from bichloride of mercury poisoning the coroner reported several days ago. Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, said he thought the woman was murdered.

Chief Justice Olson, long a friend of the McClintock family, charges that Shepherd killed Billy, his ward, since the death of Mrs. McClintock, sixteen years ago, to secure the McClintock estate. According to the indictment Shepherd was accused of injecting typhoid germs into Billy McClintock's

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 18.—Sen. Bernard Gettleman's much advertised homemade wine party was staged here tonight as scheduled, but due to a heavy rain storm it was much wetter on the outside than it was in Senator Gettleman's cellar.

Rev. Kenneth McInnis, local dry leader, who had been sent a special invitation and who was to have delivered the address of response to Senator Gettleman's toast, was not present.

Secretary Dalbey Refuses To Take His Salary and Money To Be Used For Other Purposes

Nebraska presents to the world a new and hitherto unknown species of political officeholder—one that disdains to draw his salary and leaves the money in the public chest to be used for other purposes. The only known specimen of this type is Dwight S. Dalbey, finance secretary in Governor McMullen's code cabinet.

The salary installment of $416.16 due Mr. Dalbey for the month of March remains untouched, and the state treasury is richer by that amount because of his refusal to sign a voucher on which a warrant would at once be issued for that amount. The reason why he declines to accept the pay is said to be that he had to absent himself from the office for a considerable part of the time in March and is unwilling to be remunerated for time he did not actually employ in the service of the state.

May Continue Practice.

There is some question, also, whether Secretary Dalbey expects to present claim for his salary in April. He has been out of the office more or less this month, as was in March, in order to be with his wife, who was suffering from an indisposition. She has now recuperated, and Mr. Dalbey has gone with her on a trip to Washington, where she will attend the national convention of the D. A. R. The time of their return is uncertain.

Mr. Dalbey, whose home is at Beatrice, Gov. McMullen's home town was not an applicant for any appointment at the latter's hands. Dalbey is a wealthy man and had no need nor desire for political recognition. But the governor, who has known him personally a long time, wanted someone he could thoroughly trust, and who possessed good business judgment as well as experience, to handle the finance department. So, as the story goes, Dalbey consented, as a matter of friendship to take the place.

He came to Lincoln and buckled down to his job, sticking pretty close to it in January and February. Then he found that the confinement and nervous tension of the office were unfavorably affecting his health. There are reports at the capitol that he may resign one of these days and go back to Beatrice. Dalbey's friends say that he would much rather devote himself to looking after his thousands of acres of farm lands in Gage county, than to supervising governmental finances.

PROSECUTION'S STAR WITNESS TAKES STAND

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 18.—Using its heaviest ammunition, the prosecution sprang its star witness in the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, in Federal court here late today in an effort to convict Wheeler on charges of illegally accepting a fee to represent a client before the interior department.

The witness was Henry Clyde Glosser, formerly secretary to Gordon Campbell, oil prospector, whom Wheeler is accused of representing.

CORDON CAMPBELL.

Montana oil man, who, Henry C. Glosser, his former employe, testified Saturday promised the assistance of Senator Burton K. Wheeler in "straightening out government oil permits."

Glosser gave the first direct testimony that Wheeler promised Campbell he would "help straighten out government oil permits."

"Was there any discussion of permits at the meeting?" asked John L. Slattery, United States attorney.

FRENCH OUTLOOK ENCOURAGES U. S.

Debt Situation Believed Improved By Selection Of Caillaux.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The deep pessimism that has prevailed over Washington concerning chances of early funding of the French war debt ever since the cabinet blow-up in Paris lessened somewhat today and officials again were talking "hopefully" of getting some action before congress comes back next fall.

Administration officials, although they cannot comment publicly, regard the appointment of Joseph Caillaux as minister of finance, and of Aristide Briand as minister of foreign affairs, with considerable satisfaction. The Caillaux-Briand combination, they hopefully believe is one that they can do business with.

Caillaux is the father of the French income tax and throughout his whole spectacular career in politics has been a consistent advocate of a system of taxation in France that will compel French taxpayers to support their government in the same manner that American and British taxpayers support theirs.

Diplomatic advices received here indicate a radical shakeup in France's finance policy will be the outcome of Caillaux' reforms.

Radical Activities In Bulgaria Claimed By Police To Have Been Directed From Moscow—Charge Denied.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 18. — Vigorously repressing all signs of communist revolt throughout Bulgaria, the Sofia government nevertheless will fall as a result of the week's outrages and will be replaced by a ministry favoring to pacification, it was reported tonight.

The Sofia police today, while hunting communists from house to house, claimed to have found a document definitely showing that the abortive revolt was directed from Moscow. The soviet government, through its embassy at Rome, indignantly denied complicity.

NO POISON IS FOUND IN BODY OF DR. OLSON

CORONER WOLFF NOT ENTIRELY SATISFIED

Asserts If Prussic Acid Had Been Administered No Trace Would Remain Due To Length Of Time Since Death.

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, April 18.—All known tests have failed to disclose traces of poison in the organs of Dr. Oscar Olson, Coroner Oscar Wolff announced tonight. Coroner Wolff, however, is not entirely satisfied that Dr. Olson died from natural causes.

"If prussic acid caused death, we would not find traces of the poison now, due to the length of time since death," he said. Dr. Olson died three years ago.

Judge Olson of the Municipal court, brother of the doctor, had the body exhumed to determine whether murder had been committed. It was Justice Olson who started the investigation that led to the indictment of William D. Shepherd on a charge of murdering Billy McClintock, "millionaire orphan."

To Resume Inquest.

The coroner's report on Dr. Olson clears the way for resumption of the inquest into Billy's death.

The inquest will be resumed Tuesday and probably will be extended to the case of the youth's mother. Mrs. Emma McClintock died from bichloride of mercury poisoning, the coroner reported several days ago. Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, said he thought the woman was murdered.

Chief Justice Olson, long a friend of the McClintock family, charges that Shepherd killed Billy, his ward, since the death of Mrs. McClintock, sixteen years ago, to secure the McClintock estate. According to the indictmene, Shepherd was accused of injecting typhoid germs into Billy McClintocvk.

Arkansas Plant Of Standard Oil Co., Is In Flames

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 18.—Flames tonight were sweeping several structures in the Standard Oil Co., of Louisiana's million dollar pumping and storage plant at Mandeville, six miles east of here.

The fire started this afternoon and late tonight huge billows of flame, swept by a strong wind, were engulfing additional structures.

The plant included a crude oil pumping station raid to be the largest in the world. The flames were visible for miles.

The loss may reach $1,000,000.

Wetter Outside Than At Solon's "Wine Party"

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 18.—Sen. Bernard Gettleman's much advertised homemade wine party was staged here tonight as scheduled, but due to a heavy rain storm it was much wetter on the outside than it was in Senator Gettleman's cellar.

Sacramental wine, instead of wine manufactured by the Wisconsin solon himself, was the drink of the evening.

Rev. Kenneth McInnis, local dry leader, who had been sent a special invitation and who was to have delivered the address of response to Senator Gettleman's toast, was not present.

Dean L. A. Sherman of the graduate school, the senior dean of the faculty, told of the establishment of the institution and its development under succeeding administrations. He paid tribute to the wisdom and judgment of Chancellor Avery in settling the problems that have arisen during his many years of service.

"The university itself is to be congratulated quite as much as the chancellor," Dean E. A. Burnett of

Little Hope For Saving a Kinsman Of U. S. Chief

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 18.—Using its heaviest ammunition, the prosecution sprang its star witness in the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, in Federal court here late today in an effort to convict Wheeler on charges of illegally accepting a fee to represent a client before the interior department.

The witness was Henry Clyde Glosser, formerly secretary to Gordon Campbell, oil prospector, whom Wheeler is accused of representing.

Glosser gave the first direct testimony that Wheeler promised Campbell he would "help straighten out government oil permits."

Wheeler's statement, Glosser said, was made at a conference in Great Falls in January, 1923, attended by himself, Campbell, Wheeler and W. W. Rhea, former employe of Campbell. Rhea has since died. The conference was after Wheeler had been retained by Campbell.

"Was there any discussion of permits at the meeting?" asked John L. Slattery, United States attorney.

FRENCH OUTLOOK ENCOURAGES U. S.

Debt Situation Believed Improved By Selection Of Caillaux.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The deep pessimism that has prevailed over Washington concerning chances of early funding of the French war debt ever since the cabinet blow-up in Paris lessened somewhat today and officials again were talking "hopefully" of getting some action before congress comes back next fall.

Administration officials, although they cannot comment publicly, regard the appointment of Joseph Caillaux as minister of finance, and of Aristide Briand as minister of foreign affairs, with considerable satisfaction. The Caillaux-Briand combination, they hopefully believe is one that they can do business with.

Caillaux is the father of the French income tax and throughout his whole spectacular career in politics has been a consistent advocate of a system of taxation in France that will compel French taxpayers to support their government in the samt manner that American and British taxpayers support theirs.

Diplomatic advices received here indicate a radical shakeup in France's finance policy will be the outcome of Caillaux' reforms.

The result caused the publishers to resume their former policy.

Secretary Dalbey Refuses To Take His Salary and Money To Be Used For Other Purposes

Nebraska presents to the world a new and hitherto unknown species of political officeholder—one that disdains to draw his salary and leaves the money in the public chest to be used for other purposes. The only known specimen of this type is Dwight S. Dalbey, finance secretary in Governor McMullen's code cabinet.

The salary installment of $416.16 due Mr. Dalbey for the month of March remains untouched, and the state treasury is richer by that amount because of his refusal to sign a voucher on which a warrant would at once be issued for that amount. The reason why he declines to accept the pay is said to be that he had to absent himself from the office for a considerable part of the time in March and is unwilling to be remunerated for time he did not actually employ in the service of the state.

May Continue Practice.

There is some question, also, whether Secretary Dalbey expects to present claim for his salary in April. He has been out of the office more or less this month, as was in March, in order to be with his wife, who was suffering from an indisposition. She has now recuperated, and Mr. Dalbey has gone with her on a trip to Washington, where she will attend the national convention of the D. A. R. The time of their return is uncertain.

Mr. Dalbey, whose home is at Beatrice, Gov. McMullen's home town was not an applicant for any appointment at the latter's hands. Dalbey is a wealthy man and had no need nor desire for political recognition. But the governor, who has known him personally a long time, wanted someone he could thoroughly trust, and who possessed good business judgment as well as experience, to handle the finance department. So, as the story goes, Dalbey consented, as a matter of friendship to take the place.

He came to Lincoln and buckled down to his job, sticking pretty close to it in January and February. Then he found that the confinement and nervous tension of the office were unfavorably affecting his health. There are reports at the capitol that he may resign one of these days and go back to Beatrice. Dalbey's friends say that he would much rather devote himself to looking after his thousands of acres of farm lands in Gage county, than to supervising governmental finances.

MURDER CHARGE IS FILED AGAINST EX-KLAN OFFICER

D. C. Stephenson Again Indicted Following Death Of Miss Oberholtzer.

Earl Gentry And Earl Klenck, His Aides, Face Similar Charges.

TRIO MISSING.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 18.—All hope of David C. Stephenson, ex-grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, and his two aides, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, surrendering or being apprehended on murder indictments returned against them in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer was abandoned tonight at the end of a four hour search for the trio.

Sherifl Omer Hawkins, who was out of the city on another case when the indictments were handed down, did not start the search until four hours after the papers had extras on the street. He returned to his office tonight, without finding any trace of the defendants. He expressed the belief that the former klan leader and his lieutenants were secreted in some nearby town and would give themselves up Monday.

Indictments Returned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 18—Indictments charging David C Stephenson, banished grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, with first degree murder in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer, were returned today by the Marion county grand jury. Four counts were contained in the indictments.

Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, aides of Stephenson, also were charged with first degree murder in the indjctments.

Briefly, the indictments charge:

1.—On March 16, the defendants (Stephenson, Klonck and Gentry) placed Madge Oberholtzer in a sleeping car bound for Hammond, Ind., and assaulted her. In Hammond they forced her to occupy a room in a hotel with Stephenson. Because of the pain and shame she suffered, Miss Oberholtzed swallowed poison. The defendants refused to obtain medical aid for her. On March 17, they returned her to Indianapolis in a motor car and held her forcibly until noon on March 18.

2.—The defendants caused to be administered to Miss Oberholtzer bichloride of mercury tablets which she took through fear, duress and compulsion.

3.—On March 16, the defendants made an assault upon the body and person of Madge Oberholtzer from which she died.

4.—Although knowing that she had taken poison, the defendants refused to give the girl medical attention.

Immediately after the grand jury sent down the indictment, the arrest of Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry was ordered. Because of the seriousness of the charges, they cannot be admitted to bail.

Notes University's Success.

Dean W. A. Seavey of the law college responded to a toast in which he called attention to the remarkable success which the University of Nebraska has attained in the primary objects for which it was established. He said that splendid results have been achieved at a minimum of expense.

Chancellor Avery thanked his colleagues for their kindnesses, asserting that the greatest happiness to which an individual can aspire is that which comes from the friendship and appreciation of those with whom he works

"The university can progress only as the commonwealth progresses," the chancellor stated, in discussing the present outlook He declared that the attitude of the last legislature was such as to make university leaders very optimistic, and expressed the opinion that the next legislature will recognize the need of an extended building program.

He expressed sympathy with the general frugality of the taxpayers and declared that Nebraska citizens take considerable pride in their university.

"The spiritual development of the institution must go hand in hand with its material growth," he continued. "I look now for the growth and extension of the graduate department. The time is ripe for advancement along that line"

Mrs Avery was presented with a bouquet and she spoke briefly in appreciation of the courtesies extended her by the university faculty

GOVERNMENT OF BULGARIA SOON TO FALL

Bulgaria, the United Press is able to give this fugitive's version of the cathedral outrage, in which two bombs brought down the roof, killing one hundred and fifty or more people and wounding two hundred The Macedonian tells the purpose behind the campaign of terror in Bulgaria, and confesses that federalists perpetrated the outrage as a demonstration against Zankoff.

Many were killed today in fighting between government agents and rebels.

A British mission is due in Sofia tonight to investigate matters. The Bulgar press blames the allies for the government's difficulties, claiming the army was cut so low by the peace treaty that the number of troops is insufficient to cope with the terrorists

Reports Conflicting.

VIENNA, April 18. — Official reports from Sofia reiterated hour by hour throughout the night that all Bulgaria was quiet, while unofficial reports indicated there had been bloody riots and that the revolution was successful in several provinces.

The peasant party leaders, Markoff and Bankaloff, are among those who have been arrested in connection with Thursday's bomb outrage, according to reports from Sofia.

Quiet in Portugal.

LISBON, April 18. — An incipient revolution was quelled by troops loyal to the Portuguese government here today The rebels included in their number several troops of cavalry, infantry and artillery under Commandant Filomeno Camara

Fighting took place in the streets of Lisbon. Grenades were thrown and a passerby was killed

Follows Harvey on Stand.

Glosser was placed on the stand after another of the government's important witnesses, Edward M Harvey of Eugene, Ore, repudiated portions of an affidavit given to the Borah committee which investigated the indictment and declared Wheeler was employed by Campbell only to act in litigation in Montana State courts. Harvey is a trustee in one of Campbell's companies and had been counted upon heavily by the prosecution to sustain its charges.

Harvey described a conference in which Wheeler and Campbell attended and flatly denied that the question of government permits was brought up.

How Fund Is Used

The purpose of the campaign is to add $25,000 more to the sustaining fund of the chamber of commerce, which fund is now less than $20,000 and should be increased to $45,000

It should be understood that the sustaining fund is not used for the general expenses of the chamber as such. The ordinary expenses of running the chamber of commerce are covered by the regular membership dues The sustaining fund is necessary to take care of the many activities which devolve upon the chamber as being the proper body to perform the work. Among these activities may be mentioned the advertising of Lincoln as a jobbing, manufacturing and retail trade distributing point; as a financial and insurance center, and as a most important educational community The promoting of further permanent highway construction, so that Lincoln may become the hub of one of the greatest roadway systems in the country Funds must be provided for the campaigning for and the entertainment of numerous conventions. The expense of printing and distributing pamphlets containing general information about this city and emphasizing the importance of Lincoln's hospitals, sanitariums and the professions allied therewith. Funds for investigating and securing new industries must be provided. The traffic bureau, which is active in maintaining our freight differentials, must be provided for, and there are many other expenses involved in general business promotional purposes which serve to promote the growth and welfare of Lincoln

D. C. Stephenson Again Indicted Following Death Of Miss Oberholtzer.

Earl Gentry And Earl Klenck, His Aides, Face Similar Charges.

TRIO MISSING.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 18.—All hope of David C. Stephenson, ex-grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, and his two aides, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, surrendering or being apprehended on murder indictments returned against them in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer was abandoned tonight at the end of a four hour search for the trio.

Sheriff Omer Hawkins, who was out of the city on another case when the indictments were handed down, did not start the search until four hours after the papers had extras on the street. He returned to his office tonight, without finding any trace of the defendants. He expressed the belief that the former klan leader and his lieutenants were secreted in some nearby town and would give themselves up Monday.

Indictments Returned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 18.—Indictments charging David C Stephenson, banished grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, with first degree murder in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer, were returned today by the Marion county grand jury. Four counts were contained in the indictments.

Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, aides of Stephenson, also were charged with first degree murder in the indictments.

Briefly, the indictments charge:

1.—On March 16, the defendants (Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry) placed Madge Oberholtzer in a sleeping car bound for Hammond, Ind., and assaulted her. In Hammond they forced her to occupy a room in a hotel with Stephenson. Because of the pain and shame she suffered, Miss Oberholtzed swallowed poison. The defendants refused to obtain medical aid for her. On March 17, they returned her to Indianapolis in a motor car and held her forcibly until noon on March 18.

2.—The defendants caused to be administered to Miss Oberholtzer bichloride of mercury tablets which she took through fear, duress and compulsion.

3.—On March 16, the defendants made an assault upon the body and person of Madge Oberholtzer from which she died.

4.—Although knowing that she had taken poison, the defendants refused to give the girl medical attention.

Immediately after the grand jury sent down the indictment, the arrest of Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry was ordered. Because of the seriousness of the charges, they cannot be admitted to bail.

HONOR AVERY AT FACULTY BANQUET

the college of agriculture declared. Chancellor Avery's contact with the peope who support the university and his insight into the public mind have contributed much to the growth of the institution, he asserted.

Notes University's Success.

Dean W. A. Seavey of the law college responded to a toast in which he called attention to the remarkable success which the University of Nebraska has attained in the primary objects for which it was established. He said that splendid results have been achieved at a minimum of expense.

Chancellor Avery thanked his colleagues for their kindnesses, asserting that the greatest happiness to which an individual can aspire is that which comes from the friendship and appreciation of those with whom he works.

"The university can progress only as the commonwealth progresses," the chancellor stated, in discussing the present outlook. He declared that the attitude of the last legislature was such as to make university leaders very optimistic, and expressed the opinion that the next legislature will recognize the need of an extended building program.

He expressed sympathy with the general frugality of the taxpayers and declared that Nebraska citizens take considerable pride in their university.

"The spiritual development of the institution must go hand in hand with its material growth," he continued. "I look now for the growth and extension of the graduate department. The time is ripe for advancement along that line."

Mrs. Avery was presented with a bouquet and she spoke briefly in appreciation of the courtesies extended her by the university faculty.

Begin Campaign Toward Raising Funds For Erection of Fairview Methodist Hospital

Initial steps were taken Saturday noon at the chamber of commerce for making a canvass for funds with which to assure the completion of the new Methodist hospital at Fairview, the former home of W. J. Bryan, donated to the Methodist church as a hospital site. Five additional acres were purchased to complete the holdings.

The picture above shows the breaking of ground for the first unit of the hospital, construction work on which has progressed to the laying of the abuttments. The plow which turned the furrow was pulled by men prominent in Lincoln churches. The bishop of the Nebraska was at the handles.

Believe Strychnine Used.

Strychnine is believed to have been used in most of the cases and to have been administered in candy.

In 1922 the Weldan home was destroyed by fire of unknown origin.

Mrs. Sorenson was supposed to be unusually fond of children and was apparently anxious to have them about her. She refused to make any statement when questioned Saturday afternoon by County Attorney Dobrey, other than that another of her children had recently died of convulsions. The county attorney proposed to question her more at length before having her taken to the state hospital.

Another speaker was a great-great granddaughter of Revere, Pauline Revere. A special feature of the exercise was the carrying of a flag raised in 1775 down the aisles of the church and up into the steeple by Paul Revere, great-great grandson o fthe famous rider.

The exercises were broadcast over the western hemisphere to radio listeners by station WBZ.

To Decorated Grave.

Sunday the vice president will participate in various ceremonies in honor of his revolutionary ancestor. The grave of William Dawes, jr., in King's Chapel burying ground will be decorated and the site on the Dawes home on North street will be marked bya tablet. There will be literary exercises at Lexington in the evening.

Monday morning, the vice president will follow a rider impersonating his ancestor to Lexington where the chief events of the celebration will be held. Thousands of visitors are expected, including Gen. John J. Pershing.

At a chamber of commerce luncheon today the vice president handled without gloves the rules of the United States senate which allow filibustering. Any single senator, he said, has more power than the veto power of the president.

"I'll admit I'm not an orator," said General Dawes, "but as a smoker I'll guarantee I can outsmoke the best of them."

Bulgaria, the United Press is able to give this fugitive's version of the cathedral outrage, in which two bombs brought down the roof, killing one hundred and fifty or more people and wounding two hundred. The Macedonian tells the purpose behind the campaign of terror in Bulgaria, and confesses that federalists perpetrated the outrage as a demonstration against Zankoff.

Many were killed today in fighting between government agents and rebels.

A British mission is due in Sofia tonight to investigate matters. The Bulgar press blames the allies for the government's difficulties, claiming the army was cut so low by the peace treaty that the number of troops is insufficient to cope with the terrorists.

Reports Conflicting.

VIENNA, April 18. — Official reports from Sofia reiterated hour by hour throughout the night that all Bulgaria was quiet, while unofficial reports indicated there had been bloody riots and that the revolution was successful in several provinces.

The peasant party leaders, Markoff and Bankaloff, are among those who have been arrested in connection with Thursday's bomb outrage, according to reports from Sofia.

Quiet in Portugal.

LISBON, April 18. — An incipient revolution was quelled by troops loyal to the Portuguese government here today. The rebels included in their number several troops of cavalry, infantry and artillery under Commandant Filomeno Camara.

Fighting took place in the streets of Lisbon. Grenades were thrown and a passerby was killed.

Government troops quickly succeeded in rounding up the rebels and re-establishing order.

pose of. Rhea appeared to be worried about titles.

"Campbell," Glosser said, "told Rhea Wheeler could get the permits through down in Washington."

"Did Wheeler make any reply?" asked Slattery.

"Not at that time," replied Glosser, "but as he was going out of the room he said: 'Send me a memorandum on the status of the MacGowan permit and I'll get it straightened out.'"

Follows Harvey on Stand.

Glosser was placed on the stand after another of the government's important witnesses, Edward M. Harvey of Eugene, Ore., repudiated portions of an affidavit given to the Borah committee which investigated the indictment and declared Wheeler was employed by Campbell only to act in litigation in Montana State courts. Harvey is a trustee in one of Campbell's companies and had been counted upon heavily by the prosecution to sustain its charges.

Harvey described a conference in which Wheeler and Campbell attended and flatly denied that the question of government permits was brought up.

Makes Flat Denial.

"Wheeler was employed only to defend the receivership suit and he never discussed government permits at all," said Harvey.

Reviewing Harvey's testimony, Slattery said, "I have been taken by surprise by the testimony given by the witness."

Fred Zriny, former employe of Campbell, testified to overhearing a conversation between Campbell and Wheeler regarding oil permits.

"Don't worry, I'll fix them up," Zriny quoted Wheeler as saying to Campbell. The conversation, Zriny said, was in Campbell's office here just before Wheeler left for Washington after his election as senator.

How Fund Is Used

The purpose of the campaign is to add $25,000 more to the sustaining fund of the chamber of commerce, which fund is now less than $20,000 and should be increased to $45,000.

It should be understood that the sustaining fund is not used for the general expenses of the chamber as such. The ordinary expenses of running the chamber of commerce are covered by the regular membership dues. The sustaining fund is necessary to take care of the many activities which devolve upon the chamber as being the proper body to perform the work. Among these activities may be mentioned the advertising of Lincoln as a jobbing, manufacturing and retail trade distributing point; as a financial and insurance center, and as a most important educational community. The promoting of further permanent highway construction, so that Lincoln may become the hub of one of the greatest roadway systems in the country. Funds must be provided for the campaigning for and the entertainment of numerous conventions. The expense of printing and distributing pamphlets containing general information about this city, and emphasizing the importance of Lincoln's hospitals, sanitariums and the professions allied therewith. Funds for investigating and securing new industries must be provided. The traffic bureau, which is active in maintaining our freight differentials, must be provided for, and there are many other expenses involved in general business promotional purposes which serve to promote the growth and welfare of Lincoln.

Passengers Escape Injury As Ferries At Gotham Collide

NEW YORK, April 18.—The lives of 1,000 passengers on the municipal ferry boat Queens were endangered today when the vessel crashed into the Bronx, her sister ship, which was tied off the Bateery, owing to the dence fog which settled over New York and vicinity. Captain McCafferty of the Queens, did not see the Bronx and was attempting to pilot his vessel into the slip.

Although the Queens was so badly smashed that she was put out of commission, no passengers were injured. They rushed astern to safety when the Bronx loomed up out of the fog.

An investigation to fix the blame for the accident was ordered by William M. Mills, commissioner of the department of plants and structures.

"Everytime you ride on a street car or train, send a telegram, use a telephone, take out insurance, purchase oil or gas, pay the electric light bill or pay rent, you are paying taxes though somebody else carries those taxes to the treasury for you.

SOARING STOCK PRICES IN SIGHT ASSERT EXPERTS

Observers Feel Stocks Of Sound Companies Face Bright Outlook.

Speculative Sentiment In Wheat During Week Swings Both Ways.

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 18—Stocks of the leading automobile manufacturers almost monopolized speculative interest in the stock market this week.

A rosy outlook has been painted for the motor car manufacturers, many of which are expecting to annex new profits in the motorbus trade. Experts in the stock market declared emphatically after the close of the session today that the market was entering a new phase in which the trend of prices would be upward for stocks of sound and substantial companies, and declines in stocks of these which have not such a bright outlook.

Demand for many commodities is below expectations but this may be due to the fact that hopes were geared up too high last November.

RAILROADS AND MOTORS

The rise of Maxwell "B" stock to 89 7-8, up 16 points for the week, helped to center speculative interest on the motor shares. There was an increasing demand for the railroad stocks, which rose to higher prices near the end of the week, chiefly on revival of rumors about the prospect of a merger of important railroads in the southwestern section of the country.

An excellent recovery in prices of the so-called industrial leaders was due partly to short covering and partly to repurchasing of stocks which have been "thrown overboard" in the last drastic downward plunge of prices. American Can, at 175, showed a recovery of 18 points from the low of the first part of April, while Baldwin, General Electric and other active industrials were 8 to 10 points up.

BOND MARKET

New bond issues this week aggregated $140,000,000, the largest total of any single period since the second week in February. Further ease in the money market not only aided the absorption of these bonds, but also accounted for good advances in prices of prime bonds.

French government bonds today staged a rally from the low prices prevailing in the three listed issues, the 7's, 7 1-2s and the 8s. The latter sold up from 99 1-4 to 101 1-2, while the new 7's scored an advance of nearly 2 points from the low of the week.

CURB MARKET

Irregularity prevailed in the curb market this week. The oil stocks displayed considerable weakness in the first part of the week, simultaneously with the decline in Gulf Coast Gasoline and Crude.

Prices firmed up in the latter part of the week; oils recovered; utility stocks sold higher and both foreign and domestic curb bonds were in demand at the best prices of the week.

WHEAT AND COTTON.

Erratic movements in wheat at Chicago, Kansas City and Winnipeg demonstrated that there is no real stability about prices for the principal foodstuffs and that speculative sentiment swiftly swings from one side of the market to the other. Cotton enjoyed a good weekend rally, due particularly to the absence of rain in the cotton belt.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Sharp upward quotations for the principal European exchanges occurred in the last part of the week. The Norway kronen reached a new high at 16.36. French francs reacted after the early advance and sterling ended the week a little higher than last week.

Call money remained at 3 1-2 per cent and time funds were inclined to slightly lower rates.

Bank clearings for the week were $7,602,335,000, a loss of 13.1 per cent from last week. Bradstreet's food index number 3.62 was unchanged from last week.

KEARNEY NORMAL

WILL REPRODUCE LINCOLN'S HOME

Replica Of House At Springfield to Be Built In This City.

The Abraham Lincoln home in Springfield, Ill., is to be reproduced in Lincoln this summer. It is an attractive colonial house occupied by the Lincoln family for several years before his election to the presidency. The replica will be built at Thirty-eighth and Orchard streets.

The architect's drawings and specifications of the home were brought to Lincoln Friday by H. R. Smith, who returned from Springfield. These drawings are so complete, he says, that it will be possible to rebuild the house with exactitude.

Mrs. Lincoln was responsible for the home as it finally stood. She came from a rather aristocratic family and demanded a full two-story house instead of the story and a half affair which stood originally. While Mr. Lincoln was out of the city for a number of weeks, the changes were made by his order.

The story told to Mr Smith by one of Mrs. Lincoln's relatives now in charge of the home, which was deeded to Illinois by Robert Lincoln, is that when Lincoln returned from his trip, he asked a boy where was the house of Abe Lincoln. Mrs Lincoln inside overheard the jest and rushed out to greet him.

The upper rooms of the house are now used as an apartment, while the lower are furnished in a Mid-Victorian manner and are open to the public.

The site of the replica to be built here is at Thirty-eighth and Orchard streets, fronting the south and with the entrance at the west, just as it stands in Springfield. The upper stories will be rented, while the lower one will be available as a community center. The house will stand as one of the group of colonial houses in Hazelhurst addition.

SOARING STOCK PRICES IN SIGHT ASSERT EXPERTS

Observers Feel Stocks Of Sound Companies Face Bright Outlook.

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 18.—Stocks of the leading automobile manufacturers almost monopolized speculative interest in the stock market this week.

A rosy outlook has been painted for the motor car manufacturers, many of which are expecting to annex ne wprofits in the motorbus trade. Experts in the stock market declared emphatically after the close of the session today that the market was entering a new phase in which the trend of prices would be upward for stocks of sound and substantial companies, and declines in stocks of these which have not such a bright outlook.

Demand for many commodities is below expectations, but this may be due to the fact that hopes were geared up too high last November.

RAILROADS AND MOTORS

The rise of Maxwell "B" stock to 89 7-8, up 16 points for the week, helped to center speculative interest on the motor shares. There was an increasing demand for the railroad stocks, which rose to higher prices near the end of the week, chiefly on revival of rumors about the prospect of a merger of important railroads in the southwestern section of the country.

An excellent recovery in prices of the so-called industrial leaders was due partly to short covering and partly to repurchasing of stocks which have been "thrown overboard" in the last drastic downward plunge of prices. American Can, at 175, showed a recovery of 18 points from the low of the first part of April, while Baldwin, General Electric and other active industrials were 8 to 10 points up.

BOND MARKET

New bond issues this week aggregated $140,000,000, the largest total of any single period since the second week in February. Further ease in the money market not only aided the absorption of these bonds, but also accounted for good advances in prices of prime bonds.

French government bonds today staged a rally from the low prices prevailing in the three listed issues, the 7's, 7 1-2s and the 8s. The latter sold up from 99 1-4 to 101 1-2, while the new 7's scored an advance of nearly 2 points from the low of the week.

CURB MARKET

Irregularity prevailed in the curb market this week. The oil stocks displayed considerable weakness in the first part of the week, simultaneously with the decline in Gulf Coast Gasoline and Crude.

Prices firmed up in the latter part of the week; oils recovered; utility stocks sold higher and both foreign and domestic curb bonds were in demand at the best prices of the week.

WHEAT AND COTTON.

Erratic movements in wheat at Chicago, Kansas City and Winnipeg demonstrated that there is no real stability about prices for the principal foodstuffs and that speculative sentiment swiftly swings from one side of the market to the other. Cotton enjoyed a good weekend rally, due particularly to the absence of rain in the cotton belt.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Sharp upward quotations for the principal European exchanges occurred in the last part of the week. The Norway kronen reached a new high at 16.36. French francs reacted after the early advance and sterling ended the week a little higher than last week.

Call money remained at 3 1-2 per cent and time funds were inclined to slightly lower rates.

Bank clearings for the week were $7,602,335,000, a loss of 13.1 per cent from last week. Bradstreet's food index number 3.62 was unchanged from last week.

KEARNEY NORMAL

The track teams competed with Grand Island Baptist college in a field meet at Grand Island. The following men made the trip: Arthur Arehart of Huntley, Claude Smith of North Platte, Arthur Troyer of Kearney, Seaton Smith of Farnam, Raymond Dondlinger of Geneva, Carl and Clyde Cox of Kenesaw, Leon Aunspaugh of Gothenburg, Horace Skener of Phillips, Jack Leach of Arnold, Robert Pollard of Farnam, Joe Bennett of Kearney, John Bear of Elwood, Kenneth Downing of Arnold, and Roland Egly of Kearney.

WILL REPRODUCE LINCOLN'S HOME

Replica Of House At Springfield to Be Built In This City.

The Abraham Lincoln home in Springfield, Ill., is to be reproduced in Lincoln this summer. It is an attractive colonial house occupied by the Lincoln family for several years before his election to the presidency. The replica will be built at Thirty-eighth and Orchard streets.

The architect's drawings and specifications of the home were brought to Lincoln Friday by H. R. Smith, who returned from Springfield. These drawings are so complete, he says, that it will be possible to rebuild the house with exactitude.

Mrs. Lincoln was responsible for the home as it finally stood. She came from a rather aristocratic family and demanded a full two-story house instead of the story and a half affair which stood originally. While Mr. Lincoln was out of the city for a number of weeks, the changes were made by his order.

The story told to Mr. Smith by one of Mrs. Lincoln's relatives now in charge of the home, which was deeded to Illinois by Robert Lincoln, is that when Lincoln returned from his trip, he asked a boy where was the house of Abe Lincoln. Mrs. Lincoln inside, overheard the jest and rushed out to greet him.

The upper rooms of the house are now used as an apartment, whie the lower are furnished in a Mid-Victorian manner and are open to the public.

The site of the replica to be built here is at Thirty-eighth and Orchard streets, fronting the south and with the entrance at the west, just as it stands in Springfield. The upper stories will be rented, while the lower one will be available as a community center. The house will stand as one of the group of colonial houses in Hazelhurst addition.

Bill Lawrence Is Closely Guarded

Prison guards discovered Lawrence had sawed two of the bars of the "death cell."

Prison authorities said they believed the saws used by Lawrence had been smuggled into prison by Lawrence's mother, Mrs. Lucy Lawrence, Cherokee Indian.

LARGE LIQUOR CONSPIRACIES BEING PROBED

Federal Agents Investigating Situations In Large Cities.

Rings Operating Under Alleged Protection Of Local Officials.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Investigation of a number of big liquor conspiracies in widely scattered sections of the country are in progress, Prohibition Commissioner Haynes disclosed tonight.

With the wholesale roundup of policemen charged with liquor violations in Cincinnati completed, federal agents have been detailed to the probe of similar situations alleged to exist in other large cities.

Evidence of the existence of liquor rings, in some cases acting under the protection of local officials, has been brought to the attention of the prohibition unit. License systems where those in the liquor business pay for protecton outright are said to have been uncovered.

Bootleggers and liquor smugglers virtually control the local governments of several cities, according to prohibition officials. They said the new drive was aimed at wiping out this political domination.

Haynes declined to divulge the cities in which serious conditions are said to exist, but declared that agents of the prohibition unit were conducting probes and that he hoped for arrests soon.

Haynes declared that with the successful shifting of responsibility for prosecution of smaller prohibition violations to the state and municipal authorities, the federal government is now able to devote its attention to the large enforcement problems and attacks against sources of supply.

Haynes said he would not attempt to estimate the number of prohibition agents required to enforce the prohibition law in New York and some other "sore spots."

It was reported today that new prosecutions of the Weehawken, N. J. cases, which attracted national attention, would be taken over by the department of justce. The Weehawken cases, tried before state courts after an investigation by former Attorney General Stone, resulted in jury disagreements. Retrial in federal courts is favored by the prohibition unit.

Equal Rights In Industry and Professions Won By Women, Their Fair In Chicago Reveals

CHICAGO, April 18.—Women have won almost equal rights in industry, business, the professions, arts and sciences, it was demonstrated here today of the first Women's World fair in the vast American Exposition palace.

The exhibitors imparted an air of gaiety at the 273 booths, showing the progress women had made in some seventy lines of endeavor.

It was a women's affair, by women and for women. Of course the men were invited to come and see for themselves how far their fields of labor have been invaded.

In their booths, gay with color, the exhibitors proudly displayed their achievements.

One exhibited the products of Mrs. Medill McCormick's stock farm and near it was a booth with the latest gowns.

There was a cage of live silver foxes and there was the manufactured fur wrap; there was the high powered eight cylinder motorcar and kitchen products.

Hospitals, children's educational associations, women's athletic clubs—all were represented by attractive booths. Even poetry and other forms of literature and journalism were shown to be the rightful property of women.

Every department of life was represented in the gala array.

Man's only consolation was the sight of male carpenters who constructed the booths.

An impressive ceremony, befitting the first great triumphant exposition of women's achievements in the modern economic world, opened the fair. When the president had finished his talk over the radio Mrs. Coolidge pressed a button from the white house flashing by telegraph the signal for the opening of the exposition.

Before the opening ceremony took place, a woman rider in Paul Revere costume and preceded by two women buglers heralded the event by a gallop down Michigan boulevard to the palace. Immediately following this a military parade marched up the boulevard to the palace doors.

Bailey Addresses Medical Men On Chamber Budget

Speaking Saturday night at the semi-monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Medical society at the Orthopedic hospital, Dr. B. F. Bailey explained the reason for the chamber of commerce inaugurating a campaign to raise an additional $25,000 for the sustaining membership budget.

The speaker declared that none of the funs will be used for the chamber of commerce as an organization, but will be diverted into channels which lead to the building of a bigger and better city. He stressed the importance of all usiness and professional men alltying themselves with the chamber.

To do this, he said, the chamber must have a larger fund with which to promote the industrial, commercial and civic activities of the city. The amount songht will raise the budget to $45,000.

Besides the address of Dr. Bailey, Dr. W. O. Colburn read a paper on "Infant Feeding," and Dr. B. F. Williams spoke on "Mental Diseases." His address was discused at length, mot of the members taking part. Max Meyer of the Nebraska Credit bureau also spoke, using for his subject, "Professional Mens Relations to Credit."

New Equipment at Court House Keeps Mice Out of Corn

The courthouse mice will now have to look to offices other than that of the county agent for their rations, said County Agent J. F. Purbaugh Saturday after two large galvanized iron corn testers and steel racks for seed corn had been brought into the office from the old statehause.

Mice have been numerous in the county agents office for some months despite large quantities of calcium cyanide and other rodent poisons on hand, and have made corn testing difficult. Mice have climbed 10 feet up the wall to reach the testy kernels of selected corn.

The new testers and racks are part of the equipment recently discarded by the department of agriculture. A much larger tester than eithe of the two taken to the county agent's office was available but was thought too large for use. The testers contain shelves for several trays filled with seed corn, covered with cloth; and are equipped with heating apparatus to be used if heat is needed to bring germination.

COMMISSIONERS NOT ANNOUNCED

Governor Delays Naming Aides For Supreme Court Judges.

May Hold Off Decision Until List Has Been Submitted to Court.

Appointments for the new Supreme court commission of Nebraska probably will not be announced by Governor McMullen for several days, and perhaps not before next week. The conference held Saturday between the governor and the seven judges of the Supreme court brought out a general discussion as to desired qualifications of those to be named on the commission, and also some consideration of individual candidates, but the governor did not indicate what he purposes to do.

The act creating the commission says the governor shall appoint with the approval of the Supreme court, but does not specify in what manner this approval shall be given or whether it is to be expressed before or after the appointments are made. Mr. McMullen's action in consulting the judges beforehand is taken to mean that he will not name anybody whom the court might deem unfitted for the work to be done. He may even submit his selections to the bench, when he has definitely decided upon them, before making the list public.

In choosing the six commissioners, Governor McMullen is not required to make an even distribution among the six congressional distrists. However, it is expected that various sections of Nebraska will be recognized.

To Pick from Both Parties.

It is generally believed that Governor McMullen will include members of both the leading political parties in his group of appointees for the commission, but the natural supposition is that endorsements from republican leaders will carry the greatest weight.

"Leave hope of any other political office behind, ye who enter here," would make a suitable inscription to put up at the entrance of rooms may be assigned in the new capitol to the Supreme court commission. Under provisions of the act creating it, members of the commission are forbidden during their terms to run for any elective position.

This was put into the bill so that the commission might not become a training school for Supreme bench candidates. The commissioners [illegible] to be paid $5,000 a year each [illegible] hear cases and formulate decisions thereon.

Sentiment in favor of Judge C. B. Letton of Lincoln, former jurist on the high bench, as one of the six commissions is strong in legal circles. He is not an applicant, but his friends think he would accept if an appointment were tendered.

Interurban Tram Company Shows a Deficit In 1924

In the operation of its six miles of track connecting Lincoln with University Place and Bethany, the Omaha, Lincoln & Beatrice interurban railway earned total revenue of $42,503 during the calendar year of 1924, its annual report to the state railway commission shows.

The ordinary operating expenses were $38,548, while taxes added $4,300 more. This outgo and a small amount paid as interest on current indebtedness left an actual deficit of $531 at the end of the year, without any provision for dividends. The operating cost includes $10,829 for upkeep of the property and depreciation.

The O. L. & B. operates on a lower scale of fares than the Lincoln Traction Co., and it came nearer breaking even on the year's business than did the latter corporation, which also made its report to the railway commission several days ago.

AWAITS ACTION BY GRAND JURY

Mrs. Cunningham Sleeps Peacefully, Apparently Reconciled To Fate.

GARY, Ind., April 18.—Apparently reconciled to her fate, Mrs. Anna Cunningham, "poison widow" of Gary, slept peacefully in a cell in the Crown Point jail tonight awaiting action by the grand jury.

Today Mrs. Cunningham waived preliminary examination on the charge of murder in connection with the death of her husband and four children within a period of six years. The woman was held to the grand jury without bail. The jury will take up the case on April 27.

Mrs. Cunningham has confessed to giving arsenic to three of the five victims. She also said she gave poison to another son, David, who is in a Chicago hospital.

Insanity has been decided upon as the defense, it was indicated by Attorneys Frank and Al Gavit of Gary. They pointed out that relatives have said Mrs. Cunningham suffered from epilepsy for years. The woman has suffered repeated collapses since her arrest and is still weak from the last seizure.

Rings Operating Under Alleged Protection Of Local Officials.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Investigation of a number of big liquor conspiracies in widely scattered sections of the country are in progress, Prohibition Commissioner Haynes disclosed tonight.

With the wholesale roundup of policemen charged with liquor violations in Cincinnati completed, federal agents have been detailed to the probe of similar situations alleged to exist in other large cities.

Evidence of the existence of liquor rings, in some cases acting under the protection of local officials, has been brought to the attention of the prohibition unit. License systems where those in the liquor business pay for protecton outright are said to have been uncovered,

Bootleggers and liquor smugglers virtually control the local governments of several cities, according to prohibition officials. They said the new drive was aimed at wiping out this political domination.

Haynes declined to divulge the cities in which serious conditions are said to exist, but declared that agents of the prohibition unit were conducting probes and that he hoped for arrests soon.

Haynes declared that with the successful shifting of responsibility for prosecution of smaller prohibition violations to the state and municipal authorities, the federal government is now able to devote its attention to the large enforcement problems and attacks against sources of supply.

Haynes said he would not attempt to estimate the number of prohibition agents required to enforce the prohibition law in New York and some other "sore spots."

It was reported today that new prosecutions of the Weehawken, N. J. cases, which attracted national attention, would be taken over by the department of justce. The Weehawken cases, tried before state courts after an investigation by former Attorney General Stone, resulted in jury disagreements. Retrial in federal courts is favored by the prohibition unit.

Equal Rights In Industry and Professions Won By Women, Their Fair In Chicago Reveals

CHICAGO, April 18.—Women have won almost equal rights in industry, business, the professions, arts and sciences, it was demontrated here today of the first Women's World fair in the vast American Exposition palace.

The exhibitors imparted an air of gaiety at the 273 booths, showing the progress women had made in some seventy lines of endeavor.

It was a women's affair, by women and for women. Of course the men were invited to come and see for themselves how far their fields of labor have been invaded.

In their booths, gay with color, the exhibitors proudly displayed their achievements.

One exhibited the products of Mrs. Medill McCormick's stock farm and near it was a booth with the latest gowns.

There was a cage of live silver foxes and there was the manufactured fur wrap; there was the high powered eight cylinder motorcar and kitchen products.

Hospitals, children's educational associations, women's athletic clubs—all were represented by attractive booths. Even poetry and other forms of literature and journalism were shown to be the rightful property of women.

Every department of life was represented in the gala array.

Man's only consolation was the sight of male carpenters who constructed the booths.

An impressive ceremony, befitting the first great triumphant exposition of women's achievements in the modern economic world, opened the fair. When the president had finished his talk over the radio Mrs. Coolidge pressed a button from the white house flashing by telegraph the signal for the opening of the exposition.

Before the opening ceremony took place, a woman rider in Paul Revere costume and preceded by two women buglers heralded the event by a gallop down Michigan boulevard to the palace. Immediately following this a military parade marched up the boulevard to the palace doors.

Bailey Addresses Medical Men On Chamber Budget

Speaking Saturday night at the semi-monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Medical society at the Orthopedic hospital, Dr. B. F. Bailey explained the reason for the chamber of commerce inaugurating a campaign to raise an additional $25,000 for the sustaining membership budget.

The speaker declared that none of the funs will be used for the chamber of commerce as an organization, but will be diverted into channels which lead to the building of a bigger and better city. He stressed the importance of all usiness and professional men alltying themselves with the chamber .

To do this, he said, the chamber must have a larger fund with which to promote the industrial, commercial and civic activities of the city. The amount songht will raise the budget to $45,000.

Besides the address of Dr. Bailey, Dr. W. O. Colburn read a paper on "Infant Feeding," and Dr. B. F. Williams spoke on "Mental Diseases." His address was discused at length, mot of the members taking part. Max Meyer of the Nebraska Credit bureau also spoke, using for his subject, "Professional Mens Relations to Credit."

New Equipment at Court House Keeps Mice Out of Corn

The courthouse mice will now have to look to offices other than that of the county agent for their rations, said County Agent J. F. Purbaugh Saturday after two large galvanized iron corn testers and steel racks for seed corn had been brought into the office from the old statehause.

Mice have been numerous in the county agents office for some months despite large quantities of calcium cyanide and other rodent poisons on hand, and have made corn testing difficult. Mice have climbed 10 feet up the wall to reach the testy kernels of selected corn.

The new testers and racks are part of the equipment recently discarded by the department of agriculture. A much larger tester than eithe of the two taken to the county agent's office was available but was thought too large for use. The testers contain shelves for several trays filled with seed corn, covered with cloth; and are equipped with heating apparatus to be used if heat is needed to bring germination.

COMMISSIONERS NOT ANNOUNCED

Governor Delays Naming Aides For Supreme Court Judges.

May Hold Off Decision Until List Has Been Submitted to Court.

Appointments for the new Supreme court commission of Nebraska probably will not be announced by Governor McMullen for several days, and perhaps not before next week. The conference held Saturday between the governor and the seven judges of the Supreme court brought out a general discussion as to desired qualifications of those to be named on the commission, and also some consideration of individual candidates, but the governor did not indicate what he purposes to do.

The act creating the commission says the governor shall appoint with the approval of the Supreme court, but does not specify in what manner this approval shall be given or whether it is to be expressed before or after the appointments are made. Mr. McMullen's action in consulting the judges beforehand is taken to mean that he will not name anybody whom the court might deem unfitted for the work to be done. He may even submit his selections to the bench, when he has definitely decided upon them, before making the list public.

In choosing the six commissioners, Governor McMullen is not required to make an even distribution among the six congressional distrists. However, it is expected that various sections of Nebraska will be recognized.

To Pick from Both Parties.

It is generally believed that Governor McMullen will include members of both the leading political parties in his group of appointees for the commission, but the natural supposition is that endorsements from republican leaders will carry the greatest weight.

"Leave hope of any other political office behind, ye who enter here," would make a suitable inscription to put up at the entrance of rooms may be assigned in the new capitol to the Supreme court commission. Under provisions of the act creating it, members of the commission are forbidden during their terms to run for any elective position.

This was put into the bill so that the commission might not become a training school for Supreme bench candidates. The commissioners to be paid $5,000 a year each hear cases and formulate decisions thereon.

Sentiment in favor of Judge C. B. Letton of Lincoln, former jurist on the high bench, as one of the six commissions is strong in legal circles. He is not an applicant, but his friends think he would accept if an appointment were tendered.

Interurban Tram Company Shows a Deficit In 1924

In the operation of its six miles of track connecting Lincoln with University Place and Bethany, the Omaha, Lincoln & Beatrice interurban railway earned total revenue of $42,503 during the calendar year of 1924, its annual report to the state railway commission shows.

The ordinary operating expenses were $38,548, while taxes added $4,300 more. This outgo and a small amount paid as interest on current indebtedness left an actual deficit of $531 at the end of the year, without any provision for dividends. The operating cost includes $10,829 for upkeep of the property and depreciation.

The O. L. & B. operates on a lower scale of fares than the Lincoln Traction Co., and it came nearer breaking even on the year's business than did the latter corporation, which also made its report to the railway commission several days ago.

AWAITS ACTION BY GRAND JURY

Mrs. Cunningham Sleeps Peacefully, Apparently Reconciled To Fate.

GARY, Ind., April 18.—Apparently reconciled to her fate, Mrs. Anna Cunningham, "poison widow" of Gary, slept peacefully in a cell in the Crown Point jail tonight, awaiting action by the grand jury.

Today Mrs. Cunningham waived preliminary examination on the charge of murder in connection with the death of her husband and four children within a period of six years. The woman was held to the grand jury without bail. The jury will take up the case on April 27.

Mrs. Cunningham has confessed to giving arsenic to three of the five victims. She also said she gave poison to another son, David, who is in a Chicago hospital.

Insanity has been decided upon as the defense, it was indicated by Attorneys Frank and Al Gavit of Gary. They pointed out that relatives have said Mrs. Cunningham suffered from epilepsy for years. The woman has suffered repeated collapses since her arrest and is still weak from the last seizure.

The meeting, which included delegates from Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska, was held at the call of the commander-in-chief, William M. Coffin of Cincinnati.

Disappears From Hospital.—The police were asked Saturday night to search for Francis Overman, of North Platte, 14 years old, who disappeared from St. Elizabeth's hospital, where he had been taken during the afternoon for treatment. The officers had not found him at a late houh Saturday evening.

Tires Stolen—L. Schell, of Wahoo, and William Grant, 1835 South Twenty-sixth street, each reported to police Saturday the theft of spare tires from their automobiles.

Sues Former Agent—The Monarch Manufacturing Co. brought suit against Herbert W. Eastman, former salesman for the company, for $3,945.19 alleged due on overdrafts and money advanced him, in District court Saturday morning. On the first cause of action $1,045.11 was advanced between Dec. 26, 1923 and June 11, 1924. The sum of $2,900.08 was advanced after Eastman had elected to work on a straight percentage basis in selling the company's oil products, it is alleged.

Motions for New Trials—Two motions for new trials were made in district court late Saturday. David S. Potter, who recently received a $5 verdict in his suit for $2,300 against Jay E. Kelly in Judge Wheeler's court wants a new trial. The action was based on alleged misrepresentation in a transfer of land for a second mortgage. The city of Chadron asks re-trial of the case in which Judge J. H. Broady ruled that the city did not have $13,691.92 owing from the state for destruction of that city's pipe line during excavation on a public highway.

Women's desire for beauty has existed throughout all ages. But never before has beauty culture reached the fine degree of perfection known today. Step inside a modern beauty shop and you will find at every woman's command the services of operators skilled in the finer points of the care of skin, hair etc. that were unknown thirty, twenty—yes, even ten years ago. This knowledge is the result of tireless scientific research. Operators have spent years and dollars learning their technique. Shop owners have invested heavily in equipment that every customer may receive individual service. If you do not patronize legitimate beauty shops, all this knowledge, money and time has been expended uselessly. Lincoln Association of Hairdressers.—Adv.

Whitmore States Willing to Take Department Post

In the event of his being defeated for mayor but among the five highest named as city commissioners at the general city election, May 5, H. J. Whitmore will take which ever of the departments the council may assign him. Statement to that effect was made by Judge Whitmore Saturday night. It follows:

"At the primary I was honored by being placed among the first five candidates and am one of two aspirants who have expressed a preference for the office of mayor. Should both of those so expressing a preference be among the first five at the election the one receiving the largest number of votes will automatically take the position of mayor, while the other will take such place in city affairs as a majority of the council may thereafter assign to him. While I have no desire for a position other than mayor I should feel it my duty to accept a place on the council and to serve the city faithfully and to the best of my ability in such position as may be assigned to me, in the event my ambition for the leading position is not gratified."

STAND UP FOR COWGILL
THE CITY CHARTER says the Council "shall have power to establish" a municipal coal yard and filling station. In brief a station and coal yard are not required by law as many people believe and may be dispensed with by an unfriendly council.
COWGILL has gotten organized business against him for operating your coal and gasoline business. Three members of the council are friendly with these interests and are being backed by them. Have they promised to cripple the station and coal yard if the interests get rid of Cowgill?
If the special interests defeat Cowgill no other elective officer will ever dare to run the coal yard or filling station efficiently and face political defeat for a public who will not back their representative with their votes.
COWGILL had to pay his way south twice from his own pocket, on the coal business of the city to fight blacklisting tactics.
COWGILL cannot keep the station and coal yard going indefinitely against four opponents in the Council.
THINK THIS OVER and vote on May 5th. Are you going to be dominated by organized business?

"At the primary I was honored by being placed among the first five candidates and am one of two aspirants who have expressed a preference for the office of mayor. Should both of those so expressing a preference be among the first five at the election the one receiving the largest number of votes will automatically take the position of mayor, while the other will take such place in city affairs as a majority of the council may thereafter assign to him. While I have no desire for a position other than mayor I should feel it my duty to accept a place on the council and to serve the city faithfully and to the best of my ability in such position as may be assigned to me, in the event my ambition for the leading position is not gratified."

STAND UP FOR COWGILL

THE CITY CHARTER says the Council "shall have power to establish" a municipal coal yard and filling station. In brief a station and coal yard are not required by law as many people believe and may be dispensed with by an unfriendly council.

COWGILL has gotten organized business against him for operating your coal and gasoline business. Three members of the council are friendly with these interests and are being backed by them. Have they promised to cripple the station and coal yard if the interests get rid of Cowgill?

If the special interests defeat Cowgill no other elective officer will ever dare to run the coal yard or filling station efficiently and face political defeat for a public who will not back their representative with their votes.

COWGILL had to pay his way south twice from his own pocket, on the coal business of the city to fight blacklisting tactics.

COWGILL cannot keep the station and coal yard going indefinitely against four opponents in the Council.

THINK THIS OVER and vote on May 5th. Are you going to be dominated by organized business?

METHODISTS TO BUILD HOSPITAL

Speakers Outline Plans At Luncheon Given By E. C. Folsom.

Declare Founding of Institution At Fairview Will Benefit Lincoln.

Th building of a Methodist hospital at Faiview by the Methodist church is the most fruitful project ever undertaken in Lincoln, speakers at the chamber of commerce Saturday, said, at a complimentary luncheon given by E. C. Folsom to some fifty or more representative business men and religious leaders.

After explaining the need for such an institution in Lincoln, Frank D. Eager, chairman of the general committee, who presided at the luncheon, declared that with the completion of the building will come one of the happiest moments in the life of the man who made possible the locating of the institution on the present site—W. J Bryan, who at one time used the property as his home.

Open to All Denominations.

While the institution will be known as a Methodist hospital, it is not a Methodst hospital in the strict sense of the word, Mr. Eager continued. "It is a hospital which will be open to peoples of all denominations and will care for more of those who are members of other churches than are Methodists. Then, too, other denominations have asked and been granted permission to erect buildings of their own as a part of the entire plant, thus making it an interdenominational enterprise.

"The real part the Methodist church has in the plan is that of being the organization responsible for furthering the project and carrying on after the plant is in operation. This is necessary to success of the undertaking."

Fills Third Field.

"The Christian religion has three distinct fields of operation," Rev. J. H. Clemens, speaking for the bishop of Nebraska, said . "They are preaching, teaching and healing. In this district the methodist church is performing but two thirds of its activities, hence the reason we are undertaking to fill the third field."

Rev. Clemens declared that with the completion of the hospital none of those already here would suffer financially and his opinion was voiced by each of the other speakers at the luncheon. Rev. A. A. Brooks, pastor of Trinity Methodist church citing an instance at Hastings where, after a second large hospital had been completed one already there was compelled in a comparatively short time to make material enlargements.

Among the speakers were Rev. W. T. Elmore, L. C. Oberlies, J. E. Miller, C. J. Guenzel, M. Weil and Rev. Walter Aitken, without an exception they voiced the opinion that the building of the plant at Fairview would be a good thing for Lincoln and pledged hearty co-operation in carrying out the project.

Are Self Supporting.

During the addresses it was brought out that Methodist hospitals are better than self-supporting. This is true, it was explained, because the White Cross society of the church, and each individual member contributes a specific amount annually to help overcome the expense entailed in caring for charity patients.

Dr. Clemens declared in his talk that during the forty-three years since the establishment of the first Methodist hospital there has come into existence others until the property value has reached 7½ million dollars. More than 7 million patients, of which 7 1-4 million were treated free, have been cared for and a surplus of $66,000 shown.

Decision to build the plant on the unit plan it was stated, will bring to Lincoln a type of hospital almost entirely new, the plan not being used much of anywhere else except in the army during the world war.

Offices at which the preliminary work of the campaign will be done, have been opened in St Paul Methodist church, with Rev. F E. Sala of University Place in charge.

Mails Questions For Examinations

Twenty thousand sets of printed questions for eighth grade examinations to be conducted by county superintendents all over Nebraska on April 3 and May 1 have been mailed out from the state superintendent's office. Pupils who pass this examination will be eligible for entrance into high schools.

Applications for free high school attendance during the coming year should be filed, the same as in the past, with county superintendents, says a circular letter issued by State Superintendent Matzen. The new law which provides for a county tax to pay the tuition of non-resident high school pupils will become effective July 1, thus relieving individual school districts which have no high schools from making provision for their own pupils attending elsewhere.

Roads were being dragged Saturday and should be in excellent condition Sunday, if no rain.

Mails Questions For Examinations

Twenty thousand sets of printed questions for eighth grade examinations to be conducted by county superintendents all over Nebraska on April 3 and May 1 have been mailed out from the state superintendent's office. Pupils who pass this examination will be eligible for entrance into high schools.

Applications for free high school attendance during the coming year should be filed, the same as in the past, with county superintendents, says a circular letter issued by State Superintendent Matzen. The new law which provides for a county tax to pay the tuition of non-resident high school pupils will become effective July 1, thus relieving individual school districts which have no high schools from making provision for their own pupils attending elsewhere.

HUPP PRODUCTION ON AN INCREASE

Cars Being Turned Out At Highest Rate In Company's History.

Manufacturing operations of the Hupp Motor Car corporation are now being carried on at the highest rate in its history, O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager, said yesterday. Night work in several departments has been in effect since late March. Beginning April 11 further increased orders resulted in full time operations being conducted on Saturdays both in the eight and four cylinder divisions, dispensing with the standard half holiday.

Though Hupp's operations for January, February and March were somewhat below those of the corresponding period in 1924 due to the disinclination of distributors and dealers generally to stock cars against the spring demand as is generally done, those for April, May and June are expected to nearly double the same months of a year ago, Mr. Hutchinson said. Demand is active both for the new Hupmobile eight and the four, with dealer stocks particularly probably the lowest they have ever been, he added. Before May 1 Hupp expects to have produced and shipped more than 5,000 of its eight cylinder models, creating a new high record for a multi-cylinder car.

April manufacturing is expected to set a new record business volume, Mr. Hutchinson reported, and may surpass in actual number of units anything previously done. Distributors and dealers throughout the country are enjoying a steadily increasing business, according to their reports to the factory, and anticipate the largest movement of cars into the hands of consumers during the coming months that they have ever experienced. Export shipments are larger than during the corresponding months either in 1923 or 1924.

Closed car demand is especially heavy. Seventy six per cent of March shipments including export were in closed cars compared with 50 per cent for the first 110 days of 1924.

FIRM MEMBER

H. L. Aden, member of the new Goodyear service station firm, the Chevalier Tire Co., Inc., at 215 South Eleventh street.

After graduating from the Wesleyan university in 1917, Mr. Aden enlisted for service in the World war, after which he soon entered the tire field and has operated a tire repair for the past five years.

The service and tire repair departments, including the new automatically controlled electrical vacuum molds, will be supervised by Mr. Aden with the assistance of the Goodyear factory, which recently developed a quick curing method for tire repairing and assisted in designing the new electrical curing molds.

The Chevalier Tire Co. has purchased this new equipment which is said to give quicker and better tire repairing results.

NEW MOTIVE AMONG BUYERS

Look Upon Automobile As Necessity and Buy With That In Mind.

The automobile buyer of today is a different sort of a person from the buyer of yesterday. He is different in that he has a different motive for buying.

Today he considers the motor car as a necessity instead of a luxury. He enters the market with the same attitude he has in buying other economic necessities. His idea is to select a car that gives him the most satisfactory service for every dollar expended. In other words he seeks the best value.

In days gone by there was a reckless sort of element in buying. The prospect saw in the street or in the showroom a type of car that appealed to his fancy and he bought it regardless of its economic or utility value.

Today the buyer is shrewd. He compares values. He knows more about cars. He asks sensible questions, makes a thorough study of the vehicle from his own systematic survey among his friends. He takes the stand that here is a product that, like his store fixtures or his office equipment or his factory machine, will enable him to hold his own against competition. He treats it as a regular business and economic factor and he buys in the manner of the expert purchasing agent.

Because he demands comfort he must have a car that has ample room and rides easily. He must have a car which he can rely upon to respond to any of his needs in time.

Economy of maintenance is necessary. The cost of running the car must be low. It must require a minimum of service attention. Then it must look well so as to reflect credit to the owner, his family, his business house.

The reason for the increasing popularity of Maxwell and Chrysler cars is the fact that we have kept these factors uppermost in mind. We have realized the importance of the motor car as a business and economic factor and have built our cars accordingly.

The new buying trend is a healthy sign. It means that with more cars more intelligence being applied to the purchasing process the manufacturer of the product that continues to give the public the best motor car value will continue to survive and prosper.

Radiator Preparedness

With the advent of warmer weather the cooling systems of automobiles of non freezing solutions frequently softens the rubber hose connections leading from the radiator to the engine and these should be replaced. If there is any great amount of scale in the radiator take the car to a service station and have it boiled out. In the early spring the cooling system probably gives more trouble than any other part of the automobile and this is due to neglect on the part of the owner.

Smallest Plane Is Ready For Its Trial Trip Today

If you see what appears to be a gnat hawk sailing the skies, it is a bit too large to be an eagle but yet too small to coincide with your conception of an airplane, and making a noise like a machine gun running off at the mouth, don't call up the Izaak Walton league. Go out to the landing field south of Lincoln and get the surprise of your life.

Lincoln Sport, the smallest practical biplane in the world, is going to take the air in its first exhibition test flight at 2 o'clock.

This little plane, which will nestle comfortably under the wing of its larger sisters, has been designed and built by the Lincoln Standard Aircraft corporation. It measures but 18 feet from wing tip to wing tip and [illegible] feet from nose to tail. In fact it is so small that the flyer must literally use a shoe horn to get into it, as Ray Page, president of the Aircraft company expressed it. Its loaded weight is only 600 pounds.

The fuselage of the little plane is shaped like the most perfect of Havana cigars, giving the machine a perfect streamline body. Its three cylinder [illegible] horse power motor was imported from France. It is known to flyers as the Anzani [illegible]. No motor of its size is manufactured in this country perfect enough and powerful enough to suit this particular purpose, Mr. Page explains.

The company has been manufacturing another type of small plane for the last year and has sold a large number of them. The new model is even smaller. It is designed for a business or pleasure plane.

It is expected that the little plane will make a speed of one hundred miles an hour. Its motor will use only one gallon of fuel in traveling thirty five miles.

The plane will be piloted by Bud Slonecker on its trial flight this afternoon.

More Than 2,000 Chevrolet Cars Turned Out Daily

Chevrolet Motor company, a division of General Motors, is making a production record for April with an output of more than 2,000 motor vehicles for each working day. The April schedule calls for [illegible] cars and trucks and this schedule is planned for May and June also. This figure has been exceeded only twice in the company's history.

At the present rate of production Chevrolet will produce its two millionth car in early fall. It will be the first manufacturer of three speed gear shift type of car to attain that total.

Of the April production 43,[illegible]6 cars and trucks are for domestic sale, [illegible]34 are to be exported and [illegible]00 are being built at the Chevrolet plant at Oshawa, Ont. Unfilled orders at the factory indicate that production for the second quarter of the year even at its present record figures will be at once absorbed.

Present production program requires approximately [illegible] workers at the twelve Chevrolet factories and assembly plants in America.

Brake Tests

All types of brakes are affected by the bouncing of the rear wheels and flexing of the springs except those operated on the hydraulic and compressed air principles. When testing the brakes to see if the wheels lock it is not necessary to slide the tires to a complete stop. Just lock the wheels for an instant and then examine the paving. Both tires should make the same length of mark on the paving indicating the adjustments are equalized. If the brakes do not seem to hold with the first depression of the brake pedal do not keep pushing on it. Release pedal and try again more vigorously. It frequently makes a difference which can only be explained by analysis of the particular brake assembly and the conditions.

HAS LARGE TERRITORY

H. C. Pierum of Lincoln is now distributor for Wayne tools in fourteen states. He says that the Wayne electric valve grinder will reface any valve 30, 45 or 60 degrees with a stem not larger than [illegible] inches. The Wayne reboring mill will rebore any open head block while in the chassis. The Wayne company also manufactures valve seat reamers and six blade reamers and bearing mandrels which will scrape bearings quickly and accurately. Mr. Pierum can demonstrate the tool in any shop.

To Clear Flooded Cylinders

Never pull out the choke on starting the engine when it is hot as the cylinders will be come flooded or choked. Should this happen release the choke, open the throttle about half way and turn the engine over with the starter to clean the cylinders of excess gasoline.

Husker Sprinter Runs In World Record Time

LOCKE EQUALS WORLD RECORD

(Special to The Star.)

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 18. — The third annual Kansas university relay carnival, staged here this afternoon at the Jayhawker stadium, will pass into history as one of the cinder path classics of all time. World records were either smashed or equalled until the 5,000 spectators were in a frenzy of enthusiasm.

But the central figure of the field of 1,000 athletes, representing a hundred universities, colleges and high schools, was Roland Locke, Missouri Valley conference champion in the sprints, who flashed to the tape in one of the preliminaries of the 100-yard dash in the sensational time of 9 3-5 seconds.

Locke Wonder Sprinter.

Locke came to Lawrence today heralded as Nebraska's "fastest human" and proceeded to demonstrate that he is easily the speediest college sprinter of the present day and the equal of any in the history of the cinder path sport.

Locke's record performance in the century equals the best previous performances of Arthur Duffy, Howard Drew and Charley Paddock, joint holders of the world record in the century dash. After his startling achievement in the preliminary, Locke breezed home in the final of the 100-yard event, being clocked in even ten seconds.

Weir Also In Spotlight.

After Locke had displayed his heels to all opposition in the short sprint, Ed Weir, Nebraska's all-American football tackle, then proceeded to outclass his opponents in the 120-yard hurdles, defeating a field which included Taylor of Grinnell, Olympic champion and world record holder in the 400-yard low hurdles, and Kinsey, crack hurdler from the University of Illinois. Weir cleared the high sticks in even 15 seconds, which established a new record for the Kansas relays.

Three World Records.

The summary of today's performances discloses that three new world's records were made; two world's records were tied and two new intercollegiate marks set.

A new world's record was made in the half-mile university relay, Illinois winning in one minute and twenty-seven seconds. Another world mark was made by Kansas in the university quarter-mile relay, the time being 42 seconds.

The third world's record to fall was in the university medley relay when the Texas university quartet stepped the distance in 7 minutes 35 3-10 seconds, lowering their own mark, established in 1924, of 7 minutes 38 2-10 seconds.

New Mark in Pole Vault.

Earl McKeown of Kansas State Teachers' college set a new intercollegiate mark in the pole vault with 13 feet 3 7-8 inches.

Schwarze of Wisconsin, with a heave of 49 feet 10 1-8 inches, broke the intercollegiate shot put distance made by R. L. Beatty of Columbia university in 1912.

Northeast high school of Kansas City, Mo., equalled the world's record of one minute 32 2-10 seconds for the half-mile interscholastic record.

RESULTS IN HOME COURSE RELAYS

Hastings and Cambridge 1925 Winners In Nebraska High Compet.

Hastings Excelled In Longer Distances; Had Best Time In Two Events.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Hastings and Cambridge high schools won the annual Nebraska interscholastic home course relays, according to announcement made Saturday by Coach Henry F. Schulte of the University of Nebraska. Hastings won the distance four-men events, while Cambridge had the best sprint team.

The four-men combination of both schools will compete in the Drake relays, making the trip to Des Moines as the guest of "Red" Long of the College Book Store.

Six other Nebraska high school teams were entered in the Drake relay carnival as a result of their performance in the home course relays — Kearney, Norfolk, Randolph, Tecumseh, Columbus and Fremont. These schools were represented by teams which finished within the first three in one of the four relay events.

Better Balanced Team.

The Cambridge sprint team was excelled by Kearney in the 440-yard relay and by Norfolk in the 880-yard event, but finished in second place in both sprint relays and presented a better balanced sprint team. The Hastings quartets turned in the best time in the mile and two-mile events.

"The result of the home course relays, in which eighteen teams were entered, is another evidence of the rapid progress Nebraska is making in track," says Coach Henry F. Schulte, head track mentor at the university. "The time turned in by all competitors was exceptionally good and I feel sure Nebraska high schools will be well represented at the Drake carnival."

Hastings Won Two Firsts.

The winning Cambridge sprint team was Mouser, Fricke, Smiley and Greenslit. The winning Hastings two-mile team listed Greenslit, Hohnstein, Fricke and Smiley.

In winning the 440-yard relay banner, the Kearney high school quartet of Miller, Killian, Clark and Lambert, was cloaked in 44 4-10 seconds. Tecumseh and Cambridge teams tied for second place with 44 5-10 seconds. The Kearney mark stands as a home course relay record, as this is the first year the quarter-mile has been a part of the relay program.

Norfolk Breaks Record.

The Norfolk high school team of McGrane, Slaughter, Davenport and Donisthorpe established a new home course record in winning the 880-yard banner. The Norfolk team ran the half-mile in 1 minute 32 4-10 seconds, bettering the 1924 record of 1:32 6-10 set by the Beatrice team. The Cambridge four with 1:32:5 finished second and also bettered the former record. Randolph placed third.

Hastings high, with Mouser, Smiley and Greenslit passing the baton, established a new mile relay record in winning the mile banner. The Adams county five did 3 minutes 33 8-10 seconds. The former record of 3.35:4 was made by Broken Bow in 1923. Randolph finished second in this event and Fremont third.

Two-Mile New Event.

The Hastings team also copped the two-mile banner. The Hastings four of Greenslit, Hohnstein, Fricks and Smiley ran the distance in 8 minutes 28 2-10 seconds. This is a record as this is the first year the event has been listed in the home course program. Columbus was second with a mark of 8:54 and Cambridge third with 8:59.

Here is how the first ten teams finished in each event:

Summary of Results.

440-yard relay—Won by Kearney, second, Tecumseh and Cambridge, tied; fourth, Broken Bow and Fremont tied; sixth, Norfolk; seventh, Scotsbluff, eighth, Omaha Central and Beatrice, tied; tenth, Hastings.

880-yard relay — Won by Norfolk, second, Cambridge; third, Randolph, fourth, Hastings; fifth, Fremont; sixth, Tecumseh, seventh, Scottsbluff, eighth, Beatrice and Omaha Central, tied; tenth, Grand Island.

Mile relay — Won by Hastings; second, Randolph, third, Fremont; fourth, Cambridge and Scottsbluff, Creighton Prep; eighth, Beatrice, ninth, Omaha Central, tenth, Genoa.

Two-mile relay—Won by Hastings: second, Columbus; third, Cambridge; fourth, Creighton Prep; fifth, Scottsbluff; sixth, Genoa; seventh, Beatrice; eighth, Crawford.

Roca High Defeats Hickman Ball Team

HICKMAN, Neb., April 18.—Roca high school defeated Hickman high in baseball Friday afternoon, 3 to 2. The score was 2 all at the end of the ninth, Roca winning out in the tenth inning.

Batteries—Crawford and Duff for Roca; Huffman and Bykirk for Hickman. Umpire—Wessel.

Willie Ritola ~ "THE FLYING FINN"
Bill Britton DRAKE MIDDLE DISTANCE RUNNER
Locke NEBRASKA'S GREAT SPRINTER
Dauss Richerson MISSOURI'S STAR WEIGHT MAN
Capt. Barr ~ NOTRE DAME

At Madison Square Garden, New York city last February, Ritola established new times, beating his world record marks in the three-mile rase, which he completed in 13:56 1-5, and in the 5,000-meter event in 14:23 1-5. On the fast Drake track at the sixteenth annual relays, April 24-25, he will endeavor to establish other records and nose ahead of Joie Ray, the American ace, with whom he will compete in a special one-mile event. The latter did the 1000-meter race at Madison Square Garden in the remarkable time of 2:29 3-5.

Locke, Nebraska's sprint ace, who will battle in the Drake 100-yard dash, is a premier thriller. He provided much excitement for the fans at the last Kansas City Athletic club indoor meet when he won 10 points for Nebraska by winning the dash events a nose ahead of Farley, of Missouri, and other sprinters. Two weeks later Locke won the two dash events at the Missouri Valley conference indoor meet.

"Bud" Barr, famous captain of the Notre Dame track team, is a tremendously strong and swift sprinter, typical of Coach Knute Rockne's winning material, who can be counted on to make a spectacular showing in his event at the coming Drake classic.

In the Drake shot put event, Dauss Richerson of Missouri is expected to cop a few honors. He established a new record at the last Missouri Valley conference indoor meet when he tossed the iron "pill" for a distance of 46 feet, 10 1-8 inches. In daily practice he is lines.

Bill Britton should do well for Drake university in the middle distance event, as he has been pleasing his trainers in trials at the Bulldog stadium.

BENNET, Neb., April 18.—Palmyra high defeated Bennet high in baseball yesterday by a 12 to 5 score.

Duffy Takes Boxing Lesson From Schoell

Schoell, a rangy fighter, displaying a rapier-left, stood Duffy off at all stages with his lightning jabs to the head and body. Duffy, a natural left-handed boxer himself, found himself up against his master at this brand of fighting and was beaten to the punch continually.

Duffy Good Receiver.

Schoell took the first five rounds, the seventh, eighth and ninth. Duffy managed to hold Schoell even in the sixth and, by a whirlwind finish gained the last. Aside from these momentary flashes, however, he was busy receiving most of the time.

In the seventh round, the easterner caught Duffy with a terrific left to the chest that sent the coast welter stumbling across the ring and onto the ropes.

The battle was cleanly fought, both fighters agreeing beforehand to break on the order of the referee.

Ashland Loses To Central Nine By One-run Margin

ASHLAND, Neb., April 18.—Omaha Central defeated Ashland here Friday in a close baseball game, 5 to 4. Glade of Omaha struck out eight men and Ziegenbein of Ashland fanned six. Bleicher hit a home run. Each team poled four hits.

Batteries—Ziegenbein and Miller for Ashland, Glade and Bleicher for Omaha.

NEW FIGHT STAR BLAZING IN EAST

Jim Maloney, Boston Youth, Hailed As Successor To Jack Dempsey.

Eastern Critics of Mitten Sport Strong In Praise Of Newcomer.

A new fistic star, hailed as the next world's heavyweight champion, has flashed across the eastern horizon. Jim Maloney is his name and Boston his home and business address. Like the famous John L. Sullivan, he's all Irish from head to heels.

Tex Rickard, the world's most noted fight promoter of all time, recently published a list of the ten greatest fighting men. The name of Jim Maloney was one of the ten. So very few had ever heard of Maloney that Rickard quite amazed the followers of the fistic pastime by nominating the unknown Boston boy.

But Moliney, despite the popular surprise, apparently lugs real fighting goods. Fight critics of the east—Maloney has done practically all his ring stuff in Beantown and Gotham — stand agreed that the new Boston youngster is the best looking champion prospect of all the maulers aspiring to wear Jack Dempsey's crown.

Dempsey Still Denying.

The same Mr. Dempsey broke loose only yesterday with another denial that he has retired. Genial Jack has been pulling that denial trick for some time. But that is just a part of the Dempsey game. Nevertheless, Jack Dempsey has put his padded mitts away for all time and never will don them again.

There's a reason for his denials, to-wit A recognized, active champion is worth a lot of money in the movies, whereas the value of a retired champion would shrink almost to nothingness. And that's why Jack asserts he want's another fight—perhaps this year, perhaps next but never actually signing on the dotted line.

Prattle of that sort may not—in fact, will not stand up during a prolonged period of time, but Jack

LINKS WIN OUT IN TEN FRAMES

(Special to The Star.)

ST JOSEPH, Mo., April 18. — Overcoming a three-run lead to tie the score in the eighth inning and to win it in the tenth on two more runs, the Links evened the series here today with the Saints. The final score was 5 to 3.

The Saints scored their three runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings and then were held scoreless for the rest of the game. The Links were unable to tally until the seventh inning, when they made a run and then scored two more in the eighth to go into the tie.

Rassmussen started for Lincoln on the raised dirt, but was removed in favor of a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. The score was tied and Pallas, youthful Lincoln hurler, took the mound. He finished the game, won it and allowed but two hits.

Haid Cracked In Eighth.

Harold Haid started for the Saints and went good for a long time, but started bad in the eighth inning and was nicked heavily. He steadied down in the ninth, but in the tenth was wild and one of the Lincoln runs came as a result of a runner being forced in on a free pass.

Maderas doubled to start the seventh and scored on a single by Shaner. The eighth saw the Links reel off two runs on a walk and two hits.

"Flash" Poles Three-Baser.

The tenth frame spelled defeat for the Saints. Pallas fanned, but Flaskamper thumped a three-bagger and Cooper walked. Maderas popped up to Gilbert and Beck was given a pass to first. Sweeney was walked and Flashkamper was forced in with a run in his pocket Cooper scored on an error by Nufer and Shaner reached first on a fielder's choice. Shaner was caught a minute later on a fielder's choice on Haley's blow. In the last half of the tenth the Saints tried to rally but had little luck with Pallas, who held the home athletes hitless in the final frame. The score:

PRESS BOX OBSERVATIONS.

In evening up the series, the Links looked great and showed genuine rallying power. The whole gang from the Nebraska capital shows plenty of fight and pep.

Pid Purdy, outfielder for Lincoln, who hurt his leg stealing Friday, was unable to play today. It is not known when he will be able to get back in the game, although his injury is not serious.

It was Fred Beck's single to deep right in the eighth inning which tied the score for Lincoln at 3-all. Beck did not get a hit Friday, but the one he delivered today was right at the time when needed.

Harold Haid, Saint pitcher, allowed the Links but one hit until the seventh inning and then the boys from the Cornhusker state got after him and all but drove him to the showers. He fanned eight Lincoln players, but smeared his record with seven walks.

Maderas' flashy fielding again was a feature. The Links' second-base-

First Defeat For Famous Jumper In His College Career

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—Rain slowed down the second annual Ohio relays here this afternoon and although nearly 1,000 midwestern college, university and Olympic stars participated, no world's records were broken.

The sensational defeat of De Hart Hubbard, Michigan negro, featured the meet. Dowding of Georgetown bested him in the broad jump. It was the first defeat in the negro's career as a university track star.

The triathlon was won by Shively of Illinois with 2,156 points. Munz of Michigan was second with 2,11[illegible] points and Taylor of Pennsylvania third with 1,932.

Curtain Descends On Tijuana Races

TIJUANA, Mexico, April 18.—The curtain will ring down on horse racing at the Coffroth track here Sunday afternoon, winding up the most successful season in the history of the race course. The meeting, which started last Thanksgiving day, has played to larger crowds than ever before and over $1,000,000 in prize money has been distributed among horse owners by the Jockey club.

There was a great bustle at the barns today where a thousand stable hands were preparing many thoroughbreds for shipment to northern and eastern tracks. Solid trains of horse cars will depart Monday for Reno, Omaha, Aurora and Louisville.

Husker Sprinter Runs In World Record Time

LOCKE EQUALS WORLD RECORD

(Special to The Star.)

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 18. — The third annual Kansas university relay carnival, staged here this afternoon at the Jayhawker stadium, will pass into history as one of the cinder path classics of all time. World records were either smashed or equalled until the 5,000 spectators were in a frenzy of enthusiasm.

But the central figure of the field of 1,000 athletes, representing a hundred universities, colleges and high schools, was Roland Locke, Missouri Valley conference champion in the sprints, who flashed to the tape in one of the preliminaries of the 100-yard dash in the sensational time of 9 3-5 seconds.

Locke Wonder Sprinter.

Locke came to Lawrence today heralded as Nebraska's "fastest human" and proceeded to demonstrate that he is easily the speediest college sprinter of the present day and the equal of any in the history of the cinder path sport.

Locke's record performance in the century equals the best previous performances of Arthur Duffey, Howard Drew and Charley Paddock, joint holders of the world record in the century dash. After his startling achievement in the preliminary, Locke breezed home in the final of the 100-yard event, being clocked in even ten seconds.

Weir Also In Spotlight.

After Locke had displayed his heels to all opposition in the short sprint, Ed Weir, Nebraska's all-American football tackle, then proceeded to outclass his opponents in the 120-yard hurdles, defeating a field which included Tavlor of Grinnell, Olympic champion and world record holder in the 400-yard low hurdles, and Kinsey, crack hurdler from the University of Illinois. Weir cleared the high sticks in even 15 seconds, which established a new record for the Kansas relays.

Three World Records.

The summary of today's performances discloses that three new world's records were made; two world's records were tied and two new intercollegiate marks set.

A new world's record was made in the half-mile university relay, Illinois winning in one minute and twenty-seven seconds. Another world mark was made by Kansas in the university quarter-mile relay, the time being 42 seconds.

The third world's record to fall was in the university medley relay when the Texas university quartet stepped the distance in 7 minutes 35 3-10 seconds, lowering their own mark, established in 1924, of 7 minutes 38 2-10 seconds.

New Mark in Pole Vault.

Earl McKeown of Kansas State Teachers' college set a new intercollegiate mark in the pole vault with 13 feet 3 7-8 inches.

Schwarze of Wisconsin, with a heave of 49 feet 10 1-8 inches, broke the intercollegiate shot put distance made by R. L. Beatty of Columbia university in 1912.

Northeast high school of Kansas City, Mo., equalled the world's record of one minute 32 2-10 seconds for the half-mile interscholastic record.

The Summary.

Quarter-mile university relay won by Kansas (Powers, Wongwai, Rooney, Asher); Illinois, second; Missouri, third; Iowa and Butler tied for fourth. Time, 42 seconds. (New world's record; former record of 42 1-10 made by Illinois in 1923.)

RESULTS IN HOME COURSE RELAYS

Hastings and Cambridge 1925 Winners In Nebraska High Compet.

Hastings Excelled In Longer Distances; Had Best Time In Two Events.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Hastings and Cambridge high schools won the annual Nebraska interscholastic home course relays, according to announcement made Saturday by Coach Henry F. Schulte of the University of Nebraska. Hastings won the distance four-men events, while Cambridge had the best sprint team.

The four-men combination of both schools will compete in the Drake relays, making the trip to Des Moines as the guest of "Red" Long of the College Book Store.

Six other Nebraska high school teams were entered in the Drake relay carnival as a result of their performance in the home course relays — Kearney, Norfolk, Randolph, Tecumseh, Columbus and Fremont. These schools were represented by teams which finished within the first three in one of the four relay events.

Better Balanced Team.

The Cambridge sprint team was excelled by Kearney in the 440-yard relay and by Norfolk in the 880-yard event, but finished in second place in both sprint relays and presented a better balanced sprint team. The Hastings quartets turned in the best time in the mile and two-mile events.

"The result of the home course relays, in which eighteen teams were entered, is another evidence of the rapid progress Nebraska is making in track," says Coache Henry F. Schulte, head track mentor at the university. "The time turned in by all competitors was exceptionally good and I feel sure Nebraska high schools will be well represented at the Drake carnival."

Hastings Won Two Firsts.

The winning Cambridge sprint team was Mouser, Fricke, Smiley and Greenslit. The winning Hastings two-mile team listed Greenslit, Hohnstein, Fricke and Smiley.

In winning the 440-yard relay banner, the Kearney high school quartet of Miller, Killian, Clark and Lambert, was cloaked in 44 4-10 seconds. Tecumseh and Cambridge teams tied for second place with 44 5-10 seconds. The Kearney mark stands as a home course relay record, as this is the first year the quarter-mile has been a part of the relay program.

Norfolk Breaks Record.

The Norfolk high school team of McGrane, Slaughter, Davenport and Donisthorpe established a new home course record in winning the 880-yard banner. The Norfolk team ran the half-mile in 1 minute 32 4-10 seconds, bettering the 1924 record of 1:32 6-10 set by the Beatrice team. The Cambridge four with 1:32:5 finished second and also bettered the former record. Randolph placed third.

Hastings high, with Mouser, Smiley and Greenslit passing the baton, established a new mile relay record in winning the mile banner. The Adams county five did 3 minutes 33 8-10 seconds. The former record of 3:35:4 was made by Broken Bow in 1923. Randolph finished second in this event and Fremont third.

Two-Mile New Event.

The Hastings team also copped the two-mile banner. The Hastings four of Greenslit, Hohnstein, Fricks and Smiley ran the distance in 8 minutes 28 2-10 seconds. This is a record as this is the first year the event has been listed in the home course program. Columbus was second with a mark of 8:54 and Cambridge third with 8:59.

Here is how the first ten teams finished in each event:

Summary of Results.

440-yard relay—Won by Kearney; second, Tecumseh and Cambridge, tied; fourth, Broken Bow and Fremont tied; sixth, Norfolk; seventh, Scotsbluff; eighth, Omaha Central and Beatrice, tied; tenth, Hastings.

880-yard relay — Won by Norfolk; second, Cambridge; third, Randolph; fourth, Hastings; fifth, Fremont; sxth, Tecumseh; seventh, Scottsbluff eighth, Beatrice and Omaha Central, tied; tenth, Grand Island.

Mile relay — Won by Hastings; second, Randolph; third, Fremont; fourth, Cambridge and Scottsbluf, Creighton Prep; eighth, Beatrice; ninth, Omaha Central; tenth, Genoa.

Two-mile relay—Won by Hastings; second, Columbus; third, Cambridge; fourth, Creighton Prep; fifth, Scottsbluff; sixth, Genoa; seventh, Beatrice; eighth, Crawford.

At Madison Square Garden, New York city last February, Ritola established new times, beating his world record marks in the three-mile rase, which he completed in 13:56 1-5, and in the 5,000-meter event in 14:23 1-5. On the fast Drake track at the sixteenth annual relays, April 24-25, he will endeavor to establish other records and nose ahead of Joie Ray, the American ace, with whom he will compete in a special one-mile event. The latter did the 1000-meter race at Madison Square Garden in the remarkable time of 2:29 3-5.

Locke, Nebraska's sprint ace, who will battle in the Drake 100-yard dash, is a premier thriller. He provided much excitement for the fans at the last Kansas City Athletic club indoor meet when he won 10 points for Nebraska by winning the dash events a nose ahead of Farley, of Missouri, and other sprinters. Two weeks later Locke won the two dash events at the Missouri Valley conference indoor meet.

"Bud" Barr, famous captain of the Notre Dame track team, is a tremendously strong and swift sprinter, typical of Coach Knute Rockne's winning material, who can be counted on to make a spectacular showing in his event at the coming Drake classic.

In the Drake shot put event, Dauss Richerson of Missouri is expected to cop a few honors. He istablished a new record at the last Missouri Valley conference indoor meet when he tossed the iron "pill" for a distance of 46 feet, 10 1-8 inches. In daily practice he is lines.

Bill Britton should do well for Drake university in the middle distance event, as he has been pleasing his trainers in trials at the Bulldog stadium.

Duffy Takes Boxing Lesson From Schoell

Schoell, a rangy fighter, displaying a rapier-left, stood Duffy off at all stages with his lightning jabs to the head and body. Duffy, a natural left-handed boxer himself, found himself up against his master at this brand of fighting and was beaten to the punch continually.

Duffy Good Receiver.

Schoell took the first five rounds, the seventh, eighth and ninth. Duffy managed to hold Schoell even in the sixth and, by a whirlwind finish gained the last. Aside from these momentary flashes, however, he was busy receiving most of the time.

In the seventh round, the eastener caught Duffy with a terrific left to the chest that sent the coast welter stumbling across the ring and onto the ropes.

The battle was cleanly fought, both fighters agreeing beforehand to break on the order of the referee.

Ashland Loses To Central Nine By One-run Margin

ASHLAND, Neb., April 18.—Omaha Central defeated Ashland here Friday in a close baseball game, 5 to 4. Glade of Omaha struck out eight men and Ziegenbein of Ashland fanned six. Bleicher hit a home run. Each team poled four hits.

Batteries—Ziegenbein and Miller for Ashland; Glade and Bleicher for Omaha.

Jim Maloney, Boston Youth, Hailed As Successor To Jack Dempsey.

Eastern Critics of Mitten Sport Strong In Praise Of Newcomer.

A new fistic star, hailed as the next world's heavyweight champion, has flashed across the eastern horizon. Jim Maloney is his name and Boston his home and business address. Like the famous John L. Sullivan, he's all Irish from head to heels.

Tex Rickard, the world's most noted fight promoter of all time, recently published a list of the ten greatest fighting men. The name of Jim Maloney was one of the ten. So very few had ever heard of Maloney that Rickard quite amazed the followers of the fistic pastime by nominating the unknown Boston boy.

But Moliney, despite the popular surprise, apparently lugs real fighting goods. Fight critics of the east—Maloney has done practically all his ring stuff in Beantown and Gotham — stand agreed that the new Boston youngster is the best looking champion prospect of all the maulers aspiring to wear Jack Dempsey's crown.

Dempsey Still Denying.

The same Mr. Dempsey brcke loose only yesterday with another denial that he has retired. Genial Jack has been pulling that denial trick for some time. But that is just a part o fthe Dempsey game. Nevertheless, Jack Dempsey has put his padded mitts away for all time and never will don them again..

There's a reason for his denials, to-wit A recognized, active champion is worth a lot of money in the movies, whereas the value of a retired champion would shrink almost to nothingness. And that's why Jack asserts he want's another fight—perhaps this year, perhaps next, but never actually signing on the dotted line.

Prattle of that sort may not—in fact, will not—stand up during a prolonged period of time, but Jack

LINKS WIN OUT IN TEN FRAMES

(Special to The Star.)

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 18. — Overcoming a three-run lead to tie the score in the eighth inning and to win it in the tenth on two more runs, the Links evened the series here today with the Saints. The final score was 5 to 3.

The Saints scored their three runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings and then were held scoreless for the rest of the game. The Links were unable to tally until the seventh inning, when they made a run and then scored two more in the eighth to go into the tie.

Rassmussen started for Lincoln on the raised dirt, but was removed in favor of a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. The score was tied and Pallas, youthful Lincoln hurler, took the mound. He finished the game, won it and allowed but two hits.

Haid Cracked In Eighth.

Harold Haid started for the Saints and went good for a long time, but started bad in the eighth inning and was nicked heavily. He steadied down in the ninth, but in the tenth was wild and one of the Lincoln runs came as a result of a runner being forced in on a free pass.

Maderas doubled to start the seventh and scored on a single by Shaner. The eighth saw the Links reel off two runs on a walk and two hits.

"Flash" Poles Three-Baser.

The tenth frame spelled defeat for the Saints. Pallas fanned, but Flaskamper thumped a three-bagger and Cooper walked. Maderas popped up to Gilbert and Beck was given a pass to first. Sweeney was walked and Flashkamper was forced in with a run in his pocket. Cooper scored on an error by Nufer and Shaner reached first on a fielder's choice. Shaner was caught a minute later on a fielder's choice on Haley's blow. In the last half of the tenth the Saints tried to rally but had little luck with Pallas, who held the home athletes hitless in the final frame. The score:

PRESS BOX OBSERVATIONS.

In evening up the series, the Links looked great and showed genuine rallying power. The whole gang from the Nebraska capital shows plenty of fight and pep.

Pid Purdy, outfielder for Lincoln, who hurt his leg stealing Friday, was unable to play today. It is not known when he will be able to get back in the game, although his injury is not serious.

It was Fred Beck's single to deep right in the eighth inning which tied the score for Lincoln at 3-all. Beck did not get a hit Friday, but the one he delivered today was right at the time when needed.

Harold Haid, Saint pitcher, allowed the Links but one hit until the seventh inning and then the boys from the Cornhusker state got after him and all but drove him to the showers. He fanned eight Lincoln players, but smeared his record with seven walks.

Maderas' flashy fielding again was a feature. The Links' second-base-

TULSA, April 18.—Des Moines won a slugfest today, taking the odd game of the series from the Oilers, by a score of 27 to 9. Home runs were numerous, Des Moines garnering five and Tulsa two. The Oilers used six pitchers in a vain effort to head off the Demons' attack. Griffin and Wetzel each poled five hits, while Langford, Stuvengen and Knaupp each slammed four. The score:

First Defeat For Famous Jumper In His College Career

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—Rain slowed down the second annual Ohio relays here this afternoon and although nearly 1,000 midwestern college, university and Olympic stars participated, no world's records were broken.

The sensational defeat of De Hart Hubbard, Michigan negro, featured the meet. Dowding of Georgetown bested him in the broad jump. It was the first defeat in the negro's career as a university track star.

The triathlon was won by Shively of Illinois with ,286 points; Munz of Michigan was second with 2,112 points and Taylor of Pennsylvania third with 1,932.

Curtain Descends On Tijuana Races

TIJUANA, Mexico, April 18.—The curtain will ring down on horse racing at the Coffroth track here Sunday afternoon, winding up the most successful season in the history of the race course. The meeting, which started last Thanksgiving day, has played to larger crowds than ever before and over $1,000,000 in prize money has been distributed among horse owners by the Jockey club.

There was a great bustle at the barns today where a thousand stable hands were preparing as many thoroughbreds for shipment to northern and eastern tracks. Solid trains of horse cars will depart Monday for Reno, Omaha, Aurora and Louisville.

Wilber high school walked off with first honors in the first annual invitation track and field championships held at the Havelock high athletic field Saturday afternoon.

Coach Willey's athletes scored 61 points to win the meet. Havelock high finished second with 44 points, Seward third with eleven points and University Place fourth with six points.

Wilber high presented a well balanced squad, leading the field on the cinders and in the weights and jumps. The Saline county youths piled up an array of eight firsts during the afternoon's competition.

Miller Individual Star

George Miller, all around Havelock athlete, was the individual star of the meet. He scored twenty seven of Havelock's points, counting firsts in the 100 yard dash, both hurdles, broad jump and javelin and taking second in the discus.

Miller tossed the javelin 157 feet 5 inches to win the spear event. The present state high school record is 144 feet and was made by Roland of Beatrice in the 1924 meet.

Time in all events was good considering the fact that the track was rather loose and soft. The Havelock oval is one fifth mile and the curves are sharp.

Binger Wins Two Races

Binger of Wilber scored a double victory in the distance events. He ran the mile in 4 minutes 57 seconds and the half mile in 2 minutes 17 seconds, leading the field easily in both events.

Tom Kuzelka, Wilber, looked good in the weight events. He heaved the shot 45 feet 4 1-2 inches and hurled the discus 99 feet 4 1-2 inches. He was second in the javelin throw.

NEW FIGHT STAR BLAZING IN EAST

has been getting by with it for quite a while and may be expected to play his game until the fight commissions, the promoters and the public refuse to stand farther for the Dempsey bunk.

Maloney Bids for Crown

Weary of waiting for Dempsey to come out of his shell and confident that Jack never will emerge, Tommy Gibbons, Harry Wills and George Godfrey and other prominent maulers in the heavyweight brigade with quite good reason have been demanding a showdown. That's where Maloney comes in. The Boston boy, the new John L, is demanding that his name be entered in the list of entries in the running for the crown which is about to pass from Dempsey's brow.

That Maloney is not a mere dud, that there is merit in his contentions is evident from his record and the praise bestowed on this record by eastern critics who have seen the Boston youngster in the ring game only a year do his bit with the mittens. Anyway Jim Maloney is strictly in the race for Dempsey's title as the following communication from John McGrath of Boston, Maloney's manager, addressed to The Star will attest.

Scribes Do Some Boosting

I would like to have a few minutes of your time to read the inclosed clipping showing what Howard Reynolds, sports editor of the Boston Post, has to say about Jim Maloney, the coming heavyweight champion.

Damon Runyon of the New York American and Hearst newspapers in his issue of March 21 picks Maloney as the next heavyweight champion.

Grantland Rice of the New York Herald Tribune and one of the leading writers in the world picks Maloney as the next heavyweight champion.

Bill Cunningham, sports writer of the Boston Post, proclaimed six months ago that Maloney was the best looking heavyweight in the country.

Lawrence Sweeney of the Boston Globe mentioned the fact that Maloney would be the man to wrest the title from Dempsey within a year.

Jack Conway of the Boston American, known the world over for picking winners in boxing contests, names Maloney as the winner over Dempsey if ever this pair meet in a ring.

George Underwood of the New York Telegram Mail in all his stories picks Maloney as the best looking heavyweight seen in New York in years and as the man that will succeed Dempsey for his crown.

Wilbur Wood of the New York Sun says if Maloney meets Dempsey in a ring Maloney will be the next champion.

Rickard and Edgren

I am dickering with promoters all over the country for the services of Jim Maloney. Harry Wills turned down two offers to box Maloney in New York. Charley Weinert has a contract to fill with Maloney for three months, but when the promoter wants action Weinert is always sick (he gets sick when he hears Maloney's name). Maloney defeated Joe Stoessel in the semi final to the Wills-Firpo bout at Boyle's Thirty Acres. Stoessel was looked upon as a possible contender for Dempsey's title until Maloney shattered his hopes. Maloney has defeated Sully Montgomery in three rounds, Joe McCann one round, Wolf Larsen five rounds, Battling McCreary one round, Tommy Gardner three rounds, Neddo Flannagan two rounds, Sailor Maxted one round and defeated Jack Sharkey and Romero Rojas, both of whom have defeated Jack Renault.

Maloney is 21 years old, has been boxing less than one year and experts like the above mentioned pick him to be the next champion.

Yours truly,

JOHN M. GRATH
Manager of Jim Maloney

KEARNS BIDDING FOR NEW STABLE

Dempsey Manager Concedes That Jack Has Mixed In Last Fight.

Ace Hudkins Is One of Four Scrappers Whom Kearns Wishes to Manage.

LOS ANGELES, April 18—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, may never again defend his title according to the belief expressed here tonight by his manager Jack Kearns.

"Dempsey is virtually out of the fight game," said Kearns, "but I am in to stay."

Kearns declared he was after the following men:

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion.

Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight considered by Kearns as having a bright chance to succeed to Dempsey's lofty pugilistic position.

Hayden Phythian, University of Southern California football star and a splendid middleweight prospect according to Kearns.

Ace Hudkins of Lincoln, Neb, considered one of the best lightweights on the Pacific coast and a likely contender for national honors.

"I am going right after this stable," Kearns said. "I think I can say I have not been managing Dempsey all these years without learning something about handling boxers."

UNI REGISTRARS VISIT LINCOLN

Officials Of Eastern Schools Stop Here On Return From Convention.

Registrars of six foremost American universities were in Lincoln Saturday afternoon and made a trip through the new capitol where they called upon Governor McMullen and visited the agricultural college and the university city campus. They also were taken on a sightseeing trip through the residential section over the boulevards and to the Country club.

The registrars stopped in Lincoln at the request of Miss Florence McGahey, registrar at the University of Neebraska, who, with the others, had attended the annual meeting of the national registrars association at Boulder, Colo, during the past week. They were on their way home from the convention.

Upon their arrival at the Burlington station the visitors were met by W S Whitten, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and Lou Runnells of the College of Agriculture, who went with them on the sightseeing trip.

The easterners expressed great admiration for the beauty of the city's residential district and commented on the superior school buildings.

Those in the party were:

G P Tuttle, University of Illinois, Urbana, president American Association of College Registrars.

J Gilbert Quick, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa, secretary of the association.

A Calvin Frantz, bursar, Temple university, Philadelphia, Pa.

S Hoffman, Pennsylvania State college, State College, Pa.

Ira M Smith, University of Chicago, Chicago.

Franklin Field, the athletic grounds of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, is to be enlarged to seat 106,000 spectators. The addition will make it the largest stadium in the country.

Jack MacAuliffe, a heavyweight champion in 1893, and Jimmy Barry, bantamweight champion in 1898, are the only boxers who have retired from the ring never to return. Other boxers of prominence who returned have been beaten.

Wilber high school walked off with first honors in the first annual invitation track and field championships held at the Havelock high athletic field Saturday afternoon.

Coach Willey's athletes scored 61 points to win the meet. Havelock high finished second with 44 points. Seward third with eleven points and University Place fourth with six points.

Wilber high presented a well-balanced squad, leading the field on the cinders and in the weights and jumps. The Saline county youths piled up an array of eight firsts during the afternoon's competition.

Miller Individual Star.

George Miller, all-around Havelock athlete, was the individual star of the meet. He scored twenty-seven of Havelock's points, counting firsts in the 100-yard dash, both hurdles, broad jump and javelin and taking second in the discus.

Miller tossed the javelin 157 feet 5 inches to win the spear event. The present state high school record is 144 feet and was made by Roland of Beatrice in the 1924 meet.

Time in all events was good, considering the fact that the track was rather loose and soft. The Havelock oval is one-fifth mile and the curves are sharp.

Binger Wins Two Races.

Binger of Wilber scored a double victory in the distance events. He ran the mile in 4 minutes 57 seconds and the half-mile in 2 minutes 17 seconds, leading the field easily in both events.

Tom Kuzelka, Wilber, looked good in the weight events. He heaved the shot 43 feet 4 1-2 inches and hurled the discus 99 feet 4 1-2 inches.. He was second in the javelin throw.

NEW FIGHT STAR BLAZING IN EAST

has been getting by with it for quite a while and maybe expected to play his game until the fight commissions, the promoters and the public refuse to stand farther for the Dempsey bunk.

Maloney Bids for Crown.

Weary of waiting for Dempsey to come out of his shell and confident that Jack never will emerge, Tommy Gibbons, Harry Wills and George Godfrey and other prominent maulers in the heavyweight brigade, with quite good reason, have been demanding a showdown. That's where Maloney comes in. The Boston boy, the new John L., is demanding that his name be entered in the list of entries in the running for the crown which is about to pass from Dempsey's brow.

That Maloney is not a mere "dud," that there is merit in his contentions, is evident from his record and the praise bestowed on this record by eastern critics who have seen the Boston youngster, in the ring game only a year, do his bit with the mittens. Anyway, Jim Maloney is strictly in the race for Dempsey's title, as the following communication from John McGrath of Boston, Maloney's manager, addressed to The Star, will attest:

Scribes Do Some Boosting.

"I would like to have a few minutes of your time to read the inclosed clipping showing what Howard Reynolds, sports editor of the Boston Post, has to say about Jim Maloney, the coming heavyweight champion.

"Damon Ruyon of the New York American and Hearst newspapers in his issue of March 21, picks Maloney as the next heavyweight champion.

"Grantland Rice of the New York Herald-Tribune and one of the leading writers in the world picks Maloney as the next heavyweight champion.

"Bill Cunningham, sports writer of the Boston Post, proclaimed six months ago that Maloney was the best looking heavyweight in the country.

"Lawrence Sweeney of the Boston Globe mentioned the fact that Maloney would be the man to wrest the title from Dempsey within a year.

"Jack Conway of the Boston American, known the world over for picking winners in boxing contests, names Maloney as the winner over Dempsey if ever this pair meet in a ring.

"George Underwood of the New York Telegram-Mail in all his stories picks Maloney as the best looking heavyweight seen in New York in years, and as the man that will succeed Dempsey for his crown.

"Wilbur Wood of the New York Sun says if Maloney meets Dempsey in a ring Maloney will be the next champion.

Rickard and Edgren.

"Tex Rickard ranked Maloney as one of the ten leading heavyweights in the world.

"Robert Edgren of the New York World and one of the foremost writers in the world, picks Maloney as one of the leading heavyweights in the world.

"I am dickering with promoters all over the country for the services of Jim Maloney. Harry Wills turned down two offers to box Maloney in New York. Charley Weinert has a contract to fill with Maloney for three months, but when the promoter wants action Weinert is always sick (he gets sick when he hears Maloney's name). Maloney defeated Joe Stoessel in the semi-final to the Wills-Firpo bout at Boyle's Thirty Acres. Stoessel was looked upon as a possible contended for Dempsey's title until Maloney shattered his hopes. Maloney has defeated Sully Montgomery in three rounds, Joe McCann one round, Wolf Larson five rounds, Battling McCreary one round, Tommy Gardner three rounds, Neddo Flannagan two rounds, Sailor Maxted one round and defeated Jack Sharkey and Romero Rojas, both of whom have defeated Jack Renault.

"Maloney is 21 years old, has been boxing less than one year and experts like the above mentioned pick him to be the next champion. Yours truly,

"JOHN M 'GRATH,
"Manager of Jim Maloney."

Dempsey Manager Concedes That Jack Has Mixed In Last Fight.

Ace Hudkins Is One of Four Scrappers Whom Kearns Wishes to Manage.

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, may never again defend his title, according to a belief expressed here tonight by his manager, Jack Kearns.

"Dempsey is virtually out of the fight game," said Kearns, "but I am in to stay."

Kearns declared he was after the following men:

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion.

Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, considered by Kearns as having a bright chance to succeed to Dempsey's lofty pugilistic position.

Hayden Phythian, University of Southern California football star and a splendid middleweight prospect, according to Kearns.

Ace Hudkins of Lincoln, Neb., considered one of the best lightweights on the Pacific coast and a likely contender for national honors.

"I am going right after this stable," Kearns said. "I think I can say I have not been managing Dempsey all these years without learning something about handling boxers."

PLANT AS MANY BEETS AS USUAL

Acreage In North Platte Valley To Be Up to Average.

In addition to this the agents say there will be between 2 000 and 3 000 more acres contracted before planting is finished This is as much as was harvested in 1922 or 1923 but not as much as in 1924 the heaviest year of the history of the company when 68 455 acres were planted In 1922 the acreage was only 49 255 while in 1923 it was 52 718 acres In the Bridgeport territory where 3 500 acres were planted last year there are already contracted over 2 000 acres and more being signed up each day

COURT EXCLUDES MAYHEW OPINION

Alienist Not Allowed To Give Conclusions In Ayr Case.

Contestant Rests In Will Case Being Tried At Nelson.

(Special to The Star.)

NELSON, Neb., April 18.—The case wherein Marshall Ayer is contesting the will of his father, Wilbur O. Ayer held the attention of District court all of Saturday.

Fred Easterday of the First Trust company of Lincoln, trustee under the will, completed his testimony. The witness gave a detailed report of the financial condition of the Ayer estate and all the money paid the divorced wife in settlement of their property rights.

The deposition of C. G. Ray, an associate of Mr. Ayer, living in Mexico City, was read and contestants endeavored to show that Ayer was possessed of peculiar habits before be became engaged in his later venture of farming.

The undertaker who cared for the body of Ayer after his death was the next witness. He reviewed the circumstances of his professional service and the conclusions he and attending physicians had reached and that he had reported to the county coroner. All of these agreed that death had been the result of an accidental gunshot wound.

Dr. J. M. Mayhew, the alienist witness from Lincoln, was again called to the stand at 11 o'clock and the balance of the day was taken up with this witness, which concluded the contestant's presentation of the case.

A hypothetical question, purporting to contain all the pertinent points brought out by the contestant was put to Dr. Mayhew. Propenents objected and the court sustained the poin. When witness was asked if he had an opinion as to the sanity or insanity of Ayer objection was again made and sustained.

The witness was asked if, assuming that questions were true, would you say that the man was in a proper state of mind to dispose of this property with regard to the objects of his bounty? Proponent's objections were sustained by the court.

The case was adjourned until Monday morning. Two sisters of the deceased are among the principal witnesses of the proponents.

Six Yelping Dogs In Alliance Sewer

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 18.—Mysterious sounds of yelping dogs, issuing apparently from the center of the earth in a certain neighborhood of Alliance caused the residents of that district much apprehension for a time, and many uncanny stories were told of their origin.

Finally, Chief of Police Patterson was appealed to, and located the sound. He opened a manhole in the sewer, when six half-starved yelping dogs were found in the sewer. They were soon brought out and seemed pleased to get into the fresh air again.

It is thought that they entered the sewer at the outlet below the city park and continued up the drain to where they were discovered, being unable to find their way back.

This addition will more than triple the acreage in grapes in this district, and it was already the largest grape shipping district in the state.

The new vines being set out are practically all of the Concord variety, which are good yielders and the fruit is of large, juicy quality.

In the past about fifty acres has been kept in grapes near Brownville, but the new plantings will raise the vineyards to over 150 acres all told, and extending in all directions from town on the slopes and hills.

The heaviest and oldest grower in this field is J. S. Furnas, a descendent of the early governor of the state, who has averaged about twenty acres, but his output in the future will be from about forty acres. Other purchasers of the new vines are D. Jones, Joe McClary, Dr. C. Spurgeon, C. S. Snyder, and others.

Twelve carloads of grapes were shipped from Brownville last season, twenty cars are figured on this year, with good weather, and when the new vines reach their best bearing stage, about three years after setting out, it is expected to ship an average of sixty to 100 carloads of grapes annually from here.

PLANT AS MANY BEETS AS USUAL

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 18.—There now seems but little doubt that the actual acreage of beets planted in this section this season will equal the crop of last year, according to reports of field men of the Great Western and Holly Sugar companies.

Some few growers in the valley, who formerly dealt with the Great Western company, early this year, when the deadlock between the beet growers' association and the company was on, contracted with the Holly people and that company will have more than 10,000 acres for its Sheridan, Wyo., factory this year, as against a little over 9,000 last year. But with that, the Great Western has already contracted approximately 48,000 acres, which is more than the average for a period of years.

In addition to this, the agents say there will be between 2,000 and 3,000 more acres contracted before planting is finished. This is as much as was harvested in 1922 or 1923, but not as much as in 1924, the heaviest year of the history of the company, when 68,455 acres were planted. In 1922, the acreage was only 49,255, while in 1923, it was 52,718 acres. In the Bridgeport territory, where 3,500 acres were planted last year, there are already contracted over 2,000 acres, and more being signed up each day.

Striking Posters Shown In Humane Society Exhibit

Approximately five hundred posters, the work of Lincoln school children, comprise the Humane Society exhibit which is being displayed during the entire week on the fifth floor of the Rudge and Guenzel store.

Every city school has a group of posters and, in spite of the number, there is no exact duplication. The children created and designed the posters themselves and some of them are very striking. Color work predominates although there are some especially clever and attractive ones in the black and white. There are one or two ideas done in the silhouette style.

The preliminary awards will be for group work, and then the individual winners will be chosen from the best groups. Bird houses and bird baths of various styles will be offered as prizes.

The winners of the local poster contest will have their work sent to Albany, N. Y., the the national headquarters of the American Humane society. Cash prizes to the amount of four hundred dollars will be awarded at the final choosing.

There is no limit set on the number of posters to go to New York. Acoording to C. E. McClain, secretary of the Lincoln society, any poster that looks as if it might take some sort of a prize in Albany, will be sent.

Railroad Is Sued By Seward Farmer For $2500 Damages

A suit for the recovery of $2,500 damages against the Burlington railroad company was filed in Federal court Saturday morning. The suit was originally filed in District court at Seward by Walter Stoltz but was removed to Federal court on the motion of the railroad company.

Stolz claims that the railroad dug certain drainage ditches along its right of way, bordering his farm, which changed the course of the drainage in such a manner as to throw the entire flood of water, following heavy rains, across his land.

The flow of this water, he alleged, has so eroded his land as to have formed a deep cut or ravine, making it impossible to farm that particular part of the land.

E. O. Haschenberger Takes Over Full Interest In Firm.

The company was incorporated in 1902. Mr. Haschenberger was one of the incorporators. He first became connected with the firm in 1890.

As the company was originally established more than thirty years ago by B. O. Kostka, it dealt only in drugs, paints and glass. Following the incorporation in 1902 the business gradually developed into a physicians supply company.

Upon its removal to the present location, 143 South Eleventh street, the business became exclusively that of furnishing physicians, surgeons and hospital supplies.

Mr. Kostka came to Lincoln forty years ago. After working for a time in a store he went into business for himself on South Tenth street. Later the store was moved to 1230 O street and still later to 1224 O street. Mr. Kostka retired from active business in 1918 and has been living in California since that time.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 18.

Grains, with the exception of wheat, which was off several cents, closed virtually unchanged in the short session here today.

Wheat closed 3@4¼c lower; corn ⅛@¼c higher and Oats ⅛@⅜c lower.

The opening found wheat irregular with September the strongest and May weak, but after a few sales this position was reversed and the market settled down for a full session. The grain pits showed slight irregularity at the opening today.

WHEAT—Wheat started ⅜c higher to 1¼c lower, May showing the decline and September the advance. Trade was small and scattered.

CORN—Corn was unchanged to ⅜c lower, trade being light and extremely nervous.

OATS—Oats were unchanged to ⅛c lower, with small scattered trade.

PROVISIONS—Provisions started unchanged to a shade higher.

Pages That Interest All

Every newspaper reader has his favorite page.

You know the man who turns immediately to the sporting section to see the outcome of the game in which he is interested. You know the woman who hastily scans the society news and then peruses the magazine section. You know the investor who can hardly wait to see if a certain stock has risen or fallen.

But there is one part of the paper where they can all meet on common ground — the A-B-C Classified Section.

There the sportsman, the woman and the investor will find many items of interest to them—interesting in the fact that they mean a saving of time, trouble and money.

It will pay you to become a consistent reader of the Star's classified section.

Pages That Interest All

Every newspaper reader has his favorite page.

You know the man who turns immediately to the sporting section to see the outcome of the game in which he is interested. You know the woman who hastily scans the society news and then peruses the magazine section. You know the investor who can hardly wait to see if a certain stock has risen or fallen.

But there is one part of the paper where they can all meet on common ground — the A-B-C Classified Section.

There the sportsman, the woman and the investor will find many items of interest to them—interesting in the fact that they mean a saving of time, trouble and money.

It will pay you to become a consistent reader of the Star's classified section.

Concrete Block Garages

Convenient Economical, Fire Safe

The amount of money invested in even the lowest priced automobile justifies a substantial garage that will give the required protection against weather theft and fire

With a garage on the home grounds the owner has his car always within reach and where he can use his spare time in keeping it clean and in good running order He also has a place to keep oil spare tires and other car supplies With the car near the house there will be less danger from fire tampering and pilfering as it will always be under the owner's eye

Wherever possible the material used in the walls and roof of the garage should be the same as that of the house Concrete block are suitable and practical for all classes of garages from the small one car building to the types with separate rooms for several cars such as are built for the accommodation of car owners living in apartment houses The block may be finished in stucco to harmonize with the house by the addition in the cement mix of color to produce the desired tint

An essential feature of garage design which is incorporated in these plans is the wide eaves or overhang which serve as a protection to the owner from rain or dripping water when locking the doors during wet weather A door at the side will be found convenient for use when the car is not to be taken out

Garages are often heated from the house plant although there are many small inexpensive garage heaters that give perfect satisfaction A flue for separate heating is shown in one of the floor plans and may be easily included in the others

Special care should be given to the selection of the hardware for supporting and operating the large movable doors Doors that stick and bind are a nuisance and an extra $10 spent on good hardware will more than repay the owner in comfort and convenience

A garage should be built to allow for plenty of working space [illegible] the [illegible] be of the smaller type it is good [illegible] and even though the owner's car [illegible] economy to build a garage to accommodate a large car thus anticipating future needs

Bean Soup Girls and Sauerkraut Lassies of Lincoln Meet on Sly to Satisfy Inner Pangs

THEN THERE ARE THOSE WHO JUST CRAVE SPARE RIBS AND SAUERKRAUT AND TAKE TURNS ENTERTAINING THE CLUB.
I MAY BE AWFULLY QUEER AND OLD-FASHIONED BUT I WOULD MUCH PREFER A BOWL OF HOT BEAN SOUP TO THESE SANDWICHES AND TEA
WHY MY DEAR YOU'RE A MAN AFTER ME OWN HEART. LETS MAKE SOME BEAN SOUP SOME DAY
WE'VE HAD SUCH A LOVELY TIME AT YOUR PARTY
AND THIS IS HOW IT ALL STARTED.
OZ BLACK '25
THESE LADIES, ALL PROMINENT IN LINCOLN SOCIETY, DRESS IN THE STYLES OF TWENTY OR THIRTY YEARS AGO FOR THEIR BEAN PARTIES
AND ALSO THERE ARE THE MIDNIGHT RAMBLERS WHO START RAMBLING HOME SHARPLY AT THE STROKE OF TWELVE.

Perfectos pall upon my taste,
I'm sick to death of goupe
Today I crave rare food to eat
Bring me some hot bean soup

No peacocks tongues will serve today—
My fancy farther leans
I beg a food more seldom found
Soup made from boiling beans

Leave out the list of cakes and pies
And pass the salad group
More tempting foods to me appeal
Bring me some hot bean soup

BY LYNNELLE

A pretty little thing called 'The Bean Song' from Sipsummor" Its the chant of the bean union sung at their debaucheries where they imbibe bean soup to their heart's content, and where they have it for the first third and last course

This bean union is sort of an inner circle composed of prominent Lincoln society women who all have the same weakness— bean soup There are eight of them all told and for several years they have kept this mad passion for bean broth entirely their own secret But skeletons will rattle sooner or later, and it was just recently and quite by accident that the soup secret leaked out

Every so often these eight women crave hot bean soup and meet together at each other's home to satisfy their appetite There they sit all eight of them around the table with yearning eyes and watering mouths and with looks so lean and hungry that they would put Cassius to shame First they have bean soup and then they have some more bean soup They have bean soup until the last little drop in the old iron kettle has disappeared and then if they are still hungry they have to be content with a bit of fruit salad

Real Popularity

The soup is made each time in a huge aluminum-iron kettle and Oh that kettle!

The old bucket that hung in somebody's well was certainly popular we'll admit but it didn't have a thing on this old iron kettle that sets on the gas ranges of various club members from time to time filled to the brim with bean soup

This little organization started a few years ago when two or three of the members who knew each other very well and who met occasionally at various social affairs discovered that they each had a fondness for bean soup They decided that they would indulge in their favorite food every so often and no one would be any the wiser But before long they found more kindred souls and the organization increased its membership from three to eight

Flappers

Well once but not now These devotees of the navy bean are all married women and some of them have grown children

For some reason or other they seem to be a bit ashamed of this weakness for soup and refuse to have their names published They are popular though one of them is the wife of a prominent attorney another's husband is a musician a third is the wife of a [illegible] dealer and the husband of another is a wholesale dealer in furniture The husband of another of the members has [illegible] of one of the most popular [illegible] and—well you can see that necessity does not dictate the choice of their prized delicacy

Once in a while they will have a little variety and dress themselves all up in party clothes of twenty or thirty years ago which they have on hand or borrow They say it is quite an inspiring sight to see these eight ladies garbed in their best bib and tucker adn sipping bean soup

This Bunch Not So Particular

It has not yet been decided which is the worst bean soup or spare ribs and kraut There is another organization which like the bean soup girls does not have a regular meeting time but the longer the time between meetings the more they eat so it behooves the hostess to see that the dishes are [illegible]

Spare ribs

Kraut

And they love [illegible]

Dinty Moore's corn beef and cabbage was never to Jiggs what spare ribs and kraut are to these women

There is a slight deviation in form, however in this little club Spare-ribs-and-kraut seems to be the main stand-by but if one of the members cooks something else better than she does this she may have that other dish if she chooses

For instance one of the members of this club can bake macaroni and cheese until it is fit for the gods When she entertains the spare rib fiends she serves macaroni and cheese and forgets the spare ribs Another member can make the most delectable waffles and so she has a waffle party whenever the girls meet at her home

But spare ribs is the favorite dish, and happy the hostess who can cook this to satisfy the fastidious taste of her guests

Neither of these clubs play bridge Somehow or other they leave fashionable society behind when they meet and spend the afternoon in an old fashioned way, just as they should after old fashioned food They sew, and talk of course One can never sew so well as when she is talking nor talk so well as when sewing

Take the 'Tat and Chatter' club for instance The name would lead us to believe that the members were certainly there and over when it came to tatting They would have to be or they would never be able to chatter and tat all at the same time Only those who have had experience know that just a professional tatter can talk while working The others spend their time taking out ten knots for every word

Names of clubs are often misleading, however Take the Stormy Night club," for instance One would think that the members revelled in stormy weather You would naturally suppose that neither hail nor sleet nor snow nor rain would have any terrors for these valiant folks You could just picture them all meeting on stormy nights and when your imagination gets to the point where you envy them you learn that they never have met on a stormy night yet They postpone their meeting until the weather is fair

And the Saturday Night' club is just as bad Wouldn't you think it would meet on Saturday Night even once in a while? Well, it doesn't It meets on Thursday night Why it is called the Saturday Night club, or why it meets on Thursday, or why they don't call it the Thursday Night club and meet on Saturday night, still remains a mystery

Sounds Bad, But Not Really

The Night Hawks would have us believe that it is a peppy organization out all hours of the night flitting here, there and everywhere Perhaps the members do all that the name implies but we don't know The disappointment in the Midnight Ramblers was so keen that we refuse to build our hopes on any other like organization

Then too, take the Hokomok club, and the Wiki-Wiki, you would never dream of finding such names outside of the South Seas or Hawaii but here they are right in Lincoln and composed of very circumspect people who probably never saw an honest-to-goodness native Hawaiian costume, let alone wear one

The Strollers never stroll Each member has her own car and she always takes it or rides in someone's else

And the Copper Kettle—well if we didn't know positively that this is a very dignified and sedate group of women we might think they were just the contrary Copper kettles are popular these days Besides the Copper Kettle was in existence before the other copper kettle was necessary so that's all right

The Twilight club now never met at twilight in all of the time it has been established It meets in the evening after dinner and the members play cards That's all the excitement there is to that club

But taking them all in all there is none to equal the Bean Soup club and the Spare Ribs and Kraut bunch

Said one of the Bean Soup members to a guest one day

Well I must have the bean soup girls in'

And then the story came out The hostess was surprised to think anyone could see anything funny in the organization

I never thought of it as being especially funny ' said this lady

THEN THERE ARE THOSE WHO JUST CRAVE SPARE RIBS AND SAUERKRAUT AND TAKE TURNS ENTERTAINING THE CLUB.
I MAY BE AWFULLY QUEER AND OLD-FASHIONED BUT I WOULD MUCH PREFER A BOWL OF HOT BEAN SOUP TO THESE SANDWICHES AND TEA
WHY, MY DEAR YOU'RE A MAN AFTER ME OWN HEART. LETS MAKE SOME BEAN SOUP SOME DAY
WE'VE HAD SUCH A LOVELY TIME AT YOUR PARTY
OZ BLACK '25
THESE LADIES, ALL PROMINENT IN LINCOLN SOCIETY, DRESS IN THE STYLES OF TWENTY OR THIRTY YEARS AGO FOR THEIR BEAN PARTIES
AND ALSO THERE ARE THE MIDNIGHT RAMBLERS WHO START RAMBLING HOME SHARPLY AT THE STROKE OF TWELVE.

Perfectos pall upon my taste,
I'm sick to death of goupe,
Today I crave rare food to eat,
Bring me some hot bean soup.

No peacocks' tongues will serve today—
My fancy farther leans,
I beg a food more seldom found:
Soup made from boiling beans.

Leave out the list of cakes and pies
And pass the salad group
More tempting foods to me appeal,
Bring me some hot bean soup.

BY LYNNELLE.

A pretty little thing called "The Bean Song," from "Sipsummor." Its the chant of the bean union, sung at their debaucheries where they imbibe bean soup to their heart's content, and where they have it for the first, third, and last course.

This bean union is sort of an inner circle composed of prominent Lincoln society women who all have the same weakness— bean soup. There are eight of them, all told, and for several years they have kept this mad passion for bean broth entirely their own secret. But skeletons will rattle sooner or later, and it was just recently, and quite by accident, that the soup secret leaked out.

Every so often these eight women crave hot bean soup and meet together at each other's home to satisfy their appetite. There they sit, all eight of them around the table, with yearning eyes and watering mouths, and with looks so lean and hungry tht they would put Cassius to shame. First they have bean soup, and then they have some more bean soup. They have bean soup until the last little drop in the old iron kettle has disappeared and then if they are still hungry they have to be content with a bit of fruit salad.

Real Popularity.

The soup is made each time in a huge aluminum-iron kettle, and Oh that kettle!

The old bucket that hung in somebody's well was certainly popular, we'll admit, but it didn't have a thing on this old iron kettle that sets on the gas ranges of various club members from time to time, filled to the brim with bean soup.

This little organization started a few years ago when two or three of the members who knew each other very well and who met occasionally at various social affairs, discovered that they each had a fondness for bean soup. They decided that they would indulge in their favorite food every so often and no one would be any the wiser. But before long they found more kindred souls and the organization increased its membership from three to eight.

Flappers?

Well, once, but not now. These devotees of the navy bean are all married women and some of them have grown children.

For some reason or other they seem to be a bit ashamed of this weakness for soup and refuse to have their names published. They are popular, though; one of them is the wife of a prominent attorney, another's husband is a music man; a third is the wife of a coal dealer, and the husband of another is a wholesale dealer in furniture; the husband of another of the members has the agency for one of the most popular automobiles, and—well, you can see that necessity does not dictate the choice of their prized delicacy.

Once in a while they will have a little variety and dress themselves all up in party clothes of twenty or thirty years ago which they have on hand, or borrow. They say it is quite an inspiring sight to see these eight ladies garbed in their best bib and tucker, adn sipping bean soup.

This Bunch Not So Particular.

It has not yet been decided which is the worst, bean soup, or spare ribs and kraut. There is another organization, which, like the bean soup girls, does not have a regular meeting time, but the longer the time between meetings the more they eat, so it behooves the hostesses to see that the dates are not far apart.

Spare ribs!

Kraut!

And they love it.

Dinty Moore's corn beef and cabbage was never to Jiggs what spare ribs and kraut are to these women.

There is a slight deviation in form, however, in this little club. Spare-ribs-and-kraut seems to be the main stand-by, but if one of the members cooks something else better than she does this, she may have that other dish if she chooses.

For instance, one of the members of this club can bake macaroni and cheese until it is fit for the gods. When she entertains the spare rib fiends, she serves macaroni and cheese and forgets the spare ribs. Another member can make the most delectable waffles, and so she has a waffle party whenever the girls meet at her home.

But spare ribs is the favorite dish, and happy the hostess who can cook this to satisfy the fastidious taste of her guests.

Neither of these clubs play bridge. Somehow or other they leave fashionable society behind when they meet, and spend the afternoon in an old fashioned way, just as they should after old-fashioned food. They sew, and talk, of course. One can never sew so well as when she is talking, nor talk so well as when sewing.

Take the "Tat and Chatter" club, for instance. The name would lead us to believe that the members were certainly there and over when it came to tatting. They would have to be or they would never be able to chatter and tat all at the same time. Only those who have had experience know that just a professional tatter can talk while working. The others spend their time taking out ten knots for every word.

Names of clubs are often misleading, however. Take the "Stormy Night club," for instance. One would think that the members revelled in stormy weather. You would naturally suppose that neither hail nor sleet nor snow nor rain would have any terrors for these valiant folks. You could just picture them all meeting on stormy nights and when your imagination gets to the point where you envy them, you learn that they never have met on a stormy night yet. They postpone their meeting until the weather is fair.

And the "Saturday Night" club is just as bad. Wouldn't you think it would meet on Saturday Night even once in a while? Well, it doesn't. It meets on Thursday night. Why it is called the Saturday Night club, or why it meets on Thursday, or why they don't call it the Thursday Night club and meet on Saturday night, still remains a mystery.

Once upon a time there was a club called the Midnight Ramblers right here in Lincoln. It was the most provocative name, and one never spoke of the Midnight Ramblers without envy. The name implied that the members began their ramblings at midnight—but no, indeed. That was the hour they finished them. Each little club member was home and in bed before the striking of the midnight hour.

No one can deny but what the Fifty-Fifty club sounds like a socialist organization. But it isn't, really, it is a very proper dancing club to which some of the most distinguishing people in town belong. It had its origin about ten years ago when two or three families in the same neighborhood wanted to learn to dance and would spend their evenings together at this pastime. The membership grew and finally it was decided that there would be just fifty members. Some of the older members say that the second fifty had to do with age, but there are those who strenuously deny that statement, so we'll let it drop right there.

Sounds Bad, But Not Really.

The Night Hawks would have us believe that it is a peppy organization, out all hours of the night flitting here, there and everywhere. Perhaps the members do all that the name implies, but we don't know. The disappointment in the Midnight Ramblers was so keen that we refuse to build our hopes on any other like organization.

Then, too, take the Hokomok club, and the Wiki-Wiki, you would never dream of finding such names outside of the South Seas or Hawaii, but here they are right in Lincoln and composed of very circumspect people who probably never saw an honest-to-goodness native Hawaiian costume, let alone wear one.

The Strollers never stroll. Each member has her own car and she always takes it or rides in someone's else.

And the Copper Kettle—well if we didn't know positively that this is a very dignified and sedate group of women we might think they were just the contrary. Copper kettles are popular these days. Besides the Copper Kettle was in existence before the other copper kettle was necessary so that's all right.

The Twilight club now never met at twilight in all of the time it has been established. It meets in the evening after dinner and the members play cards. That's all the excitement there is to that club.

We heard of a Frigidaire club which is composed of high school girls. The members meet once every two weeks and the luncheons they serve are ice box affairs. Each member fixes a tray of ice box dainties and a prize generally a box of candy is given to the one whose tray is voted to be the best.

But taking them all in all there is none to equal the Bean Soup club, and the Spare Ribs and Kraut bunch.

Said one of the Bean Soup members to a guest one day:

"Well, I must have the bean soup girls in.'

"Bean soup girls?"

And then the story came out. The hostess was surprised to think anyone could see anything funny in the organization.

"I never thought of it as being especially funny," said this lady.

BY LULU MAE COE

Oh—

Oh h—h— if Flo Ziegfeld could only see 'em now

There'd be seven new faces in the Follies and they'd all have Lincoln as their address

Not mere dancers they who just prance about and try to kick the stage lights down

Never

They're tumblers now

Not tumbling for a shiek or down stairs or over a crack but tumbling for tumbling alone

They're skinning their elbows and bumping the powder off their noses and seeing all the little stars of the heavens in their cracked heads as they go o[illegible] and under but never around

And they are so much better to look upon than the little brown men who go arming and legging it about the two-a day snapping remarks in unintelligible languages or stoically taking manifold bumps

They are charming young things bobbed every single one of em and I do believe a little rouge and certainly a little flavored whitening on their pert young noses

They aren't above squealing when they hit the floor instead of the mat And they don't mind coming up in the middle of a roll to discuss the possibility of a date tonight And it doesn't bother them to fall in a heap three deep helpless with laughter when somebody's arm gives away at the crucial moment

Nothing staid and severe and stern about this tumbling troupe

Maybe that is the reason a casual or expected audience falls so violently for it

You see tumbling is but an avocation for the seven When they are truly concerned with the deep things of this life they are high school pupils immersed so fond parents and teachers believe in Caesars bridge and parallelepipeds in Punic wars and prose of Poe

But methinks right now tumbling is the only real thing in life and Caesar just as dead as he should be

Who wouldn't be a tumbler and tell Alexander you'd found a more exciting world than he'd ever dreamed of conquering—if you had a suit of pink checked rompers in the locker tied with a swanky sash and a great big squashy bow and white half socks and soft black ballet slippers and a ribbon for your hair?

Incidentally that's the latest in tumbling costumes or costumes for tumbling girls just as you will

The troupe is composed of Gymnasium girls at the high school who have tumbling as a part of their year's work The seven best rollers and divers and head over heelers were selected for a team of tumblers and because they have done pretty good work they were allowed to exhibit their skill and their pink checks at the annual Joy night held Friday and Saturday evenings at the high school

W H Browne high school football coach has diverted himself from punt formations and mock forward pass formations to elephant walks and back rolls with extension for the benefit of the tumbling team and its members so that their bones might not meet eternal ruination Miss Elva Gates the girls gym instructor assisted in the coaching and in arranging for the team

The dashing mademoiselles of the first feminine All American team are Dorothy Gould whose diving makes her one of the stars of the troupe Josephine Orr Esther Peterson Barbara Windham Magdalene Lebsack Ruth Hatfield and Beatrice Bryant

Rolls are the strong point of this organization When you are seven and do a roll you call it a somersault but when you are a big girl and do a somersault you call it a roll Two things equal to the same thing are equal to each other

Front rolls open the program to be followed by the old substantial cart wheels just as a sort of muscle loosener an opening for all the really intricate things to come All true tumbling numbers open with the team members rolling onto the stage so that is the only way the newest tumbling team would come on

After the arms and legs of the cart wheels have returned to normal position a few more somersaults—rolls do pardon us—are enjoyed by all These are back rolls and to vary the monotony they have an extension The girls raise themselves on their hands en route —and Dorothy is able to lift herself very high as an extra added attraction

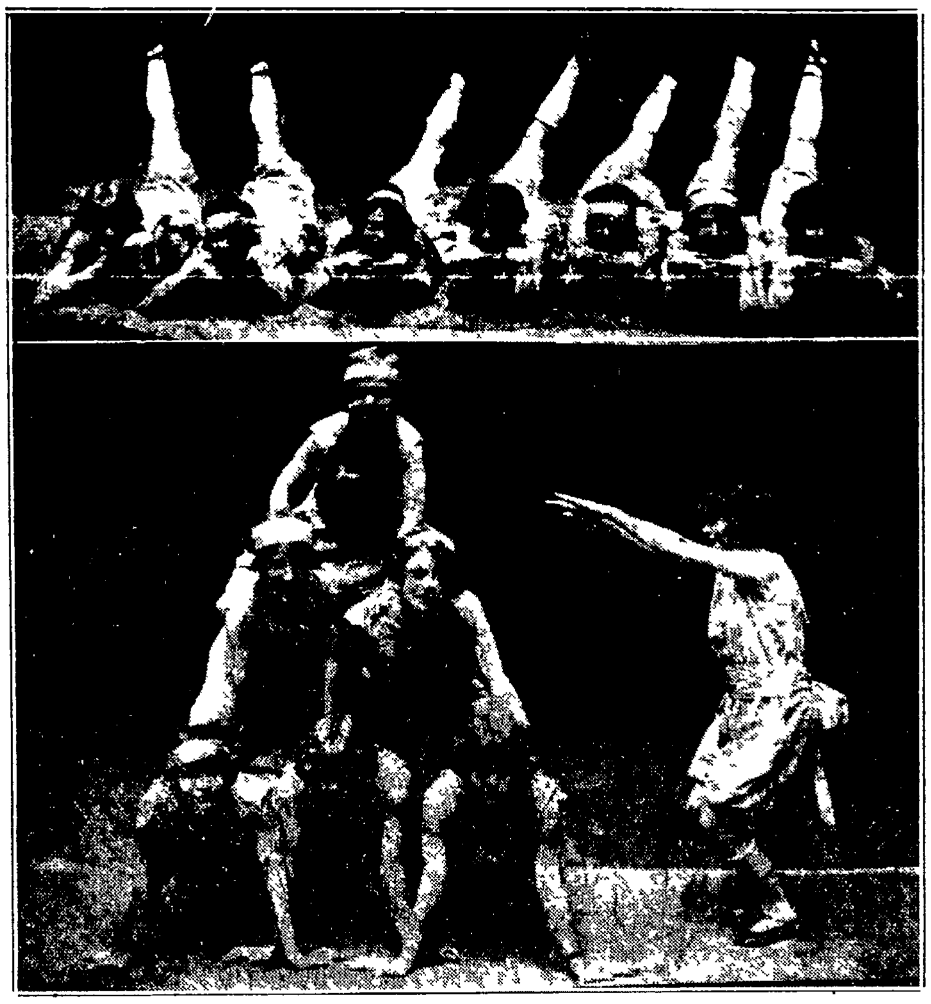
Then the girls roll across for the audience in couples and because seven isn't exactly divisible by two the last couple rolls as a triplet There are just a few things we are not competent to explain and the barrel roll is one of them Two girls are linked together in some unseen manner and pull each other about in a round manner which might just as well be the way a barrel rolls from all we could gather

The high light of their performance is the elephant walk which would make any self respecting elephant gaze upon himself with deepest awe and pride to think that he could do it Three girls leap about the waists of three others with apparently deadly intent swing backwards catch at her ankles and the leaped-upon one bends forward and the walking begins with assorted bobs arms and legs hanging out at the oddest points

After the elephant walk there is a monkey roll which is equally dexterous and a little diving The girls dive over one two three of their number and on to six which Dorothy leaps with a final roll to make it really effective

The pyramid appears to be one of the large numbers Josephine Esther and Magdalene line up and Beatrice and Ruth leap lightly on them and Barbara being a slim little thing achieves the pinnacle Dorothy dashes into dive over the pyramid but it squashes itself at the right moment and Dorothy has no trouble

After the Chinese walk in which the whole line pulls itself forward and backward in a tug of war pulley effect comes the grand ensemble All seek to stand on their heads but Barbara who is as much at home on her head as you are on your feet is really the star amid the waiving extremities that seek for balance A few rolls and everybody lines up chin on hands leg in the air—ready for the applause of an admiring world



Upper—Not Mack Sennet's favorite beauties but some just as good or a little better These are local products who ordinarily adorn the halls of the Lincoln high school but who for a space of time have turned themselves into tumblers This pose shows them in the grand finale of their tumbling act

For a Perfect Panel

Mounting the condensers and the other instruments on cardboard first and then using the cardboard as a template will insure against the panel being spoiled by improperly lined up screw holes

Crystal Set is Simplest

The crystal detector receiver is the most simple and least costly apparatus for broadcast reception It will receive programs over a distance of between 10 and 20 miles and can be purchased for about $10 complete including aerial equipment

The Best Ground

To find the best ground connect several leads from different grounded objects to a set of switch taps connect the switch lever to the ground terminal on the set by moving the lever while the set is in operation the ground best suited for the set will be found

When Winding Coils

The simplest means of fastening the ends of wire when winding coils is to punch a few holes in the tubing and to thread the wire through them so that it cannot slip when pulled taut This operation takes only a few minutes and involves only the use of a tool like a large sharpened nail or a slender centre punch

Various Types of Receivers

There are 23 types of receiving sets on the market One hundred and seventy seven of these receivers use radio frequency amplification six of which are transformer coupled and the rest tuned There are 23 kinds of reflex receivers offered 20 regenerative sets three super heterodynes and a variety of small one tube and crystal sets

Turn Horn From Set

When operating the loud speaker turn the horn away from the set otherwise badly distorted reproduction may be obtained The vibration from the horn directed against the set will act as a sound broadside causing the panel and cabinet to relay the shocks to the vacuum tubes also shaking the condenser plates thereby disturbing the tuning

Dry Cell Battery Lore

When dry cell tubes are used in a set the operator should take into account the ampere consumption and provide enough batteries so they will not run down prematurely Not more than 123 amperes should be drained from an ordinary 6 volt dry cell If a tube is used that consumes 25 amperes use at least two dry batteries in parallel (i e connected plus to plus and minus to minus) This will not increase the voltage a 1½ volt tube will not get any more voltage from two batteries in parallel than it will from one and there is no danger of its burning out Tubes that call for more voltage must of course have more batteries hooked up in series (i e plus to minus) The more tubes there are in a receiving set the more batteries should be hooked up in parallel as the ampere drain is greater The directions accompanying dry cell tubes should be read carefully and voltage and amperage requirements noted

Despite the fact that the wiring may appear to be identical two tubes or sets are seldom alike

Crystal sets give good results in the country but seldom in the city except on local stations

If no round nose pliers are available but wire can be bent by driving two nails close together in the workbench

A 2½ volt A battery should be discarded when it has dropped to 1½ volts and a 44 volt B battery after it has fallen below 34 volts

BY LULU MAE COE.

Oh—.

Oh-h—h— if Flo Ziegfeld could only see 'em now.

There'd be seven new faces in the Follies and they'd all have Lincoln as their address.

Never!

They're tumblers now.

Not tumbling for a shiek or down stairs or over a crack, but tumbling for tumbling alone.

Theye are skinning their elbows and bumping the powder off their noses and seeing all the little stars of the heavens in their cracked heads as they go over and under, but never around.

And they are so much better to look upon than the little brown men who go arming and legging it about the two-a-day snapping remarks in unintelligible languages or stocially taking manifold bumps.

They are charming young things, bobbed, every single one of 'em, and, I do believe, a little rouge, and certainly a little flavored whitening on their pert young noses.

They aren't above squealing when they hit the floor instead of the mat. And they don't mind coming up in the middle of a roll to discuss the possibility of a date tonight. And it doesin't bother them to fall in a heap three deep, helpless with laughter ,when somebody's arm gives away at the crucial moment.

Nothing staid and severe and stern about this tumbling troupe.

Maybe that is the reason a casual or expected audience falls so violently for it.

You see, tumbling is but an avocation for the seven. When they are truly concerned with the deep things of this life, they are high school pupils, immersed, so fond parents and teachers believe in Caesars bridge and parallelepipeds in Punic wars and prose of Poe.

But methinks right now tumbling is the only real thing in life and Caesar just as dead as he should be.

Who wouldn't be a tumbler and tell Alexander you'd found a more exciting world than he'd ever dreamed of conquering—if you had a suit of pink checked rompers in the locker tied with a swanky sash and a great big squashy bow and white half socks and soft black ballet slippers and a ribbon for your hair?

Incidentally that's the latest in tumbling costumes or costumes for tumbling girls just as you will.

The troupe is composed of Gymnasium girls at the high school who have tumbling as a part of their year's work. The seven best rollers and divers and head-over-helers were selected for a team of tumblers and because they have done pretty good work they were allowed to exhibit their skill and their pink checks at the annual Joy night, held Friday and Saturday evenings at the high school.

W. H. Browne, high school football coach has diverted himself from punt formations and mock forward pass formations to elephant walks and back rolls with extension, for the benefit of the tumbling team and its members, so that their bones might not meet eternal ruination. Miss Elva Gates, the girls' gym instructor, assisted in the coaching and in arranging for the team.

The dashing mademoiselles of the first feminine All-American team are Dorothy Gould, whose diving makes her one of the stars of the troupe, Josephine Orr, Esther Peterson, Barbara Windham, Magdalene Lebsack, Ruth Hatfield, and Beatrice Bryant.

Rolls are the strong point of this organization. When you are seven and do a roll you call it a somersault, but when you are a big girl and do a somersault, you call it a roll. Two things equal to the same thing are equal to each other.

Front rolls open the program, to be followed by the old substantial cart wheels, just as a sort of muscle loosener, an opening for all the really intricate things to come. All true tumbling numbers open with the team members rolling onto the stage, so that is the only way the newest tumbling team would come on.

After the arms and legs of the cart wheels have returned to normal position, a few more somersaults—rolls, do pardon us—are enjoyed by all. These are back rolls, and to vary the monotony, they have an extension. The girls raise themselves on their hands en route —and Dorothy is able to lift herself very high as an extra added attraction.

Then the girls roll across for the audience in couples and because seven isn't exactly divisible by two, the last couple rolls as a triplet. There are just a few things we are not competent to explain and the barrel roll is one of them. Two girls are linked together in some unseen manner and pull each other about, in a round manner, which might just as well be the way a barrel rolls, from all we could gather.

The high light of their performance is the elephant walk, which would make any self respecting elephant gaze upon himself with deepest awe and pride, to think that he could do it. Three girls leap about the waists of three others with apparently deadly intent, swing backwards, catch at her ankles, and the leaped-upon-one bends forward, and the walking begins, with assorted bobs, arms, and legs hanging out at the oddest points.

After the elephant walk, there is a monkey roll, which is equally dexterous and a little diving. The girls dive over one, two, three of their number and on to six, which Dorothy leaps with a final roll to make it really effective.

The pyramid appears to be one of the large numbers. Josephine, Esther, and Magdalene line up and Beatrice and Ruth leap lightly on them and Barbara, being a slim little thing, achieves the pinnacle. Dorothy dashes into dive over the pyramid, but it squashes itself at the right moment, and Dorothy has no trouble.

After the Chinese walk, in which the whole line pulls itself forward and backward in a tug-of-war pulley effect comes the grand ensemble. All seek to stand on their heads, but Barbara, who is as much at home on her head as you are on your feet, is really the star amid the waiving extremities that seek for balance. A few rolls — and everybody lines up, chin on hands, leg in the air—ready for the applause of an admiring world.

Upper—Not Mack Sennet's favorite beauties, but some just as good or a little better. These are local products who ordinarily adorn the halls of the Lincoln high school, but who for a space of time have turned themselves into tumblers. This pose shows them in the grand finale of their tumbling act.

United States Signal Corps men stationed at tiny Alaskan posts frequently enjoy concerts from European broadcasting stations, notably Berlin, when completely out of touch with American stations.

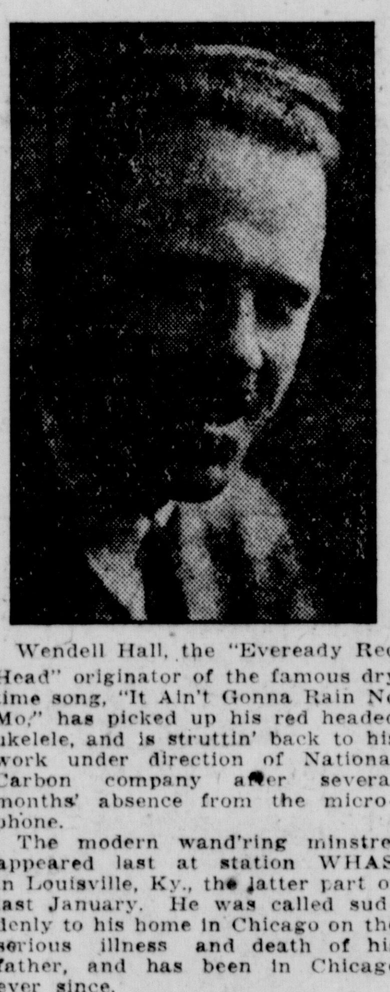
Wendall Hall Back On the Air



Wendell Hall, the "Eveready Red Head" originator of the famous dry time song, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo," has picked up his red headed ukelele, and is struttin' back to his work under direction of National Carbon company after several months' absence from the microphone.

The modern wand'ring minstrel appeared last at station WHAS in Louisville, Ky., the latter part of last January. He was called suddenly to his home in Chicago on the serious illness and death of his father, and has been in Chicago ever since.

Out of respect to his father, the "Red-Headed Music Maker's' voice has been silent—the familiar voice and the famous melodies have been stilled—the red riot of happeness, the merry making, the jollity, the romance, the chuckles, the very fountain of fun has been quieted.

But he is now starting out again and will appear April 23, 24 and 25 at station KFAB and its the same old Wendell who is still "saturating the ether" with cherrio jingles and his happy-go-lucky ways.

For a Perfect Panel.

Mounting the condensers and the other instruments on cardboard first and then using the cardboard as a template will insure against the panel being spoiled by improperly lined-up screw holes.

Crystal Set is Simplest.

The crystal detector receiver is the most simple and least costly apparatus for broadcast reception. It will receive programs over a distance of between 10 and 20 miles, and can be purchased for about $10 complete, including aerial equipment.

The Best "Ground."

To find the best ground, connect several leads from different grounded objects to a set of switch taps, connect the switch lever to the ground terminal on the set, by moving the lever while the set is in operation the ground best suited for the set will be found.

When Winding Coils.

The simplest means of fastening the ends of wire when winding coils is to punch a few holes in the tubing, and to thread the wire through them so that it cannot slip when pulled taut. This operation takes only a few minutes and involves only the use of a tool like a large, sharpened nail, or a slender centre punch.

Various Types of Receivers.

There are 23 types of receiving sets on the market. One hundred and seventy-seven of thsee receivers us radio-frequency amplification, six of which are transformer coupled and the rest tuned. There are 23 kinds of reflex receivers offered, 20 regenerative sts, thre super-hetrodynes, and a variety of small one-tube and crystal sets.

Turn Horn From Set.

When operating the loud speaker turn the horn away from the set. otherwise badly distorted reproduction may be obtained. The vibration from the horn directed against the set will act as a sound broadside, causing the panel and cabinet to relay the shocks to the vacuum tubes; also shaking the condenser plates, thereby disturbing the tuning.

Dry-Cell Battery Lore.

When dry-cell tubes are used in a set, the operator should take into account the ampere consumption and provide enough batteries so they will not run down prematurely Not more than .123 amperes should be drained from an ordinary 6-volt dry cell. If a tube is used that consumes .25 amperes, use at least two dry batteries in parallel (i. e., connected plus to plus and minus to minus). This will not increase the voltage; a 1½ volt tube will not get any more voltage from two batteries in parallel than it will from one, and there is no danger of its burning out. Tubes that call for more voltage must, of course, have more batteries hooked up in series (i. e., plus to minus). The more tubes there are in a receiving set, the more batteries should be hooked up in parallel, as the ampere drain is greater. The directions accompanying dry-cell tubes should be read carefully and voltage and amperage requirements noted.

For the Notebook.

Never tear apart a set made by reputable manufacturers.

The ground of a receiving set is equally important as the aerial.

The solution in an alkaline battery should be charged once a year.

Do not tune a set by guessing. Use some system of adjusting the dials.

It is not necessary to shield a set if the parts are properly spaced and wired.

When the ground and lead-in wires run parallel for any distance, they should be kept at least two feet apart.

Because of economy of space and cost, it is better to use gang sockets instead of individual type, when a set is built using three or more tubes.

A dial marker for the panel can be made of a triangular piece of white adhesive tape. This marker can be attached in a moment and does not come off.

The silvery coating on the glass of vacuum tubes is caused by a chemical treatment to increase the degree of vacuum. The coating is the result of a deposit of magnesium.

Silver is considered the best conductor of electricity.

Simple, tight mechanical connections are better than poorly soldered ones.

Try a fixed condenser between the aerial and ground for the longer wave lengths.

A lightning arrester acts as a guard to a radio set and the residence in which it is located.

Storage "B" batteries should be purchased according to their capacity, and not their voltage.

Despite the fact that the wiring may appear to be identical, two tubes or sets are seldom alike.

Crystal sets give good results in the country but seldom in the city, except on local stations.

If no round-nose pliers are available, but wire can be bent by driving two nails clase together in the workbench.

A 22½ volt "B" battery should be discarded when it has dropped to 17 volts, and a 44-volt "B" battery after it has fallen below 34 volts.

Real Money Value of Birds Stressed in Work of McKinley Pupils' Nature Clubs

The three hundred members of the McKinley school bird club, each one of whom has made at least one bird house this year. The children not only make the bird houses but they take them home for use, and watch to see if any feathered songsters come to make their home in the boxes. This is the sixteenth year of the club.

BY LULU MAE COE.

We take so many things for granted in the world—clouds and sunshine and April showers and green hillsides and birds.

Especially the birds.

These spring mornings they make cheerful heralds to the day as they chirp and sing and twitter on the window ledges at dawn.

They've always come in the springtime. And they always will. So reason we, subconsciously.

They are just a part of the spring miracle.

If they didn't—we would miss the flitting rainbow of their gold and blue and red and their music in the still morning air before the milk cart and the street car and the paper boy have come about.

We would miss them aesthetically, yes. But even more so would we miss them materially.

If dinner failed to appear today, and for several days to come, because the birds had taken French leave forever, and if we found our houses overrun with gnats and flies and bugs, because the song of the bird were gone from the land, we wouldn't take them so much for granted.

Scientists say the world would soon become uninhabitable were it not for the birds and that human life would be untenable did we not have them, or did they decide to move to Patagonia.

The wheat and the oats and the alfalfa would fall prey to the insects, as once they did to the grasshoppers. The little radishes, crimson as red ink, the green spinach, pale letuce and long waving plumes of asparagus, the yellow corn would wither and die under their attack. The green grass of the fields and the beds of clover would be ravished of their blades and leaves. The trees would be denuded, and man would have no shade.

Economic Side Stressed.

This economic side of the bird question is being stressed at McKinley school. That birds are beautiful and their songs lovely, children know. Perhaps the birds are the first things they notice as very little children. But, it would be unwise to take school time for the study were they merely beautiful. That bird preservation means national life, that bird preservation has direct bearing on the life of each pupil, makes bird study profitable in the schools.

The children learn that each robin means a value of $40 to the farmer and that the entire world depends upon the farmer and his products for food and consequent life. They learn that the world would not long remain a pleasant place were the birds not here to destroy the insect pests. They learn that the flicker or the martin in their yard is of benefit to them, and, given this information in their plastic age, the children will never forget it.

Bird study is linked with other subjects. The children are given arithmetical problems concerning bird values to different individuals. In their art study, they make posters, "Protect the Birds" or "Do Not Destroy the Birds," which action impresses the subject on their minds. In their geography lessons, bird areas and the kinds of birds in each location are incidentally discovered.

The study of birds is fostered in the regular class work. The children are encouraged to bring in stories and poems on birds. They watch magazines and papers for pertinent material on the subject. The little boys and girls draw birds in their painting hour, making a simple two line rhyme on some characteristic of the bird. Each child has his bird book, in which he files his drawings, his poetry and stories, and any other material he may have gathered on birds.

The school has a bird bath and it is the duty of two or three children each week to see that it is filled with clean, fresh water. A robin built its nest on the fire escape by one primary room and the boys and girls kept a detailed dairy of the bird and birdlings. They like to watch the gay green and yellow martin apartment house in front of the building, which this year is overflowing with martins.

All Make Bird Houses.

That the bird study may assume individual meaning for them, each child makes a bird house, generally a small wren house for a tucked away corner at home or now and again a larger flicker house or martin apartment house, as these birds like to live in colonies. The wren houses are in the majority, for McKinley has but six grades and the simple lines of Jenny's home are easiest for small hands.

For sixteen years McKinley school has had a bird club, with the entire school on its membership roll. This year it numbers about 300 children and every one has made a bird house. The majority of these have gone home. Some have been sold for very small sums and some have been given away. Just last week six were sent out to the new Lincoln General hospital. Another was placed in the home of a man who had spoken to the children.

Of course, the children eagerly watch for feathered visitors to arrive at the houses at their own homes. They can scarcely wait to come to school to announce that a wren or a robin is nesting in the box or the shelf made by one's very own self. That is one of life's greatest moments. This year, how- McKinley bird houses, the children are to watch those, as well, so that they can know just how well their houses place with the populace.

Wednesday the McKinley P. T. A. met at the school and the children gave a bird program, including songs and recitations on birds by each room. Their scrap books and posters were on display, together with a few of the bird houses that have not been sold. One of the pupils had suggested that a tree would look well on the stage and he had gone out after school to bring back a graceful broken limb. Mrs. Gladys Bolton, who was in charge of the program, placed nests on the several of the branches, with bright paper birds, made by the children, on the nests. Little paper bird houses, made by the deaf children, decorated the stage and lovely paper birds in cages were used in the windows.

Ag College Students Plan To Make Annual Farm Fair May 2 Biggest Success Yet

The "big day" at the Nebraska College of Agriculture will occur on the second day of May this year. On this day all ag students will be putting forth every possible effort to show the world that they have a good college and are proud of it. The efforts of more than five hundred students will be united to provide entertainment for the public. A Farmers' fair is the largest function put on in the University of Nebraska by its students.

The Farmers' fair is staged at the ag campus during the entire afternoon and evening. During the spring and summer months, the campus at the college of agriculture is one of the most beautiful places in the state. Flowers and foliage will be at the height of their beauty by May 2 and the scenery at the campus alone will be well worth coming to see. Some of the finest buildings that grace the campus of any agricultural college in the world are found here. The dairy and agricultural engineering buildings are known to be the finest and most completely equipped of any buildings of this type in the country. The beautiful flowerbeds, shrubbery, lawns, and trees, and the orderly arrangement of the buildings give the campus a beauty that is surpassed by very few colleges in the country.

The college of agriculture is not merely offering a funfest on May 2. An effort will be made to stress the educational aspects of the college to the greatest extent. There will be exhibits in every department of the college and demonstrations and lectures in the laboratories will show the nature of the work carried on by the college students. A means of transportation will be provided to take the visitors from one exhibit to the next.

The college of agriculture maintains a herd of livestock, numbering more than one thousand animals and all of the better individuals of this herd will be on dress parade at the Farmers' fair. The home economics building will be filled with the products of the girls who work on the various phases of domestic science. Demonstrations and lectures will be given here during the entire afternoon. The Ag students hope that every visitor will take advantage of the exhibits and demonstrations in order that they may learn the true merits of the college.

Along with the seriousness, the students endeavor to show visitors a good time. The midway will be a meeting place for all who desire lighter forms of entertainment. Everything imaginable of the carnival nature will be included in the midway. Fishing ponds, refreshment stands, sideshows, and anything else that is found at a circus or carnival are planned.

BEAN SOUP GIRLS MEET ON THE SLY

"We all like bean soup, and that's about the only time we ever have it is when we meet together for just that purpose.

Have they always had the weakness for bean soup, or is it a taste that has been developed recently? We can't answer that, but we do wonder if, when these ladies were flappers, they told the young sheiks who were their devoted slaves to "say it with bean soup," instead of flowers or candy.

Another worry is about the S O P H club. This was certainly an up and coming organization a few years ago, but since so many of its members committed matrimony there really isn't much point to it. You see, S. O. P. H. means "Still on Papa's Hands".

University Notes

The university extension division recently published the regulations for membership in the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools, of which Prof. A. A. Reed, director of extension, is state chairman. Among the new regulations, the most important is that high school teachers employed by member schools after September, 1925, must have at least twenty-five hours of professional training. This means that each teacher must have fifteen hours of training in the methods of teaching. Teachers employed at present will not be affected. Certificates of accrediting will be mailed to all member schools in the state before April 10. They are valid for one year. This has never been done before. The general report of schools now accredited, which is due every five years, will be submitted this year. A less complete report of all changes is submitted each year. The list of Nebraska high schools accredited is included in the bulletin, among them the following admitted in 1925. Dix, Omaha Technical, Omaha North, Mt. St Marys Academy (Omaha), and Sacred Heart (Omaha.)

Regret at the failure of the legislature to pass the university milllevy bill, but confidence that such a measure will be passed in the future is expressed by chancellor Samuel Avery in the April issue of Nebraska Alumnus. The building program will go forward as if the bill had been passed, the chancellor states, and the campus revision plans adopted ten years ago will be revised and put on a more extensive basis. Thanks is extended by the chancellor to the alumni and other friends of the University who aided in the sponsoring of the bill. That the effort was not lost is shown by the fact that the appropriation for this year is more nearly adequate than if the campaign had not been waged, the chancellor states.

A course in third semester high school algebra has been added by the extension division. Heretofore it had been necessary to give the elementary college course to those who wish to pursue the study, but it was found that this was somewhat too difficult. Only high school credit will be given for the course, which is given under the direction of the department of matematics.

Prof Cliff S. Hamilton and Randolph Major of the department of chemistry are authors of an article, "The Preparation and Study of Symmetrical Bis-Arsons-Aryl- Benzamido-Ureas, which appears in the April number of The Journal of the American Chemical society. Another article by Professor Hamilton and Caryl Sly on "The Action of Alkyl Chlorocarbonates on Amino-Arylarsonic Acids, apepared in the February issue of the same journal.

The "Who's Who" section of Nebraska Alumnus for April contains biographies of the following Nebraska graduates: Henry Waldo Norris, 91, zoologist, Grinnell, Ia.; Edward Everett Nicholsin, 94, university professor, Minneapolis; Cecil Clare North, professor, Columbus, Ohio; Brayton Howard Ransom, '04, zoologist, Washington, D. C.; Anna May Price, '00, librarian, Springfield, Ill.; Francis Wayland Russell, '90, clergyman, Berkeley, Cal.; Raymond J. Pool, '07, botanist, Lincoln, Neb.; Florence Richardson Robinson, '02, psychologist, Chicago; Louise Pound, '92, university professor, Lincoln, Neb.; Edwin Ford Piper, author and educator, Iowa City, Ia.

Announcement of the selection of Dr. Edwin Hart Jenks, pastor of Omaha, as speaker at the baccalaureate services for the class of 1925 the First Presbyterian church of at the university armory, May 31, is made in the current issue of Nebraska Alumnus. Doctor Jenks was graduated from the Auburn theological seminary, Auburn, N. Y., in 1888. He is also a graduate of Hamilton college, where he received the degrees of A. B. and A. M. He rereceived the degree of D. D. from Coe college. Doctor Jenks has been pastor of his present church since September 1, 1899.

The eleventh of the Nebraska Studies in Business which are published by the College of Business Administration will be published soon. It is entitled, "Credit Control of Wholesale Distribution."

"Meet Brigadier General Fechet" is the title of an article telling of the appointment March 6 by President Coolidge of Colonel James Edmond Fechet to succeed Brigadier General Mitchell as assistant chief of the air service. General Fechet studied mechanical engineering at the University of Nebraska from 1895 to 1898 being a member of the class of 1899. He left school in 1898 to enlist for the war with Spain, staying in the army since that time. He became a commissioned officer Februar y2, 1901, and was transferred to the aviation service in 1917.

The extension division is now offering a course in descriptive geometry, which is designed to follow the course now offered in mechanical drawing. It is listed as AM2. The course gives three hours credit.

Twenty-six alumni of the university served as members of the legislature, according to an article in The Nebraska Alumnus, which lists the following: E. Preston Baileu, Carleton; Allan G. Burke, Bancroft; Charles E. Byarts, Valley; Leslie D. Case, Bloomfield; Bern R. Coulton, Bridgeport; Leonard D. Densmore, Wymore; Thomas D. Griffin, Hardy; Dwight P Griswold, Gordon; Ray M. Higgins, Omaha; Clark Jeary, Lincoln; Walter R. Johnson, Omaha; A. M Keyes, Holbrook; Walter Korisko, Omaha; H. E Kuppinger, Omaha, Thomas J. Lawson, Long Pine; Emil Luckey, Columbus; J. Lloyd McMaster, Lincoln; Charles H. Meacham, jr., Dorchester; Sarah T. Muir, Lincoln; Monte L. Munn, Lincoln; Fay H. Pollock, Omaha; Charles J. Warner, Waverly; George Wilkins, Emerson, and Charles L. Yochum, Talmadge.

A state officers training conference was held by the university Y M. C. A. Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday for the newly elected officers and cabinet members of state. Francis Miller, student secretary of the national council, spoke several times, and Charles Musselman and H. F. Smith, secretaries from the state headquarters at Omaha, also gave addresses. About fifty attended. The new officers were instructed in the organization of the Y. M. C. A., its purposes, and its methods of work.

Miss Elizabeth Geeting, who for four years was in charge of the distribution office for the university extension division, has resigned to become assistant secretary of the Lincoln Camp Fire organization. She attended a meeting of Camp Fire executives in Chicago last week preparatory to beginning her work.

Dr. G. E. Condra, director of the conservation and survey division, returned last week from Scottsbluff, where he has been a member of a commission investigating water right claims.

Cotner Notes

Miss Bernice Osborn, ex-'26, Abilene, Kas., died Sunday at her home. Burial was in Illinois.

Elwyn Wherry, '26, Bethany, and Clive Jull, '26, Scottsbluff, were elected editor and business manager, respectively, for the Cotner Collegian, weekly student paper, Monday. William G. Moseley, '25, and Louise Bigge, '26, Stockton, Kans., have filled these offices this year. The paper has operated on a new policy this year, whereby the students registered in the course in newswriting automatically became the staff of reporters, and their class work thus is definite laboratory material.

President and Mrs C. E. Cobbey entertained the Aylsworth club at dinner Monday evening.

Miss Lucile Ford, '06, missionary in Indiana, has been transferred from work at the girls' school at Harda to take charge of the Orphanage at Mahoba, where she formerly work several years.

Cleveland Kleihauer, '07, honorary D. D. '23, minister of the University Christian church at Seattle, probably will play the part of the title role in "The Wayfarer," described as the passion play of America, to be presented in the University of Washington stadium, July 27-31. Rev. Dr. Kleihouer played the same part in 1921-1922. It is expected that 150,000 visitors will attend.

Laurence Berry, '25, Lind, Wash., was first place in the first annual J. S. Beem sermon contest Tuesday evening, speaking on the subject "Human Values." Other contestants and their subjects were: Ralph Tietsort, '28, Omaha, "I Am the Way the Truth, and the Life"; Florence Morgan, '27, Omaha, "Developing Spiritual Power"; James Haviland, sp., Bethany, "For Pieces of Silver"; Julius Stuart, '28, Atchison, Kas., "The Keys of Power."

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. Get about 2 ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—Advertisment.

98 Out of Every 100 Women Benefited

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

100,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 100,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100. Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

It's reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

In their geography lessons, bird areas and the kinds of birds in each location are incidentally discovered.

The study of birds is fostered in the regular class work. The children are encouraged to bring in stories and poems on birds. They watch magazines and papers for pertinent material on the subject. The little boys and girls draw birds in their painting hour, making a simple two line rhyme on some characteristic of the bird. Each child has his bird book, in which he files his drawings, his poetry and stories, and any other material he may have gathered on birds.

The school has a bird bath and it is the duty of two or three children each week to see that it is filled with clean, fresh water. A robin built its nest on the fire escape by one primary room and the boys and girls kept a detailed dairy of the bird and birdlings. They like to watch the gay green and yellow martin apartment house in front of the building, which this year is overflowing with martins.

All Make Bird Houses.

That the bird study may assume individual meaning for them, each child makes a bird house, generally a small wren house for a tucked away corner at home or now and again a larger flicker house or martin apartment house, as these birds like to live in colonies. The wren houses are in the majority, for McKinley has but six grades and the simple lines of Jenny's home are easiest for small hands.

For sixteen years McKinley school has had a bird club, with the entire school on its membership roll. This year it numbers about 300 children and every one has made a bird house. The majority of these have gone home. Some have been sold for very small sums and some have been given away. Just last week six were sent out to the new Lincoln General hospital. Another was placed in the home of a man who had spoken to the children.

Of course, the children eagerly watch for feathered visitors to arrive at the houses at their own homes. They can scarcely wait to come to school to announce that a wren or a robin is nesting in the box or the shelf made by one's very own self. That is one of life's greatest moments. This year, how- McKinley bird houses, the children are to watch those, as well, so that they can know just how well their houses place with the populace.

Wednesday the McKinley P. T. A. met at the school and the children gave a bird program, including songs and recitations on birds by each room. Their scrap books and posters were on display, together with a few of the bird houses that have not been sold. One of the pupils had suggested that a tree would look well on the stage and he had gone out after school to bring back a graceful broken limb. Mrs. Gladys Bolton, who was in charge of the program, placed nests on the several of the branches, with bright paper birds, made by the children, on the nests. Little paper bird houses, made by the deaf children, decorated the stage and lovely paper birds in cages were used in the windows.

Ag College Students Plan To Make Annual Farm Fair May 2 Biggest Success Yet

The "big day" at the Nebraska College of Agriculture will occur on the second day of May this year. On this day all ag students will be putting forth every possible effort to show the world that they have a good college and are proud of it. The efforts of more than five hundred students will be united to provide entertainment for the public, A Farmers' fair is the largest function put on in the University of Nebraska by its students.

The Farmers' fair is staged at the ag campus during the entire afternoon and evening. During the spring and summer months, the campus at the college of agriculture is one of the most beautiful places in the state. Flowers and foliage will be at the height of their beauty by May 2 and the scenery at the campus alone will be well worth coming to see. Some of the finest buildings that grace the campus of any agricultural college in the world are found here. The dairy and agricultural engineering buildings are known to be the finest and most completely equipped of any buildings of this type in the country. The beautiful flowerbeds, shrubbery, lawns, and trees, and the orderly arrangement of the buildings give the campus a beauty that is surpassed by very few colleges in the country.

The college of agriculture is not merely offering a funfest on May 2. An effort will be made to stress the educational aspects of the college to the greatest extent. There will be exhibits in every department of the college and demonstrations and lectures in the laboratories will show the nature of the work carried on by the college students. A means of transportation will be provided to take the visitors from one exhibit to the next.

The college of agriculture maintains a herd of livestock, numbering more than one thousand animals and all of the better individuals of this herd will be on dress parade at the Farmers' fair. The home economics building will be filled with the products of the girls who work on the various phases of domestic science. Demonstrations and lectures will be given here during the entire afternoon. The Ag students hope that every visitor will take advantage of the exhibits and demonstrations in order that they may learn the true merits of the college.

Along with the seriousness, the students endeavor to show visitors a good time. The midway will be a meeting place for all who desire lighter forms of entertainment. Everything imaginable of the carnival nature will be included in the midway. Fishing ponds, refreshment stands, sideshows, and anything else that is found at a circus or carnival are planned.

"We all like bean soup, and that's about the only time we ever have it is when we meet together for just that purpose.

Have they always had the weakness for bean soup, or is it a taste that has been developed recently? We can't answer that, but we do wonder if, when these ladies were flappers, they told the young sheiks who were their devoted slaves to "say it with bean soup," instead of flowers or candy.

Another worry is about the S. O. P. H. club. This was certainly an up and coming organization a few years ago, but since so many of its members committed matrimony there really isn't much point to it. You see, S. O. P. H. means "Still on Papa's Hands."

University Notes

The university extension division recently published the regulations for membership in the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools, of which Prof. A. A. Reed, director of extension, is state chairman. Among the new regulations, the most important is that high school teachers employed by member schools after September, 1925, must have at least twenty-five hours of professional training. This means that each teacher must have fifteen hours of training in the methods of teaching. Teachers employed at present will not be affected. Certificates of accrediting will be mailed to all member schools in the state before April 10. They are valid for one year. This has never been done before. The general report of schools now accredited, which is due every five years, will be submitted this year. A less complete report of all changes is submitted each year. The list of Nebraska high schools accredited is included in the bulletin, among them the following admitted in 1925: Dix, Omaha Technical, Omaha North, Mt. St. Marys Academy (Omaha), and Sacred Heart (Omaha.)

Regret at the failure of the legislature to pass the university mill-levy bill, but confidence that such a measure will be passed in the future is expressed by chancellor Samuel Avery in the April Issue of Nebraska Alumnus. The building program will go forward as if the bill had been passed, the chancellor states, and the campus revision plans adopted ten years ago will be revised and put on a more extensive basis. Thanks is extended by the chancellor to the alumni and other friends of the University who aided in the sponsoring of the bill. That the effort was not lost is shown by the fact that the appropriation for this year is more nearly adequate than if the campaign had not been waged, the chancellor states.

A course in third semester high school algebra has been added by the extension division. Heretofore it had been necessary to give the elementary college course to those who wish to pursue the study, but it was found that this was somewhat too difficult. Only high school credit will be given for the course, which is given under the direction of the department of matematics.

Prof. Cliff S. Hamilton and Randolph Major of the department of chemistry are authors of an article, "The Preparation and Study of Symmetrical Bis-Arsons-Aryl- Benzamido-Ureas, which appears in the April number of The Journal of the American Chemical society. Another article by Professor Hamilton and Caryl Sly on "The Action of Alkyl Chlorocarbonates on Amino-Arylarsonic Acids, apepared in the February issue of the same journal.

The "Who's Who" section of Nebraska Alumnus for April contains biographies of the following Nebraska graduates: Henry Waldo Norris, 91, zoologist, Grinnell, Ia.; Edward Everett Nicholsin, 94, university professor, Minneapolis; Cecil Clare North, professor, Columbus, Ohio; Brayton Howard Ransom, '04, zoologist, Washington, D. C.; Anna May Price, '00, librarian, Springfield, Ill.; Francis Wayland Russell, '90, clergyman, Berkeley, Cal.; Raymond J. Pool, '07, botanist, Lincoln, Neb.; Florence Richardson Robinson, '02, psychologist, Chicago; Louise Pound, '92, university professor, Lincoln, Neb.; Edwin Ford Piper, author and educator, Iowa City, Ia.

Announcement of the selection of Dr. Edwin Hart Jenks, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Omaha, as speaker at the baccalaureate services for the class of 1925 at the university armory, May 31, is made in the current issue of Nebraska Alumnus. Doctor Jenks was graduated from the Auburn theological seminary, Auburn, N. Y., in 1888. He is also a graduate of Hamilton college, where he received the degrees of A. B. and A. M. He rereceived the degree of D. D. from Coe college. Doctor Jenks has been pastor of his present church since September 1, 1899.

The eleventh of the Nebraska Studies in Business which are published by the College of Business Administration will be published soon. It is entitled, "Credit Control of Wholesale Distribution."

"Meet Brigadier General Fechet" is the title of an article telling of the appointment March 6 by President Coolidge of Colonel James Edmond Fechet to succeed Brigadier General Mitchell as assistant chief of the air service. General Fechet studied mechanical engineering at the University of Nebraska from 1895 to 1898, being a member of the class of 1899. He left school in 1898 to enlist for the war with Spain, staying in the army since that time. He became a commissioned officer Februar y2, 1901, and was transferred to the aviation service in 1917.

The extension division is now offering a course in descriptive geometry, which is designed to follow the course now offered in mechanical drawing. It is listed as AM2. The course gives three hours credit.

Twenty-six alumni of the university served as members of the legislature, according to an article in The Nebraska Alumnus, which lists the following: E. Preston Baileu, Carleton; Allan G. Burke, Bancroft; Charles E. Byarts, Valley; Leslie D. Case, Bloomfield; Bern R. Coulton, Bridgeport; Leonard D. Densmore, Wymore; Thomas D. Griffin, Hardy; Dwight P. Griswold, Gordon; Ray M. Higgins, Omaha; Clark Jeary, Lincoln; Walter R. Johnson, Omaha; A. M. Keyes, Holbrook; Walter Korisko, Omaha; H. E. Kuppinger, Omaha; Thomas J. Lawson, Long Pine; Emil Luckey, Columbus; J. Lloyd McMaster, Lincoln; Charles H. Meacham, jr., Dorchester; Sarah T. Muir, Lincoln; Monte L. Munn, Lincoln; Fay H. Pollock, Omaha; Charles J. Warner, Waverly; George Wilkins, Emerson, and Charles L. Yochum, Talmadge.

A state officers training conference was held by the university Y. M. C. A. Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday for the newly elected officers and cabinet members of state. Francis Miller, student secretary of the national council, spoke several times, and Charles Musselman and H. F. Smith, secretaries from the state headquarters at Omaha, also gave addresses. About fifty attended. The new officers were instructed in the organization of the Y. M. C. A., its purposes, and its methods of work.

Miss Elizabeth Geeting, who for four years was in charge of the distribution office for the university extension division, has resigned to become assistant secretary of the Lincoln Camp Fire organization. She attended a meeting of Camp Fire executives in Chicago last week preparatory to beginning her work.

Dr. G. E .Condra, director of the conservation and survey division, returned last week from Scottsbluff, where he has been a member of a commission investigating water right claims.

Cotner Notes

Miss Bernice Osborn, ex-'26, Abilene, Kas., died Sunday at her home. Burial was in Illinois.

Elwyn Wherry, '26, Bethany, and Clive Jull, '26, Scottsbluff, were elected editor and business manager, respectively, for the Cotner Collegian, weekly student paper, Monday. William G. Moseley, '25, and Louise Bigge, '26, Stockton, Kans., have filled these offices this year. The paper has operated on a new policy this year, whereby the students registered in the course in newswriting automatically became the staff of reporters, and their class work thus is definite laboratory material.

President and Mrs. C. E. Cobbey entertained the Aylsworth club at dinner Monday evening.

Miss Lucile Ford, '06, missionary in Indiana, has been transferred from work at the girls' school at Harda to take charge of the Orphanage at Mahoba, where she formerly work several years.

Cleveland Kleihauer, '07, honorary D. D. '23, minister of the University Christian church at Seattle, probably will play the part of the title role in "The Wayfarer," described as the passion play of America, to be presented in the University of Washington stadium, July 27-31. Rev. Dr. Kleihouer played the same part in 1921-1922. It is expected that 150,000 visitors will attend.

Laurence Berry, '25, Lind, Wash., was first place in the first annual J. S. Beem sermon contest Tuesday evening, speaking on the subject "Human Values." Other contestants and their subjects were: Ralph Tietsort, '28, Omaha, "I Am the Way the Truth, and the Life"; Florence Morgan, '27, Omaha, "Developing Spiritual Power"; James Haviland, sp., Bethany, "For Pieces of Silver"; Julius Stuart, '28, Atchison, Kas., "The Keys of Power.'

Dr. H. O. Pritchard, instructor in debate, 1907-18, general secretary of the board of education of the Disciples of Christ, will be the speaker and extra-mural representative on campus day, April 24.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. Get about 2 ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—Advertisment.

98 Out of Every 100 Women Benefited

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

100,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 100,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES.

That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

It's reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

TREE PLANTING IN NEBRASKA

For those who live in the cities and towns of Nebraska and even the people who live in the great open spaces of the country the Arbor Day proclamation of Governor Adam McMullen should hold a new significance

Nebraska has outgrown the legend of the unbroken prairie except for isolated sections in the far western sections

Those purposes which originally provided the inspiration for tree planting no longer exist. Shade is no longer the sole consideration to dictate the setting out of trees and shrubbery It has been very largely replaced with a desire for beautification and ornamentation

What a change it is

In those earlier days when sturdy men and equally courageous women were carving a great commonwealth from the rolling billows of prairie broken at intervals by sluggish winding streams upon whose banks a few scrubby willow raised their branches to the skies the demand for shade dictated the planting of hardy trees which would achieve a quick rapid growth So it was that cottonwood and other of the soft wood varieties which in a brief span of years attained substantial size came to be planted to vast numbers Every farm home had its row of cottonwoods Even in the towns and cities hundreds and thousands of cottonwoods were planted because it was recognized that few varieties would grow more rapidly What was beauty in the face of the insistent demand for shelter and protection from the hot sun?

The botanist might tell you that the willow and the cottonwood and some of the other varieties of soft woods were symbolical of a certain period in Nebraska history Certainly they are grim reminders of that day when men and women were engaged in the mighty task of conquering a new country which was largely devoid of the friendly presence of trees

Those who come to us from the northern lake region and from the New England states where the most magnificent and inspiring specimens of tree life are found sometimes have expressed wonderment that so little discrimination should have been shown in the selection of trees in Nebraska Many times it has been suggested that the magestic chestnut the oak the English elm the sugar maple and some of the other varieties which have added color and beauty to the landscape of these northern and eastern states were not adapted to Nebraska climate and Nebraska soil conditions

The city of Lincoln was a pioneer in disproving this belief

During the administration of ex-Mayor J E Miller Lincoln took the initial step in deciding to secure better and more beautiful varieties of tree life Under an ordinance passed by the council the city re-established its authority over the trees planted in the parking areas

For better than five years now under the direction of Park Superintendent Edinborough there has been a wholesale removal of unsightly and annoying cottonwoods wormy elms and other of these trees which detracted from Lincoln's appearance Since the work was first started it has been estimated that fully 8 000 trees have been removed from the parking spaces But the city did not stop there It secured samples of soil from every section of town These were carefully analyzed to determine what variety of tree life was best adapted to the specific conditions found there And in pursuance of its policy of planting the more beautiful varieties of trees the city has been planting hundreds of specimens of hard woods or semi hard woods Each spring between 1 000 and 2 000 young trees are set out in these parking places In the four years over 4 500 fine trees have been placed in the parking areas and in a few more years they will add their beauty to the streets of Lincoln

The process must necessarily be slow but in another twenty five years the results will be more apparent

The injunction to plant trees still holds in Nebraska But in the planting great care should be taken to select those varieties which possess the greatest beauty Time is no longer the largest element

A FORMER AMERICAN EMPRESS

Comparatively few Americans it is probable realize that there lives in Europe today a woman who at one time wore a royal crown and reigned an empress on North American soil This is not to be wondered at however for former Empress Charlotte or as she was more generally known Carlotta realizes the fact herself only at fleeting intervals for she has been stark mad for almost sixty years Prior to the time her reason was dethroned she was empress of Mexico for almost three years

Charlotte is the daughter of King Leopold I of Belgium and her husband Maximilian was a brother of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria Ambition was the guiding star of both and the dazzling light which lured the one to a tragic death and the other to a far worse fate The blame for the Mexican fiasco cannot however be laid entirely upon the unhappy pair who were the chief sufferers for it was Napoleon III of France who was primarily responsible for the affair When England France and Spain in 1861 joined in sending fleets and troops to Mexico to protect their interests after Juarez head of the government had decreed a suspension for two years of payment on the foreign loan the idea of an American empire was born in the mind of Napoleon

This soon became known to the British and the Spaniards who withdrew their troops in 1862 Pursuant to the plans of Napoleon the empire was proclaimed and the crown offered to Maximilian he and Charlotte landing on Mexican soil on May [illegible] 1864 At this time the government of the United States was fully occupied with the Civil war and the empire of Maximilian and Charlotte was sustained by the thousands of French troops who garrisoned the land and held the people in subjection

With the termination of the war in this country however Napoleon was given to understand that he could not set up an empire by armed force on this continent, and in May 1866 he sent word to Maximilian that the French troops were to be withdrawn The emperor would have abdicated at that time but ambition still ruled in the mind of Carlotta and she persuaded him to remain while she went to Europe in an endeavor to have Napoleon reconsider The latter at first refused to see her but after finally admitting her ordered her to leave the country

Charlotte then went to Rome to enlist the assistance of the pope but he too refused to have anything further to do with the Mexican affair It was while conversing with him that her reason tottered and fell She declared that she was starving and that attempts were being made to poison her Refusing to be comforted or to leave the Vatican she was allowed to remain there over night a bed being set up for her in the library

And while she was on her fruitless mission Maximilian was betrayed into the hands of the patriot army by a general who more than any other he had befriended and was shot His body was finally returned to Austria

Charlotte was returned to her native land Belgium where she was for a time restrained in the Chateau Laeken being later taken to the Chateau de Bouchoute where she has ever since remained She is now eighty five years old and there in the grim old chateau she lives and laughs and reigns again and raves but another victim of "that vaulting ambition that doth o'erleap itself"

AFTER 150 YEARS

Today is the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington

As the first contest in the revolutionary war it should enlist a thought from those who revere American institutions And what does history tell us about Lexington

On the night of April 18 1775 the Americans discovered the intention of General Gage to send a detachment of British troops to Concord for the purpose of destroying some military stores which had been collected there and also to seize the persons of John Hancock and Samuel Adams who were living temporarily in Lexington Information of this design was spread abroad by Paul Revere who rode from Charlestown to Lexington warning the farmers along the way On the same day General Gage who commanded the royal troops in Boston had picketed the roads in the vicinity and dispatched Lieutenant Colonel Smith with 800 men on the expedition to Concord When the advance of the British column reached Lexington in the early morning it was opposed by about 70 militiamen who had formed on the town common under command of Captain John Parker

The British were commanded by Major Pitcairn who on observing the preparations made to resist his progress halted his men to load and then advanced at double quick he himself riding in front and ordering the Americans to lay down their arms and retire As the militia held their ground Major Pitcairn fired his pistol at them and having given the order to his men the latter discharged their muskets with the result of killing four and wounding nine of the militiamen Three British soldiers were wounded

The royal forces continued on to Concord completed the purposes of their expedition in destroying the military stores and then retreated followed by the American militiamen Historically these stirring events are dismissed with the information that "the news of these encounters thrilled the country and impressed the Americans with the sense of their own capability to contend with the tried regulars of the British army"

Lexington was found in the morning hours Concord found the shades of evening drawing fast Little then was it anticipated that they should give birth to the greatest democracy history has recorded — a nation of 113 000 000 of people and possessing more wealth than any other country in the world

This day think of Lexington and Concord—of the resolute courage of those crude militiamen in whose breast burned the deep sting of injustice and the holy fires of a passionate devotion to the principle of freedom Does the lapse of 150 years find a great and powerful nation of people with the same consecration to the doctrines of liberty?

GOVERNMENTAL EMPLOYES

The Civil service commission announces with a pardonable show of pride that it has been able to dispense with the services of slightly over 4 000 federal employes without impairing the efficiency of the service

That is highly encouraging but it does not reflect the true conditions with respect to the office holders

While the commission was cutting down figures for all branches of the government show that over 15 000 new employes were added during the year of 1924 In other words new agencies and new activities of government created through legislative enactment added over three employes for every one lopped off the federal pay roll Under the circumstances it is not reasonable to expect much in the way of economy in governmental affairs while congress fails to practice thrift

The most serious indictment which is to be brought against the legislative branch of the national government is its reckless disregard of spending In the pork barrel legislation which was proposed at the last session appropriations $500 000 000 in excess of the president's budget were brought forward Congress initiates and passes these measures which constantly add to the burden of taxation The most thrifty executive finds his job extremely discouraging at times in the face of the extravagance of congress

THE GERMAN CAMPAIGN

It has been suggested that the new German republic gathered many of its ideas from America

Confirmation is found in the methds of campaign employed in this second selection of a president for the German people Former Chancellor Marx has been conducting a big stumping tour closely modelled along the lines made famous in America He is visiting and speaking in all of the great cities and in many of the smaller towns and villages of Germany Great crowds have gathered to hear him discuss the issues

Even the nationalists who are solidly backing the candidacy of Von Hindenburg have found it difficult to refrain from imitating their opponents in carrying their cause to the people For some days the Nationalists have been busy planning a big parade in Berlin Sunday evening when Hindenburg will visit the German capital

Germany will benefit from a campaign of this character The democracy which it typifies will be helpful in a nation but a short time removed from monarchial government

IMPORTS OF RAW MATERIAL

A distinct increase in the value of raw material imported last year indicates that manufacturers of the United States may turn out a record production in 1925

Although this country is largely independent in obtaining goods for finished products a number of important articles must be purchased abroad The volume of those purchases therefore is a fair barometer of the industrial outlook

The dozen substances demanded by American manufacturers and supplied abroad include India rubber hides and skins cotton silk wool colors and dyes certain grades of tobacco and certain grades of lumber Let us see how the importation of some of these articles in the last seven months of 1924 measured up with the imports during the same period of 1923 In nearly every case a large increase is shown The total value is very materially heightened standing at $750 000 000 for 1924 as compared with $673 000 000 for the year previous

For example take India rubber one of the most important of all foreign grown articles demanded by the United States and used chiefly in the rubber business For the single month of January 74 million pounds were brought in as compared with 50 million during January of the year previous

Raw silk of which by far the largest percentage comes from China and Japan has increased 6 million pounds wool has leaped up from 94 million to 139 million pounds finer grades of cotton from Egypt advanced from 62 to 80 millions and cattle hides and tobacco show similar advances

With these huge stocks of raw materials laid up and waiting for manufacture, it seems that little doubt should be entertained as to the growth of this year's factory output

I was perfectly willing they should have the drinks as long as I got the change

We have had quite an array of movie stars in to see us the last week or so Gloria Swanson come in one night all diked out in a new husband French model the latest thing from Paris You know if you wear a nation's dresses long enough you will naturally start in patronizing some of their other industries They both looked very (what do you call it?) chick They sat very modestly back in a couple of orchestra seats

The very next night in comes Pola Negri the Polish proletariot (I think that's what they call the big bugs in Poland) Pola had to sit in a box Her ermine tent wouldn't go into an orchestra seat She looked great and certainly was a poor advertisement for a charity drive to assist starving Poland I introduced her to the $6 50 customers the ladies of which viewing her raiment including jewels wraps gowns shoes sox and other minor necessary equipment (among which was a kind of a halter arrangement on the head) they assayed her at the lowest estimate at about $150 000 Just as she stood!"

She of course is very jealous of Gloria and having heard what Gloria had accumulated in the way of royalty as a helpmate through at least a portion of her struggles for existence through this dreary life Pola was sailing the next day to look the foreign market over to see if she couldn't return with a higher priced model than Gloria's

Europe is a kind of an auto sales room You can pass around through the various nations or booths and select a husband according to what you think you are able to afford One must always keep in mind that the initial cost is the lowest thing in connection with one It is the upkeep that will keep you made up and before the camera at 9 o'clock every morning

Of course the war has had a lot to do with prices in purchasing a titled husband It used to take a Gould or a Vanderbilt or a Tin Plate king's daughter But now they have them within the reach of all It used to be very discouraging to the moderately rich to feel that they were denied the companionship and prestige of a title But the war has so lowered the morals and finances of the titled classes that now they would loan their name to even a Bull Durham ad if three steady meals a day was offered in recompense They have placed themselves even in reach of the working girl

Of course there are different models My old friend the Prince of Wales, is the Rolls Royce of the outfit Nobody but a daughter of Henry Ford could afford him and as Uncle Henry has no daughter that lets the Prince out as far as America is concerned So then we will have to go down among the Packards Cadillacs Buicks and even Fords Still when you get down among those small titles they are really not worth paying the fare to bring them over here Women are just beginning to realize we have em in this country just as good as those cheaper grades

To pay first class fare on a count or a sir (or any of these minor league titles) to bring over here would be just like entering an automobile parade in a Chevrolet I know some of them over here waiting in restaurants that are only two revolutions removed from the crown I am sending little Anne Pennington (she who is so kneasy to look at) over to Europe to journey into the marts of stranded titles and return with a couple of them (bring two back one don't last long She can pick out a couple of little ones

Then who should pop into our opera house after these two notables from Hollywood but my friend Tom Mix He is on his way to Europe taking Tony the horse over to show him the country Tom said he had read somewhere in history that some fellow over there had offered A Kingdom for a Horse and he was going over to try and make a deal with him

It seemed sort of a coincident that just exactly 20 years ago this week Tom Mix and I arrived in New York with Col Zack Mulhall's Wild West outfit to show in Madison Square Garden as a part of the horse show It was not a regular Wild West show it was a bunch of boys he had gathered together out on his ranch in Oklahoma with his daughter Lucille Mulhall who was the greatest roper of any girl before or since That was Tom Mix's first start on his Wild West career We didn't get much money in fact our salary was supposed to be $20 a week I told Tom in the theatre the other night, that was the only time we were ever paid just about what we were worth That was one time we were not overpaid actors because we didn't even get the twenty

But he was a great old fellow Mulhall a typical old time westerner We would touch him so much at odd times we never had anything coming He was a very liberal fellow and in those days of bar rooms would always order drinks for everybody in the place and hand the bartender a bill of perhaps $20 to pay for what was to [illegible] check and my great habit was to edge in next to him when the man put the change back in front of him and I would grab it and duck with it Well he thought that was a great joke and so did I In fact I think it was one of the best jokes I ever pulled He would laugh and that would make a good fellow out of him with the crowd and incidentally keep from making a tramp out of me I was perfectly willing that they could have the drinks as long as I got the change

Our best rider and principal cowboy at that time was Jack Joyce who happened to be playing in New York last week (He has been in Europe for 15 years and returned over here to vaudeville with the greatest trained horse act you ever saw) So we all had a reunion Tom arrived with a wife and child and 10 trunks I told him the first time we came to New York we didn't have a suit case between us Tom married his leading lady Victoria Ford several years ago Lots of movie stars marry their leading lady but the trouble is they marry every one they make a picture with Tom had enough money to get back on after our show that time but I had to stay in New York and get a job on the stage So I have been an [illegible] ever since off and on

Well I didn't think any one could come into our opera house who would surpass these movie people but sure enough last night I looked down in the second row and who should be there but the best beloved actor of our time David Warfield I introduced him and roped him and dragged him up on the stage He got a real ovation So I feel very proud everybody has been trying to get Warfield to return to the stage and can't do it But he come up last night under my management I told the audience that the reason Warfield was not on the stage was that Belasco wanted him to play in The Harem and that naturally Mr Warfield would not play in that type play (and the audience all applauded that) He wanted to play in Ladies of the Evening or nothing He couldn't get a job in one of our modern dramas He can't cuss good enough I don't know what we will have for excitement this coming week Maybe Mr Coolidge will be in to look us over I see he has a new suit

HOW MY WIFE AND I BUILT OUR HOME FOR ONLY $4 90.

Related in the Manner of the Best Models in the Magazines

'Next morning we commenced work in earnest'

I was leaning up against the mantlepiece in a lounge suit which I had made out of old ice bags and Beryl my wife was seated at my feet on a low Louis Quinze tabouret which she had made out of a Finnan Haddie fishbox when the idea of a bungalow came to both of us at the same time

It would be just lovely if we could do it exclaimed Beryl coiling herself around my knee

Why not I replied lifting her up a little by the ear With your exquisite taste—

And with your knowledge of material added Beryl giving me a tiny pinch on the leg— Oh I am sure we could do it One reads so much in all the magazines about people making summer bungalows and furnishing them for next to nothing Oh do let us try Dogyard

We talked over our project all night and the next morning we sallied forth to try to find a site for our new home As Beryl (who was brimming over with fun as the result of talking all night) put it The first thing is to get the ground

An Obliging Owner

Here fortune favored us We had hardly got to the edge of the town when Beryl suddenly exclaimed Oh look Dogyard look there's exactly the site It was a piece of waste land on the edge of a gully with a brickyard on one side of it and a gravel pit on the other It had no trees on it and it was covered with ragged heaps of tin cans old newspapers and stones and litter of broken lumber

Beryl's quick eye saw the possibilities of the situation at once Oh Dogyard she exclaimed isn't it just sweet We can clear away all this litter and plant a catalpha tree to hide the brickyard and a hedge of copernicus or nux vomica to hide the gravel pit and some bright flowers to hide the hedge I wish I had brought some catalpha seed They grow so quickly

We'd better at least wait I said till we have bought the ground

And here a sudden piece of good fortune awaited us It so happened that the owner of the lot was on the spot at the time—he was seated on a stone whittling a stick while we were talking and presented himself to us After a short discussion he agreed to sell us the ground for one dollar in cash and fifty cents on a three years mortgage The deed of sale was written out on the spot and stamped with a two cent stamp and the owner of the lot took his departure with every expression of good will And the magic sense of being owners of our own ground rendered us both jubilant

A Herculean Task

That evening Beryl seated on her little stool at my feet took a pencil and paper and set down triumphantly a statement of the cost of our bungalow up to date I introduce it here as a help to readers who may hope to follow in our footsteps

Ground site	$1 50
Stamp for mortgage	02
Car fare	10
Total	$1 62

I checked over Beryl's arithmetic twice and found it strictly correct

Next morning we commenced work in earnest While Beryl cleared away the cans and litter I set to work with spade and shovel excavating our cellar and digging out the foundations And here I must admit that I had no light task I can only warn those who wish to follow in our footsteps that they must be prepared to face hard work

Owing perhaps to my inexperience it took me the whole of the morning to dig out a cellar forty feet long and twenty feet wide Beryl who had meantime cleaned up the lot stacked the lumber lifted away the stones and planted fifty yards of hedge was inclined to be a little impatient But I reminded her that a contractor working with a gang of men and two or three teams of horses would have taken a whole week to do what I did in one morning

Beryl Puts Her Foot Down

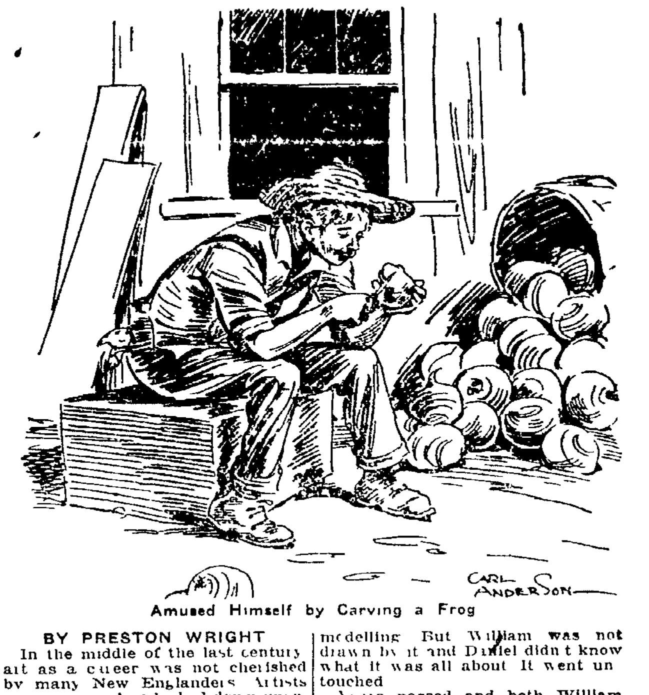
One of First Who Discerned Great American's Worth Was May Alcott, Sister of Celebrated Louisa Alcott —She provided Him with Materials for Modeling and Also Encouraged Him



Amused Himself by Carving a Frog

BY PRESTON WRIGHT

In the middle of the last century art as a career was not cherished by many New Englanders Artists were more or less looked down upon

One of the few exceptions was Henry F French of Exeter N H and later of Concord a noted lawyer of his day and at one time assistant secretary of the United States treasury

An attorney and the son of an attorney Henry F French loved good paintings and good sculpturing And when in the course of time he married and was blessed with two sons he sincerely hoped one of them would be an artist

He watched those two boys rather intently for evidences of a talent that would be a fulfillment of his hopes Eventually he was rewarded The younger of them Daniel Chester French became one of the greatest of American sculptors Today at seventy five he still is producing masterpieces that will be the delight of Americans for many centuries to come

Perhaps the example of his work that is best known is the great statue of the sitting Lincoln which is so impressive a part of the beautiful Lincoln Memorial at Washington It was done in 1920 From that year back to an Autumn day in 1868 when Dan French then a lad of eighteen used his pocket knife to carve a semblance of a frog from a large fat turnip is a far journey but there is a close connection If the boy hadn't fashioned the frog the man might not made the statue of Lincoln

To begin with Daniel Chester R French seemed likely to be the French's elder brother William M artist of the family He sketched readily and well

Daniel Chester French's earliest recollection of any sort of plastic art dates from a winter day at his home when he was in his fifth or sixth year and William was about eleven

Come with me said William There's a lion out there in a snow drift and I'm going to dig him out

The puzzled Daniel followed out He could see no lion but presently after hard work his big brother modelled a creature that bore a close resemblance to one Then he understood

Nursing the hope that one of his sons would be an artist Judge French threw various assistances in their path For instance he brought home one day a bag of clay for modelling But William was not drawn by it and Daniel didn't know what it was all about It went untouched

Years passed and both William and Daniel approached manhood William decided to be a civil engineer As for Daniel—

Apparently I had no particular ambition he says

Judge French began to fear his desires were not going to be gratified

Then things took a turn for the better

Daniel Chester French at eighteen was not a very strong youth It was decided that outdoor work would help him So he began laboring on his father's farm near Concord where the family now lived

Cutting in the crop of turnips one day he amused himself by carving a frog from one of them It was a good piece of work and it impressed Judge French

I believe the boy has talent he said

May Alcott sister of the famous Louisa Alcott whose books have delighted millions of children—and grown ups too—was a friend of the French family She was an artist and modelled quite a bit The judge told her about his son's masterpiece

He ought to have some clay to work with said Miss Alcott Send him to me

Young French went to her She gave him some clay and needed tools in addition to some instructions

His first production was a panther as nearly as he can remember

I don't know how good it was he says now but Miss Alcott was enough impressed to encourage me to do more

Judge French was delighted Instruction was next in order but there was no school where the young man could be sent The nearest approach was a class in artistic anatomy and the human figure conducted by a Dr William Rimmer in Boston Daniel Chester French became his pupil

Dr Rimmer soon decided he had become the guardian of a great talent His belief was justified Four years later in his twenty third year Mr French was commissioned to model the famous group of The Minute Men at Lexington

From that he proceeded to one triumph after another

TREE PLANTING IN NEBRASKA

For those who live in the cities and towns of Nebraska, and even the people who live in the great open spaces of the country, the Arbor Day proclamation of Governor Adam McMullen should hold a new significance.

Nebraska has outgrown the legend of the unbroken prairie except for isolated sections in the far western sections.

Those purposes which originally provided the inspiration for tree-planting no longer exist. Shade is no longer the sole consideration to dictate the setting out of trees and shrubbery. It has been very largely replaced with a desire for beautification and ornamentation.

What a change it is!

In those earlier days when sturdy men and equally courageous women were carving a great commonwealth from the rolling billows of prairie, broken at intervals by sluggish, winding streams, upon whose banks a few scrubby willow raised their branches to the skies, the demand for shade dictated the planting of hardy trees which would achieve a quick, rapid growth. So it was that cottonwood and other of the soft wood varieties which in a brief span of years attained substantial size, came to be planted to vast numbers. Every farm home had its row of cottonwoods. Even in the towns and cities, hundreds and thousands of cottonwoods were planted because it was recognized that few varieties would grow more rapidly. What was beauty in the face of the insistent demand for shelter and protection from the hot sun?

The botanist might tell you that the willow and the cottonwood and some of the other varieties of soft woods were symbolical of a certain period in Nebraska history. Certainly they are grim reminders of that day when men and women were engaged in the mighty task of conquering a new country which was largely devoid of the friendly presence of trees.

Those who come to us from the northern lake region and from the New England states where the most magnificent and inspiring specimens of tree-life are found sometimes have expressed wonderment that so little discrimination should have been shown in the selection of trees in Nebraska. Many times it has been suggested that the magestic chestnut, the oak, the English elm, the sugar maple, and some of the other varieties which have added color and beauty to the landscape of these northern and eastern states were not adapted to Nebraska climate and Nebraska soil conditions.

The city of Lincoln was a pioneer in disproving this belief.

During the administration of ex-Mayor J. E. Miller, Lincoln took the initial step in deciding to secure better and more beautiful varieties of tree life. Under an ordinance passed by the council, the city reestablished its authority over the trees planted in the parking areas.

For better than five years now, under the direction of Park Superintendent Edinborough, there has been a wholesale removal of unsightly and annoying cottonwoods, wormy elms, and other of these trees which detracted from Lincoln's appearance. Since the work was first started, it has been estimated that fully 8,000 trees have been removed from the parking spaces. But the city did not stop there. It secured samples of soil from every section of town. These were carefully analyzed to determine what variety of tree life was best adapted to the specific conditions found there. And in pursuance of its policy of planting the more beautiful varieties of trees, the city has been planting hundreds of specimens of hard woods or semi-hard woods. Each spring between 1,000 and 2,000 young trees are set out in these parking places. In the four years over 4,500 fine trees have been placed in the parking areas and in a few more years they will add their beauty to the streets of Lincoln.

The process must necessarily be slow, but in another twenty-five years the results will be more apparent.

The injunction to plant trees still holds in Nebraska. But in the planting, great care should be taken to select those varieties which possess the greatest beauty. Time is no longer the largest element.

A FORMER AMERICAN EMPRESS.

Comparatively few Americans, it is probable, realize that there lives in Europe today, a woman who at one time wore a royal crown and reigned an empress on North American soil. This is not to be wondered at, however, for former Empress Charlotte, or as she was more generally known, Carlotta, realizes the fact herself only at fleeting intervals, for she has been stark mad for almost sixty years. Prior to the time her reason was dethroned she was empress of Mexico for almost three years.

Charlotte is the daughter of King Leopold I of Belgium, and her husband, Maximilian, was a brother of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. Ambition was the guiding star of both, and the dazzling light which lured the one to a tragic death and the other to a far worse fate. The blame for the Mexican fiasco cannot, however, be laid entirely upon the unhappy pair who were the chief sufferers, for it was Napoleon III of France who was primarily responsible for the affair. When England, France and Spain in 1861 joined in sending fleets and troops to Mexico to protect their interests, after Juarez, head of the government, had decreed a suspension for two years of payment on the foreign loan, the idea of an American empire was born in the mind of Napoleon.

This soon became known to the British and the Spaniards, who withdrew their troops in 1862. Pursuant to the plans of Napoleon the empire was proclaimed and the crown offered to Maximilian, he and Charlotte landing on Mexican soil on May 29, 1864. At this time the government of the United States was fully occupied with the Civil war and the empire of Maxmilian and Charlotte was sustained by the thousands of French troops who garrisoned the land and held the people in subjection.

With the termination of the war in this country, however, Napoleon was given to understand that he could not set up an empire by armed force on this continent, and in May, 1866, he sent word to Maximilian that the French troops were to be withdrawn. The emperor would have abdicated at that time, but ambition still ruled in the mind of Carlotta and she persuaded him to remain while she went to Europe in an endeavor to have Napoleon reconsider. The latter at first refused to see her, but after finally admitting her, ordered her to leave the country.

Charlotte then went to Rome to enlist the assistance of the pope, but he too refused to have anything further to do with the Mexican affair. It was while conversing with him that her reason tottered and fell. She declared that she was starving and that attempts were being made to poison her. Refusing to be comforted or to leave the vatican, she was allowed to remain their over night, a bed being set up for her in the library.

And while she was on her fruitless mission Maximilian was betrayed into the hands of the patriot army by a general who more than any other he had befriended, and was shot. His body was finally returned to Austria.

Charlotte was returned to her native land, Belgium, where she was for a time restrained in the Chateau Laeken, being later taken to the Chateau de Bouchoute, where she has ever since remained. She is now eighty-five years old, and there in the grim old chateau she lives and laughs and reigns again and raves, but another victim of "that vaulting ambition that doth o'erleap itself."

AFTER 150 YEARS.

Today is the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington.

As the first contest in the revolutionary war, it should enlist a thought from those who revere American institutions. And what does history tell us about Lexington.

"On the night of April 18, 1775, the Americans discovered the intention of General Gage to send a detachment of British troops to Concord for the purpose of destroying some military stores which had been collected there, and also to seize the persons of John Hancock and Samuel Adams who were living temporarily in Lexington. Information of this design was spread abroad by Paul Revere, who rode from Charlestown to Lexington, warning the farmers along the way. On the same day General Gage, who commanded the royal troops in Boston, had picketed the roads in the vicinity and dispatched Lieutenant Colonel Smith with 800 men on the expedition to Concord. When the advance of the British column reached Lexington in the early morning it was opposed by about 70 militiamen, who had formed on the town common under command of Captain John Parker.

"The British were commanded by Major Pitcairn, who, on observing the preparations made to resist his progress, halted his men to load, and then advanced at double quick, he himself riding in front and ordering the Americans to lay down their arms and retire. As the militia held their ground, Major Pitcairn fired his pistol at them, and having given the order to his men, the latter discharged their muskets, with the result of killing four and wounding nine of the militiamen. Three British soldiers were wounded."

The royal forces continued on to Concord, completed the purposes of their expedition in destroying the military stores and then retreated, followed by the American militiamen. Historically these stirring events are dismissed with the information that "the news of these encounters thrilled the country and impressed the Americans with the sense of their own capability to contend with the tried regulars of the British army."

Lexington was found in the morning hours. Concord found the shades of evening drawing fast. Little then was it anticipated that they should give birth to the greatest democracy history has recorded — a nation of 113,000,000 of people and possessing more wealth than any other country in the world.

This day think of Lexington and Concord—of the resolute courage of those crude militiamen in whose breast burned the deep sting of injustice and the holy fires of a passionate devotion to the principle of freedom. Does the lapse of 150 years find a great and powerful nation of people with the same consecration to the doctrines of liberty?

GOVERNMENTAL EMPLOYES.

The Civil service commission, announces with a pardonable show of pride, that it has been able to dispense with the services of slightly over 4,000 federal employes without impairing the efficiency of the service.

That is highly encouraging but it does not reflect the true conditions with respect to the office-holders.

While the commission was cutting down, figures for all branches of the government show that over 15,000 new employes were added during the year of 1924. In other words, new agencies and new activities of government, created through legislative enactment, added over three employes for every one lopped off the federal pay roll. Under the circumstances it is not reasonable to expect much in the way of economy in governmental affairs while congress fails to practice thrift.

The most serious indictment which is to be brought against the legislative branch of the national government is its reckless disregard of spending. In the pork barrel legislation which was proposed at the last session, appropriations $500,000,000 in excess of the president's budget were brought forward. Congress initiates and passes these measures which constantly add to the burden of taxation. The most thrifty executive finds his job extremely discouraging at times in the face of the extravagance of congress.

THE GERMAN CAMPAIGN.

It has been suggested that the new German republic gathered many of its ideas from America.

Confirmation is found in the methds of campaign employed in this second selection of a president for the German people. Former Chancellor Marx has been conducting a big "stumping tour" closely modelled along the lines made famous in America. He is visiting and speaking in all of the great cities and in many of the smaller towns and villages of Germany. Great crowds have gathered to hear him discuss the issues.

Even the nationalists, who are solidly backing the candidacy of Von Hindenburg have found it difficult to refrain from imitating their opponents in carrying their cause to the people. For some days the Nationalists have been busy planning a big parade in Berlin Sunday evening, when Hindenburg will visit the German capital.

Germany will benefit from a campaign of this character. The democracy which it typifies will be helpful in a nation but a short time removed from monarchial government.

IMPORTS OF RAW MATERIAL.

A distinct increase in the value of raw material imported last year indicates that manufacturers of the United States may turn out a record production in 1925.

Although this country is largely independent in obtaining goods for finished products, a number of important articles must be purchased abroad. The volume of those purchases, therefore, is a fair barometer of the industrial outlook.

The dozen substances demanded by American manufacturers and supplied abroad include India rubber, hides and skins, cotton, silk, wool, colors and dyes, certain grades of tobacco, and certain grades of lumber. Let us see how the importation of some of these articles in the last seven months of 1924 measured up with the imports during the same period of 1923. In nearly every case, a large increase is shown. The total value is very materially heightened, standing at $750,000,000 for 1924 as compared with $679,000,000 for the year previous.

For example, take India rubber, one of the most important of all foreign grown articles demanded by the United States and used chiefly in the rubber business. For the single month of January, 74 million pounds were brought in, as compared with 50 million during January of the year previous.

Raw silk, of which by far the largest percentage comes from China and Japan, has increased 6 million pounds; wool has leaped up from 94 million to 139 million pounds; finer grades of cotton from Egypt advanced from 62 to 80 millions, and cattle hides and tobacco show similar advances.

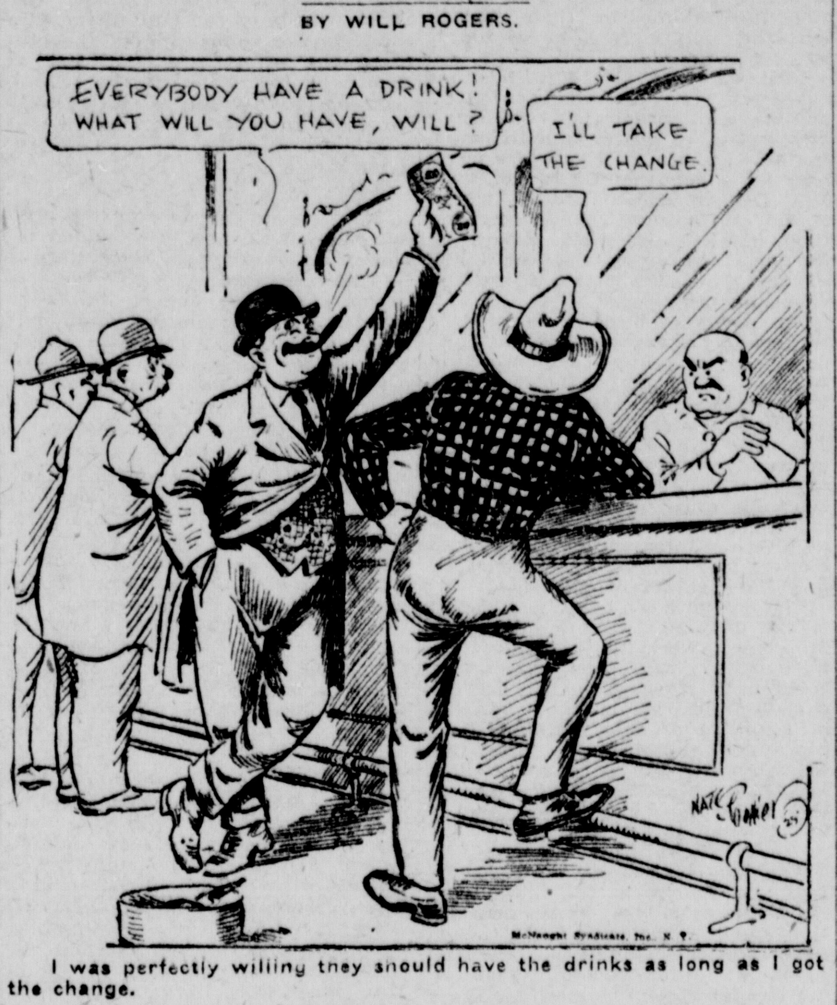
With these huge stocks of raw materials laid up and waiting for manufacture, it seems that little doubt should be entertained as to the growth of this year's factory output.

"Ticket?" said the absent minded conductor as he passed down the church aisle.

Another way to cover up your ignorance of a subject is to appear broadminded and let the other fellow do the talking.

The Worst About These Titled French Husbands Is Their Upkeep

BY WILL ROGERS.



EVERYBODY HAVE A DRINK! WHAT WILL YOU HAVE, WILL?
I'LL TAKE THE CHANGE.
NATE COLLIER
McNaught Syndicate, Inc. N. Y.

I was perfectly willing they should have the drinks as long as I got the change.

We have had quite an array of movie stars in to see us the last week or so, Gloria Swanson come in one night all diked out in a new husband, French model, the latest thing from Paris. You know if you wear a nation's dresses long enough you will naturally start in patronizing some of their other industries. They both looked very (what do you call it?) chick. They sat very modestly back in a couple of orchestra seats.

The very next night in comes Pola Negri, the Polish proletariot, (I think that's what they call the big bugs in Poland.) Pola had to sit in a box. Her ermine tent wouldn't go into an orchestra seat. She looked great and certainly was a poor advertisement for a charity drive, "to assist starving Poland." I introduced her to the $5.50 customers, the ladies of which, viewing her raiment including jewels, wraps, gowns, shoes, sox and other minor necessary equipment (among which was a kind of a halter arrangement on the head) they assayed her at the lowest estimate, at about $150,000. Just as she stood!"

She of course is very jealous of Gloria and having heard what Gloria had accumulated in the way of royalty, as a helpmate through at least a portion of her struggles for existence through this dreary life, Pola was sailing the next day to look the foreign market over to see if she couldn't return with a higher priced model than Gloria's.

Europe is a kind of an auto sales room. You can pass around through the various nations or booths and select a husband according to what you think you are able to afford. One must always keep in mind that the initial cost is the lowest thing in connection with one. It is the upkeep that will keep you made up and before the camera at 9 o'clock every morning.

Of course the war has had a lot to do with prices in purchasing a titled husband. It used to take a Gould or a Vanderbilt or a Tin Plate king's daughter. But now they have them within the reach of all. It used to be very discouraging to the moderately rich, to feel that they were denied the companionship and prestige of a title. But the war has so lowered the morals and finances, of the titled classes that now they would loan their name to even a Bull Durham ad, if three steady meals a day was offered in recompense. They have placed themselves even in reach of the working girl.

Of course there are different models. My old friend the Prince of Wales, is the Rolls Royce of the outfit. Nobody but a daughter of Henry Ford could afford him, and as Uncle Henry has no daughter that lets the Prince out as far as America is concerned. So then we will have to go down among the Packards, Cadilacs, Buicks and even Fords. Still when you get down among those small titles they are really not worth paying the fare to bring them over here. Women are just beginning to realize, we have 'em in this country just as good as those cheaper grades.

To pay first class fare on a count, or a sir, (or any of these minor league titles) to bring over here, would be just like entering an automobile parade in a Chevrolet. I know some of them over here waiting in restaurants that are only two revolutions removed from the crown. I am sending little Anne Pennington, (she who is so kneasy to look at) over to Europe to journey into the marts of stranded titles, and return with a couple of them, (bring two back; one don't last long. She can pick out a couple of little ones.

Then who should pop into our opera house after these two notables from Hollywood but my friend Tom Mix. He is on his way to Europe taking Tony the horse, over to show him the country. Tom said he had read "somewhere in history that some fellow over there had offered A Kingdom for a Horse, and he was going over to try and make a deal with him."

It seemed sort of a co-incident that just exactly 20 years ago this week Tom Mix and I arrived in New York with Col. Zack Mulhall's Wild West outfit to show in Madison Square Garden as a part of the horse show. It was not a regular Wild West show; it was a bunch of boys he had gathered together out on his ranch in Oklahoma, with his daughter Lucille Mulhall, who was the greatest roper of any girl before or since. That was Tom Mix's first start on his Wild West career. We didn't get much money; in fact our salary was supposed to be $20 a week. I told Tom in the theatre the other night, that was the only time we were ever paid just about what we were worth. That was one time we were not overpaid actors, because we didn't even get the twenty.

But he was a great old fellow, Mulhall, a typical old time westerner. We would touch him so much at odd times we never had anything coming. He was a very liberal fellow and in those days of bar rooms would always order drinks for everybody in the place and hand the bartender a bill of perhaps $20 to pay for what was $5 or $6 check and my great habit was to edge in next to him when the man put the change back in front of him, and I would grab it and duck with it. Well he thought that was a great joke, and so did I. In fact I think it was one of the best jokes I ever pulled. He would laugh and that would make a good fellow out of him with the crowd, and incidentally keep from making a tramp out of me. I was perfectly willing that they could have the drinks as long as I got the change.

Our best rider and principal cowboy at that time was Jack Joyce, who happened to be playing in New York last week. (He has been in Europe for 18 years and returned over here to vaudeville with the greatest trained horse act you ever saw.) So we all had a reunion. To arrived with a wife and child and 10 trunks. I told him the first time we came to New York we didn't have a suit case between us. Tom married his leady lady, Victoria Ford, several years ago. Lots of movie stars marry their leading lady but the trouble is they marry every one they make a picture with. Tom had enough money to get back on after our show that time but I had to stay in New York and get a job on the stage. So I have been annoying these eastern people ever since, off and on.

Well, I didn't think any one could come into our opera house who would surpass these movie people but sure enough last night I looked down in the second row and who should be there but the best beloved actor of our time, David Warfield. I introduced him and roped him and dragged him up on the stage. He got a real ovation. So, I feel very proud, everybody has been trying to get Warfield to return to the stage and can't do it. But he come up last night under my management. I told the audience that the reason Warfield was not on the stage was that Belasco wanted him to play in "The Harem," and that naturally Mr. Warfield would not play in that type play (and the audience all applauded that). He wanted to play in "Ladies of the Evening," or nothing. He couldn't get a job in one of our modern dramas. He can't cuss good enough. I don't know what we will have for excitement this coming week. Maybe Mr. Coolidge will be in to look us over. I see he has a new suit.

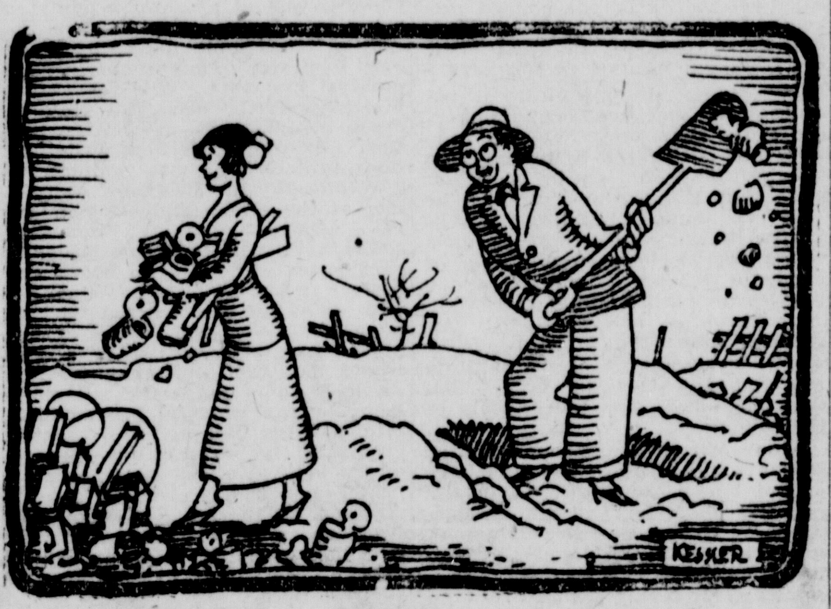
HOW MY WIFE AND I BUILT OUR HOME FOR ONLY $4.90.

Related in the Manner of the Best Models in the Magazines.



"Next morning we commenced work in earnest."

I was leaning up against the mantlepiece in a lounge suit which I had made out of old ice bags, and Beryl, my wife, was seated at my feet on a low Louis Quinze tabouret which she had made out of a Finan Haddle fishbox, when the idea of a bungalow came to both of us at the same time.

"It would be just lovely if we could do it." exclaimed Beryl, coiling herself around my knee.

"Why not," I replied, lifting her up a little by the ear. "With your exquisite taste,—"

"And with your knowledge of material," added Bery, giving e a tiny pinch on the leg—"Oh, I am sure we could do it! One reads so much in al the magazines about people making summer bungalows and furnishing them for next to nothing. Oh, do let us try, Dogyard."

We talked over our project all night, and the next morning we sallied forth to try to find a site for our new home. As Beryl (who was brimming over with fun as the result of taking all night) put it, "The first thing is to get the ground."

An Obliging Owner.

Here fortune favored us. We had hardly got to the edge of the town when Beryl suddenly exclaimed, "Oh look, Dogyard, look, there's exactly the site!" It was a piece of waste land on the edge of a gully with a brickyard on one side of it and a gravel pit on the other. It had no trees on it, and it was covered with ragged heaps of tin cans, old newspapers, and stones, and a litter of broken lumber.

Beryl's quick eye saw the possibilities of the situation at once. "Oh Dogyard!" she exclaimed, "isn't it just sweet. We can clear away all this litter and plant a catalpha tree to hide the brickyard and a hedge of copernicus or nux vomica to hide the gravel pit, and some bright flowers to hide the hedge. I wish I had brought some catalpha seed. They grow so quickly."

"We'd better at least wait, I said" "till we have bought the ground.'

And here a sudden piece of good fortune awaited us. It so happened that the owner of the lot was on the spot at the time—he was seated on a stone whittling a stick while we were talking, and presented himself to us. After a short discussion he agreed to sell us the ground for one dollar in cash and fifty cents on a three years' mortgage. The deed of sale was written out on the spot and stamped with a two-cent stamp and the owner of the lot took his departure with every expression of good will. And the magic sense of being owners of our own ground rendered us both jubilant.

A Herculean Task.

That evening Beryl, seated on her little stool at my feet, took a pencil and paper and set down triumphantly a statement of the cost of our bungalow up to date. I introduce it here as a help to readers who may hope to follow in our footsteps:

Ground site	$1.50
Stamp for mortgage	.02
Car fare	.10
Total	$1.62

I checked over Beryl's arithmetic twice and found it strictly correct.

Next morning we commenced work in earnest. While Beryl cleared away the cans and litter, I set to work with spade and shovel excavating our cellar and digging out the foundations. And here I must admit that I had no light task. I can only warn those who wish to follow in our footsteps that they must be prepared to face hard work.

Owing perhaps to my inexperience, it took me the whole of the morning to dig out a cellar forty feet long and twenty feet wide. Beryl, who had meantime cleaned up the lot, stacked the lumber, lifted away the stones and planted fifty yards of hedge; was inclined to be a little impatient. But I reminded her that a contractor working with a gang of men and two or three teams of horses would have taken a whole week to do what I did in one morning.

Beryl Puts Her Foot Down.

I admitted that my work was not equal to the best records as related in the weekly home journals, where

DISCOVERIES IN HUMANS

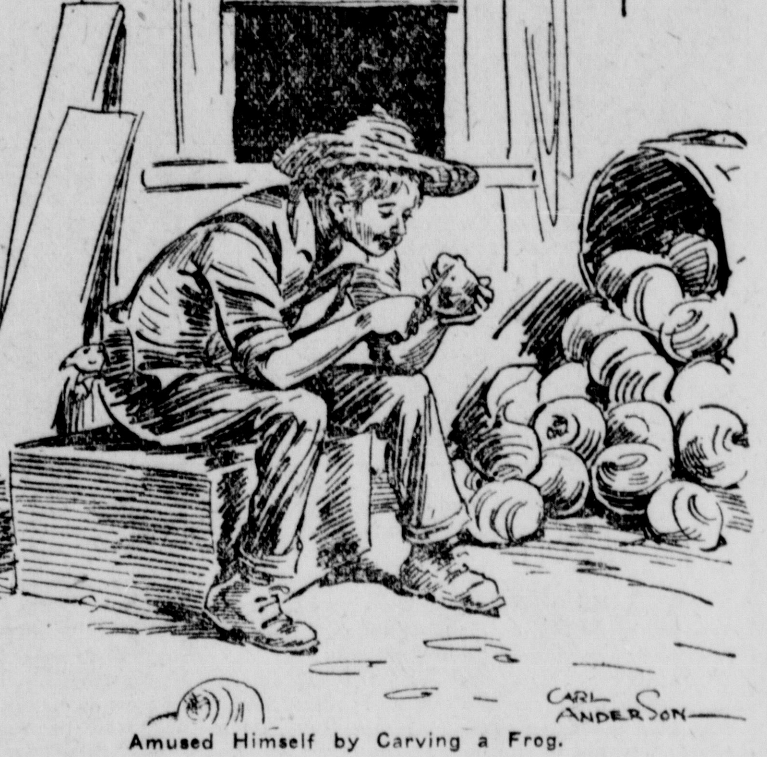
One of First Who Discerned Great American's Worth Was May Alcott, Sister of Celebrated Louisa Alcott — She provided Him with Materials for Modeling and Also Encouraged Him.



Amused Himself by Carving a Frog.

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

In the middle of the last century, art as a career was not cherished by many New Englanders. Artists were more or less looked down upon.

One of the few exceptions was Henry F. French, of Exeter, N. H., and later of Concord, a noted lawyer of his day and at one time assistant secretary of the United States treasury.

An attorney and the son of an attorney, Henry F. French loved good paintings and good sculpturing. And when, in the course of time, he married and was blessed with two sons, he sincerely hoped one of them would be an artist.

He watched those two boys rather intently for evidences of a talent that would be a fulfillment of his hopes. Eventually he was rewarded. The younger of them, Daniel Chester French, became one of the greatest of American sculptors. Today, at seventy-five, he still is producing masterpieces that will be the delight of Americans for many centuries to come.

Perhaps the example of his work that is best known is the great statue of the sitting Lincoln which is so impressive a part of the beautiful Lincoln Memorial at Washington. It was done in 1920. From that year back to an Autumn day in 1868, when Dan French, then a lad of eighteen, used his pocket knife to carve a semblance of a frog from a large, fat turnip, is a far journey, but there is a close connection. If the boy hadn't fashioned the frog the man might not made the statue of Lincoln.

To begin with, Daniel Chester R. French, seemed likely to be the French's elder brother, William M. artist of the family. He sketched readily and well.

Daniel Chester French's earliest recollection of any sort of plastic art dates from a winter day at his home when he was in his fifth or sixth year and William was about eleven.

"Come with me," said William. "There's a lion out there in a snowdrift and I'm going to dig him out."

The puzzled Daniel followed out. He could see no lion, but presently after hard work, his big brother modelled a creature that bore a close resemblance to one. Then he understood

Nursing the hope that one of his sons would be an artist, Judge French threw various assistances in their path. For instance he brought home one day a bag of clay for modelling. But William was not drawn by it and Daniel didn't know what it was all about. It went untouched.

Years passed and both William and Daniel approached manhood. William decided to be a civil engineer. As for Daniel—

'Apparently I had no particular ambition," he says.

Judge French began to fear his desires were not going to be gratified.

Then things took a turn for the better.

Daniel Chester French at eighteen was not a very strong youth. It was decided that outdoor work would help him. So he began laboring on his father's farm near Concord, where the family now lived.

Getting in the crop of turnips one day, he amused himself by carving a frog from one of them. It was a good piece of work and it impressed Judge French.

"I believe the boy has talent," he said.

May Alcott, sister of the famous Louisa Alcott, whose books have delighted millions of children—and grown-ups, too—was a friend of the French family. She was an artist and modelled quite a bit. The judge told her about his son's masterpiece.

"He ought to have some clay to work with," said Miss Alcott. "Send him to me."

Young French went to her. She gave him some clay and needed tools, in addition to some instructions.

His first production was a panther, as nearly as he can remember.

"I don't know how good it was," he says, now, "but Miss Alcott was enough impressed to encourage me to do more."

Judge French was delighted. Instruction was next in order, but there was no school where the young man could be sent. The nearest approach was a class in artistic anatomy and the human figure conducted by a Dr. William Rimmer in Boston. Daniel Chester French became his pupil.

Dr. Rimmer soon decided he had become the guardian of a great talent. His belief was justified. Four years later, in his twenty-third year, Mr. French was commissioned to model the famous group of "The Minute Men" at Lexington.

From that he proceeded to one triumph after another.

'LOVE FOR LOVE' BY CONGREVE LATEST REVIVAL

Naughty, Scintilating Play From Ye Olden Times Makes Hit.

BY BRETT PAGE

NEW YORK April 18—The latest play to intrigue Manhattan is—guess what? Not some frothy spectacle not a risque farce from the facile typewriter of Avery Hopwood or Wilson Collison Not a spring revival from the nineties but William Congreve's Love for Love

This antique glistening with naughty wit and not devoid of a gossamer like good humor was resuscitated by the indomitable Provincetown Players not at the avowedly experienced theater of that name but in the more substantial Greenwich Village auditorium Kenneth McGowan the director in chief evidently knew in advance that he had a substantial hit on his hands

It is all of that and then some As a picture of Restoration manners and morals the latter a little dingy it is superb And it has the additional merit of being immensely funny Whether the censors will get after it I cannot predict Probably not inasmuch as the agitation against improper plays seems to have perished from unpernicious anemia

But I do know that—so quickly does word of mouth advertising spread the carols of a new success—the second night was a sell out and now the whole town's agog It is the smart thing to do just as it was the correct thing to see the Charlot Revue half a dozen times and Rose Marie a round dozen

It is a brisk and beautiful performance which the players present Walter Abel late of Beyond Noel Tearle who has not appeared locally since The Enchanted Cottage Edgar Stehli the lovely Helen Freeman the statuesque Ardienne Morrison last seen here in The Piker with Lionel Barrymore and the willowy Rosalind Fuller—these are some of the best artists in a long cast

The sets by Robert Edmund Jones are miracles of subtle beauty and the direction is lively gaited I personally could do with fewer old English songs which bob up like apples in a Halloween tub every now and then

See Love for Love if you are amused by broad comedy but leave the children at home or send them to the Hippodrome

From Ticket Taker To Author

Lulu Vollmer who used to be the nicest ticket saleswoman in the world—she worked for the Theater Guild at the old Garrick—is now a personage with three produced plays to her credit

Her first Sun Up with Lucille La Verne was the best of the lot I fancy The Shame Woman if it had not been for the exquisite acting of Minnie Dupree and Florence Rittenhouse would have died, a dog's death but their labors kept it alive a long time

Now Miss Vollmer's The Dunce Boy is in our midst and while it has fine flashes of talent in the writing I can scarcely say that it is the equal of Sun Up Much interest attaches to the production because it serves as a vehicle for Gareth Hughes to make his re entry into the legitimate ranks after a long apprenticeship in the pictures

Put none too delicately the title part is that of an idiot He is becoming a frequent figure on Broadway stages of late what with Hatcher Hughes Hell Bent for Heaven and The Mongrel not to mention Molnar's Launzi in which the demented person was a girl

Decayed mentality is a perfectly legitimate theme for stage exploitation but it takes a somewhat more sharply visioned individual than Miss Vollmer to do the exploiting She hands us a series of lurid incidents in which incredible things happen—no specific need to go into the episodes themselves

Mr Hughes gives a fine account of himself looking highly pictorial and occasionally overstressing a point Antoinette Perry late of Minick Mary Carroll who was Mamie Potter in The Potters by J P McEvoy and Donald Cameron leading man if you remember for Peggy Candida Wood in The Bride are also concerned

Bernard Shaw Season

More good things for the Shaw fans The Theater Guild not content with christening its new playhouse with Caesar and Cleopatra is now planning a Shaw repertory season

The Lunts as they are affectionately coming to be known will appear next season in various pieces by G B S Pygmalion originally done here by Mrs Patrick Campbell and Philip Merivale is one tentative choice for them Another is Arms and the Man dead wood more or less since the Arnold Daly days Yet another is Man and Superman last performed by Robert Loraine

Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt have signed for next season with the Guild They are also considering appearing in a Shakespearean revival whatever that may mean but all this hinges on the future of The Guardsman which despite Lent is still a moneymaker on Broadway

The Vortex one of the outstanding hits of the current London season has been sold to A L Erlanger who will present it as produced by Basil Dean Let us hope the latter will bring to the task a little more inspiration than he evinced in his productions of Hassan Peter Pan and The Little Minister now happily laid to rest Noel Coward author of The Vortex is a young British playwright who also acts His piece is declared to be sensational —a large claim in these lurid days But we shall see what Mr Coward intends us to see

Mr Dean prior to sailing for his old home town carried off the British rights to They Knew What They Wanted the Theater Guild play by Sidney Howard with Glenn Anders Pauline Lord and Richard Bennett now so successful on Broadway Whom in the world can he get to give three such perfect performances abroad? Perhaps the play reeking of California is to be Englished If so what next?

The Actors Theater formerly styled Equity Players has done exceedingly well with its revival of Charles Rann Kennedy's morality play The Servant in the House though here and there a timid soul overpowering his diffidence arises to bleat Why revive it at all The feature of the new production is of course the exquisitely tender and artfully artless work of Helen Chandler the season's most gorgeous find in the part of the niece once played by Mabel Moore (Mrs Walter Hampden) To miss even a glimpse of Miss Chandler is simply to refuse to peep at paradise And how she can act

STEPHEN LEACOCK

I have often computed that they move 100,000 cubic feet of earth in one paragraph but at least I was doing my best Beryl whose disappointment never lasts was all smiles again in a moment and rewarded me by throwing herself around my neck and giving me a hug

That afternoon I gathered up all the big stones and built them into walls around the cellar with partition walls across it dividing it into rooms and compartments I leveled the floor and packed it tight with sand and gravel and dug a drain ten feet deep from the cellar to the gully about thirty feet away

There being still a good hour or so of daylight left I dug a cistern four feet wide and twenty feet deep I was looking round for something more to dig by moonlight but Beryl put her foot down (on my head while I was in the drain) and forbade me to work any more for fear I might be fatigued

Fast Growing Catalpas

Next morning we were able to begin our building in good earnest On our way we stopped at the fifteen cent store for necessary supplies and bought one hammer fifteen cents a saw fifteen cents half a gallon of nails fifteen cents a crane fifteen cents a derrick for hoisting fifteen cents and a needle and thread for sewing on the roof fifteen cents

As an advice to young builders I may say that I doubt if we were quite wise in all our purchases The fifteen cent derrick is too light for the work and the extra expenditure for the heavier kind (the twenty five cent crane) would have been justified The difference in cost is only (approximately) ten cents and the efficiency of the big crane is far greater

On arriving at our ground we were delighted to find that our masonry was well set and the walls firm and solid while the catalpa trees were well above the ground and growing rapidly We set to work at once to build in earnest

A Morning's Work

We had already decided to utilize for our bungalow the waste material which lay on our lot I drew Beryl's attention to the fact that if a proper use were made of the material wasted in building there would be no need to buy any material at all The elimination of waste I explained by the utilization of all by products before they have time to go by us is the central principle of modern industrial organization

But observing that Beryl had ceased to listen to me I drew on my carpenter's apron which I had made out of a piece of tar paper and set to work My first care was to gather up all the lose lumber that lay upon and around our ground site and saw it up into neatly squared pieces about twenty feet long Out of these I made the joists the studding the partitions rafters and so on which formed the frame of the house

Putting up the house took practically the whole morning Beryl who had slipped on a potato bag over her dress assisted me by holding up the side of the house while I nailed on the top

By the end of the afternoon we had completed the sides of our house which we made out of old newspapers soaked in glue and rolled flat The next day we put on the roof which was made of tin cans cut open and pounded out flat

For our hardwood floors mantels etc we were fortunate in finding a pile of hardwood on a neighboring lot which had apparently been overlooked and which we carried over proudly to our bungalow after dark That same night we carried over jubilantly some rustic furniture which we had found quite neglected lying in a nearby cottage, the lock of which, oddly enough was opened quite easily with the key of Beryl's suitcase

The rest of our furniture—plain tables dressers etc —I was able to make from ordinary pine lumber which I obtained by knocking down a board fence [illegible]

In short the reader is able to picture our bungalow after a week of it complete in every respect and only waiting our occupation on the next day

Seated that evening in our boarding house with Beryl coiled around me I calculated the entire cost of our enterprise — including ground site lumber derricks cranes glue string tin-tacks and other material —as four dollars and ninety cents

In return for it we had a pretty seven roomed house artistic in every respect with living room bedrooms a boudoir a den a snuggery a doggery—in short the bungalow of which so many young people have dreamed

Increasing a Chicken's Output

Seated together that evening Beryl and I were full of plans for the future We both have a passionate love of animals and like all country bred people a longing for the life of a farm So we had long since decided to keep poultry We planned to begin in a small way and had brought home that evening from the fifteen cent store a day old chicken such as are now so widely sold

We put him in a basket beside the radiator in a little flannel coat that Beryl had made for him and we fed him with a warm mash made of breakfast food and gravel Our printed directions that we got with him told us that a fowl eats two ounces of grain per day and on that should lay five eggs a week I was easily able to prove to Beryl by a little plain arithmetic that if we fed this fellow 4 ounces a day he would lay 10 eggs in a week or at 8 ounces per day he would lay 20 eggs in a week.

Beryl who was seized at once with a characteristic fit of enthusiasm suggested that we stick 16 ounces a day into him and begin right now I had to remind her laughingly that at 8 ounces a day the fellow would probably be working up to capacity and carrying what we call in business his peak load The essential factor in modern business I told her is to load yourself up to the peak and stay there

In short there was no end to our rosy dreams In our fancy we saw ourselves in our bungalow surrounded by hens bees cows and dogs with hogs and goats nestling our dreams were destined to be shattered

Disturbing News

Up to this point our experience with building our bungalow had followed along after all the best models and had even eclipsed them But from now on we [illegible] a series of disasters of which we had had no warning It is a pity that I can not leave our story at this point

On arriving at our bungalow next day we found notices posted up forbidding all trespassers and two sour looking men in possession We learned that our title to the ground site was worthless as the man from whom we had bought it had been apparently a passer by It appeared also that a neighboring contractor was making serious difficulties about our use of his material It was divulged further that we had been mistaken in thinking that we had taken our rustic furniture from an empty cottage There were people living in it but they happened to be asleep when Beryl moved the furniture

As for our hen—there is no doubt that keeping fowls is enormously profitable It must be so when one considers the millions of eggs consumed every day But it demands an unremitting attention and above all—memory If you own a hen you must never forget it—you must keep on saying to yourself— How is my hen? This was our trouble Beryl and I were so preoccupied with our accumulated disaster that we left our one day old chick behind the radiator and never thought of him for three weeks He was then gone We prefer to think that he flew away

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Would you please tell me the name of the casting director of Famous Players-Lasky? Do they have several? Do they have the same one for both studios at Hollywood and New York? If not, please tell me the names of the different ones and their addresses?

What is the salary of a casting director, and does he just work for one certain production or does he work at the studio the whole year?

I am told that the next three Griffith productions are to be made at the Famous Players-Lasky studio. Is that at the studio at New York or Hollywood?

Who is the casting director of Cecil B. DeMille's studio? Of First Nationals? Where does Ramon Novarro live? What company does he usually work? Thanking you in advance—A FAN.

Tom White is the cast director of the Hollywood studio for Famous Players-Lasky. Address him at 1520 Vine street, Hollywood. They have another in New York, but I don't have his name. If you address your letter to the Casting Director. Famous-Players-Lasky Studio, New York City, he would receives it. The salary of the casting director would depend upon his ability, and the size of the studio. I didn't have the audacity to ask Mr. White how much money he made, so I can't pass the information on to you. He is employed by the week.

Mr. Griffith is planning on filming his next picture in Hollywood.

T. W. Datig is casting direct at the First National Studio; I don't have the director of Mr. DeMille's newly organized company, yet.

Ramon Novarro lives in Hollywood now. He is working for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Dear movie Editor—We have been reading your column and thing it is very interesting, but this is the first time we have ever written to you. Will you please give us the address of Colleen Moore, Helen Chadwick and Eileen Percy. If they are married, please tell us to whom, and their ages. Thanking you in advance, we are Sincerely—TWO MOVIE FANS, Friend, Neb.

Two new friends from Friend! How nice! Colleen Moore has her mail sent to First National Studios, Hollywood, Calif. She is married to Emmett McCormick. Colleen is twenty-four. Helen Chadwick is single at the present writng. She has been marred. She was born in 1896 and lives at 4428 Sunset blvd., Los Angeles.

Eileen Percy's husband is Otto Busch. Eileen is a year younger than Helen. Address her in care of Universal Pictures, Universal City, Calif.

Screen Siftings

Works Way Up—Carmen Phillips, who made her first appearance at Universal City ten years ago, is playing a principal role in support of Jack Hoxie in "Lightning Jack" for Universal.

On Location in Canada—Steele, of th Royal Mounted" will be the next James Oliver Curwood story to be filmed by Vitagraph. In order that every detail of the production may be authentic, Albert Smith, the producer, has ordered David Smith, director, and his company to make the exteriors of the picture in the wilderness where the story is laid.

Real Lovers Screened — Marie Prevost and Kenneth Harlan are to make love on the screen again for the first time since their marriage. They are cast in the featured roles in "Bobbed Hair," which Warner Brothers are producing. Louise Fazenda is to have the third featured role, and Alan Crosland will direct. The story ran serially in Collier's. Twenty or more well known writers collaborated in writing it, each one contributing a chapter or two. Among the writers responsible for the story were Sophie Kerr, George Barr McCutcheon, H. C. Witwer, and Wallace Irwin.

Jack Pickford Better—Jack Pickford, who was stricken with Kleig eyes while making "The Goose Woman" is rapidly improving. He has recovered sufficiently to escort his wife, Marilynn Miller, around to the dances in New York. Jack is planning a trip to Europe before he returns to Hollywood and the movies.

Rudolph in "The Slave"—Rudolph Valentino's first United Artists production will be "The Bronze Collar." a romantic story of California in the days of Spanish rule. It is a new novel by John Frederick, and is rapidly becoming a best seller. The title will no doubt be changed to "The Slave" for the picture. It will be produced on a lavish scale in the natural locale around Monterey.

Bill Hart in Business—William S. Hart has signed a contract whereby he becomes a member of the United Artists corporation. The organization now includes Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Charles Chaplin, Rudolph Valentino and Mr. Hart. "Tumbleweek," a story by Hal G. Everts, will be Mr. Hart's first picture under his new contract.

Two More Signed Up. — Matt Moore and Louise Fazenda are the two latest long term additions to the Warner Brothers company. Matt, who has played every role on the screen from an old man to a villain, is to be featured as a juvenile lead under the terms of his new contract. He is now playing the role of a French lawyer opposite Florence Vidor in "Grounds for Divorce."

A Temperamental Star — Jetta Goudal has been signed on a long-term contract with Cecil B. DeMille. She will have a featured role in "The Coming of Ames," the first De Mille picture starring Rod La Rocque. Miss Goudal is a native of Versailles, France. Her first work in this country was with Richard Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl." She made a picture or two for Paramount, but in her recent suit against that company for a breach of contract, they claimed she was so temperamental they couldn't get along with her.

Corrine Griffith Sends Out S. O. S. For Name For Her New Farm Home In Beverly Hills

Wanted: A name.

Corinne Griffith has sent out an S. O. S. for a cognomen for her new home in Beverly Hills. It is built on the style of an old English farm home and Corinne wants a suitable designation. If you have a thought, you might send it along to the Universal star.

The story of the Prodigal Son is arriving on the screen as "The Wanderer." William Collier, jr., known in less solemn moments as Buster, is to be erring son. It is to be a Biblical production sans any modern moments.

Willard Mack, who gave "The Rag Man" to Jackie for the screen, will write the youthful Jackie's next number. Since Coogan pere can not put a brick on his son's head to stop his upward growning, we rather wish son would retire for about four years—and come back a snappy juvenile.

Colleen Moore's head is a repository for more than a boyish bob. Flapper pictures, so producers say, are deader than the blue laws. Colleen felt it coming and immediately set about to establish her versatility—witness "So Big," "Sally," "The Desert Flower," in which she has a prairie rose sort of part, and "Irene," another comed libretto. She read "So Big" and dashed over to ask Farle Hudson for the part, ere other stars had found it.

While we are on the subject of Colleen—she and her husband, John E. McCormick, sail on the Majestic from New York, May 2 for a three months' tour abroad. They expect to visit England, Ireland, France, Italy, and Germany.

To Europe We Shall Go.

Pola's already there—Tom Mix is on the high seas—Julanne Johnson and Jane Novak are co-starring in an English picture—George Fitzmaurice is taking forty peeps at Paris—perhaps it is that Hollywood will be dark for a few months to come?

Shall it be a Polish countess or a French marquise? Rumor says the rivalry is fiercer than that of two flappers for a tea hound and the field will go to the versatile. The Marquise do la Falaise de la Coudray is queen of motion picturedome for the moment—but the fiery Slav countess from Poland is half way up the throne steps and neck and neck with her is an untitled contestant, Norma Talmadge. Norma has a shrewd husband, a diverse talent, and she is going to have more 'kick' in her future pictures—and America may give its cinema throne to an American born and husbanded luminary.

Mary Pickford has held the throne longer than any other shall, but her rule is threatened. Little girls don't believe in fairies any more or gaze wide-eyed at the world, and with the incoming of blase childhood, Mary as a star is waning—but as a potential producer she is casting her shadow before. Mary was queen in the old "jit" days and she's done pretty well, but jazz youth is wrecking her characterizations.

A gay evening it's to be when "Madame Sans Gene" appears for the first time in New York. At the theatre entrance will be a thickly cushioned blue carpet with the crest of Napoleon worked in gold in the center. Empire decorations will be used in the interior of the Rivoli.

Two wax tableau will be shown, one showing Gloria as the laundress, the other when, tubs forgotten, she had become the Duchess of Danzig. And Gloria and her marquis will sit in a flower bedecked box. It will be quite an epochal evening for the Marquise—for without Madame she would never have carried home a French title.

Gretz Nissen, Lasky's newest discovery, believes in the slogan of a new word a day. Only she does five times as well, learning five new English words each day to take the place of her Nose vocabulary. Vilma Banky from Budapest, who isin't a countess,who isn't descended from a long line of histrionically inclined ancestors, and who isn't Hungary's Mary Pickford or anything else, is giving her interviews through interpreter's now, but she eats luncheon with an American dictionary in front of her and absorbs a word a bite.

Dost know that Lillian Gish uses no make-up, but a dash of powder? Dorothy uses very little, but sister none at all.

Ian Torrence, the eighteen-year-old son of Ernest Torrence, is working in the laboratory of the Paramount studio. Hopes to become a fillum executive. Hope it doesn't take son as long to win proper recognition as it did father.

The National Board of Review in its February-March bulletin names as "exceptional photoplays" the following current releases: "Grass," "The Miracle of the Wolves," "Quo Vadis," "The Thundering Gerd," "The Lost World," "Charley's Aunt," "As No Man Has Loved," "Sundown," '"Smouldering Fires,' and "The Narrow Street."

National Has Big Production.

Fifty-two motion pictures in a so-called Winner group plus seven big specials will comprise the screen product of First Nation for an entire year, beginning in September of this year. The seven specials are three Frank Lloyd products, "Winds of Chance," "Rainbow's End," and "The Splendid Road," "Irene" for Colleen, "Graustark" for Norma Talmadge, "Men of Steel," "United States Flavor,' 'and "Viennese Medley," a story of Vienna before the war. Among the stars and featured players for whom the other stories have been purchased are Milton Sills, Corinne Griffith, Doris Kenyon, who is recuperating from an appendicits operation, Constance Talmadge, Richard Barthelmess, and Barbara La Marr.

The owners of Rin-Tin-Tin are Mr. and Mrs. no more. When Mrs. Leland Duncan secured a divorce from Leland Duncan the famous dog's feminine owner secured a restraining order to keep her husband from collecting royalties from the pictures in which the dog appears and from alternating his contracts in the pictures. Incidentally, she is to have $12,000 per year alimony.

A new type of blue lens for the studio lights is said to be a preventative of Kleig eyes, fear of the film worker. It is an invention of the late Mr. Ince, and is made of Belgium glass.

Charlie Chaplin, Wallace Beery, and Harold Lloyd have been admitted to membership in the Lambs, famous organization of stage folk. Thomas Meighan is Shepherd, the first screen actor so honored.

Balto, Dog Hero of Race to Nome, Is Starred In Picture Of Own Famous Achievement

How doth the moving picture star
With contracts new, for money too,
To multiply his power.

Richard Arlen, unrelated to Michael, the litterateur, has been snatched by Jesse L. Lasky. Richard is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and has three Ps for activity in major sports.

Vilma Banky, who cast herself upon our shores with no entree but a wicked shoulder and an expressive eye, has been led to the dotted line by First National and is to support Ronald Colman in 'The Dark Angel." It's going to be hard if Vilma gets temperamental — she speaks only Hungarian—and directors generally speak only specific Americanese.

First National has also lured Robert Kane from Famous Players-Lasky, where he has been general manager of production for four years. He will make four pictures ni the next year for First National release, all in the east.

Of course, you know Rudy and Ritz-Carleton had agreed to disagree. He joined up with United Artists, and now there's a hitch between Rudolph and Joseph Schenck, something about "The Hooded Falcon," and the company has been laid off. Incidentally, Mrs. Ruddy has been laid off as mistress of supervision, for Schenck would have none of her. This is Valentino's second serious disagreement with producers and it may be he has learned by experience now that a single actor is not larger than a corporation.

Don Alvarado—he took his first step into movie fame as a "stander" for Rudolph Valentino, one who poses while the sets and lights and camera are set—has come into his own. Warner Bros. have taken the dashing Spanish gentleman, who casually passes as Rudy's double, as their own and he will grace their future releases.

Balto Breaks In.

Balto has arrived in movieland. This husky of lowly lineage, who occupied the front page for so many days, is to be seen in a two reeler, "Balto's Race to Nome," telling the story of his own epic struggle to carry succor to diphtheria stricken Nome. The production was started in Nome and will be completed in Los Angeles.

Gladys Moore has come back into the movies. Not Gladys who has become Mary Pickford, but Gladys Moore, a wealthy society woman of Denver who has obeyed that impulse to play mother in the cinema.

Movieland has never forgotten Robert Harron, who died nearly four years ago, but no memorial has ever been erected to him, even though it has often been discussed. Thomas Meighan, declining honor for himself, has made the first memorial to the gifted young actor, whose final fadeout came too soon.

While on location in Ocala, Fla., Tom gave a benefit for charity during his stay, raising more than $2,500 for the Marion county hospital, enough to equip the children's ward. The trustees wished to name it the "Thomas Meighan Ward"—but Tom said:

'I' don't need a memorial—yet. But I tell you what I wish you'd do. Call it the 'Robert Harron Ward.' He was a very dear friend of mine and one of the finest characters that ever played in motion pictures."

A tablet bearing Robert Harron's name and a brief history of his career will be placed in the corridor of the new hospital.

And the little southern village, where Robert Harron is remembered of long ago—"The Birth of a Nation," "Hearts of the World"—will ever have his memory alive through the consideration and fine feeling of Thomas Meighan.

Dreams do come true, sometimes. Fairy tales creep into real life Long ago, when little Gloria Swanson was a timid extra girl on the old Essanay lot, probably she dreamed her dream of fairy princes and gold dollars and fame and homage. And last week Gloria came home—with a Marquis of France for her husband, a bright glittering contract in her hand, five thousand people to welcome her back. Astoria, L. I., was out enmasse, and the front of the rambling, roaming big old studio was covered with flags and streamers. Gloria wept, for adulatio is sweet, and could not answer the "speech, speech." Later, inside the studio, from the porch of her bungalow dressing room, she told them how glad she was to be back among friends and fellow-workers.

Since her arrival in this country, she's been playing with her two small children and going to shows. "Would you believe it," she exclaimed, "I only saw two performances in rFance! I spent the time working."—and reclining on a hospital cot.

Tom Mix, who is now en route to Europe, with sixteen white sombreros, one daughter, one wife, and half a dozen auxiliary lights, has been elected a life member of the Antlers' club of Yosemite National park. The club prides itself on exclusiveness and membership comes only through invitation. The membership was given to the former Oklahoma cow hand in recognition of his work in helping to save several buildings of the Sentinel hotel which caught fire during Tom's visit to the park on a location trip.

Calories are no respectors of person. They attack the pretty movie stars quite as quickly as you and me—but as you and I lose no thousands per week, we get indifferent. Alice Terry is one who claims she must keep one eye on the scales and the other on a calorie card, and she has three choice diets. One less rigorous, is the juice of a lemon in a glass of hot water before breakfast—and moderate food. When pounds pile painfully, Miss Terry lives on orange juice, a cup every two hours for a week or two. The third diet is two slices of pineapple for breakfast, a lamb chop and two slices of pineapple for luncheon, and two lamb chops and two slices for dinner. Miss Terry follows this for a week, then off for two or three days, then on again for a week.

'LOVE FOR LOVE' BY CONGREVE LATEST REVIVAL

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The latest play to intrigue Manhattan is—guess what? Not some frothy spectacle, not a risque farce from the facile typewriter of Avery Hopwood or Wilson Collison. Not a spring revival from the nineties, but William Congreve's "Love for Love."

This antique, glistening with naughty wit and not devoid of a gossamer-like good humor, was resuscitated by the indomitable Provincetown Players, not at the avowedly experienced theater of that name, but in the more substantial Greenwich Village auditorium. Kenneth McGowan the director in chief, evidently knew, in advance, that he had a substantial hit on his hands.

It is all of that and then some. As a picture of Restoration manners and morals, the latter, a little dingy, it is superb. And it has the additional merit of being immensely funny. Whether the censors will get after it, I cannot predict. Probably not, inasmuch as the agitation against "improper" plays seems to have perished from unpernicious anemia.

But I do know that—so quickly does word-of-mouth advertising spread the carols of a new success—the second night was a sell-out and now the whole town's agog. It is the "smart" thing to do, just as it was the "correct" thing to see the Charlot Revue half a dozen times, and "Rose-Marie" a round dozen.

It is a brisk and beautiful performance which the players present. Walter Abel, late of 'Beyond;" Noel Tearle, who has not appeared locally since "The Enchanted Cottage;" Edgar Stehli, the lovely Helen Freeman, the statuesque Ardienne Morrison, last seen here in "The Piker," with Lionel Barrymore, and the willowy Rosalind Fuller—these are some of the best artists in a long cast.

The sets by Robert Edmund Jones are miracles of subtle beauty, and the direction is lively-gaited. I personally, could do with fewer old English songs, which bob up like apples in a Hallowe'en tub, every now and then.

See "Love for Love," if you are amused by broad comedy, but leave the children at home or send them to the Hippodrome.

From Ticket Taker To Author.

Lulu Vollmer, who used to be the nicest ticket saleswoman in the world—she worked for the Theater Guild at the old Garrick—is now a personage with three produced plays to her credit.

Her first, "Sun Up," with Lucille La Verne, was the best of the lot, I fancy, "The Shame Woman," if it had not been for the exquisite acting of Minnie Dupree and Florence Rittenhouse, would have died, a dog's death, but their labors kept it alive a long time.

Now Miss Vollmer's "The Dunce Boy" is in our midst, and while it has fine flashes of talent in the writing, I can scarcely say that it is the equal of 'Sun Up." Much interest attaches to the production because it serves as a vehicle for Gareth Hughes to make his re-entry into the legitimate ranks after a long apprenticeship in the pictures.

Put none too delicately the title-part is that of an idiot. He is becoming a frequent figure on Broadway stages, of late, what with Hatcher Hughes' "Hell-Bent for Heaven" and "The Mongrel," not to mention Molnar's "Launzi," in which the demented person was a girl.

Decayed mentality is a perfectly legitimate theme for stage exploitation, but it takes a somewhat more sharply visioned individual than Miss Vollmer to do the exploiting. She hands us a series of lurid incidents in which incredible things happen—no specific need to go into the episodes themselves.

Mr. Hughes gives a fine account of himself, looking highly pictorial and occasionally overstressing a point. Antoinette Perry, late of "Minick;" Mary Carroll, who was Mamie Potter in "The Potters," by J. P. McEvoy, and Donald Cameron, leading man, if you remember, for Peggy "Candida" Wood in "The Bride," are also concerned.

Bernard Shaw Season.

More good things for the Shaw fans! The theater Guild, not content with christening its new playhouse with "Caesar and Cleopatra," is now planning a Shaw repertory season.

The Lunts, as they are affectionately coming to be known, will appear next season in various pieces by G. B. S. "Pygmalion," originally done here by Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Philip Merivale, is one tentative choice for them. Another is "Arms and the Man," dead wood, more or less, since the Arnold Daly days. Yet another is "Man and Superman," last performed by Robert Loraine.

Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt have signed for next season with the guild. They are also considering appearing in a "Shakespearean revival," whatever that may mean, but all this hinges on the future of "The Guardsman," which, despite Lent, is still a moneymaker on Broadway.

"The Vortex," one of the outstanding hits of the current London season, has been sold to A. L. Erlanger, who will present it as produced by Basil Dean. Let us hope the latter will bring to the task a little more inspiration than he evinced in his productions of "Hassan," Peter Pan" and "The Little Minister," now happily laid to rest. Noel Coward, author of "The Vortex," is a young British playwright, who also acts. His piece is declared to be "sensational,"—a large claim in these lurid days. But we shall see what Mr. Coward intends us to see.

Mr. Dean, prior to sailing for his old home town, carried off the British rights to "They Know What They Wanted," the Theater Guild play by Sidney Howard, with Glenn Anders, Pauline Lord and Richard Bennett, now so successful on Broadway. Whom in the world can he get to give three such perfect performances abroad? Perhaps the play, reeking of California, is to be "Englished." If so, what next?

The Actors' Theater, formerly styled Equity Players, has done exceedingly well with its revival of Charles Rann Kennedy's morality play, "The Servant in the House," though here and there a timid soul, overpowering his diffidence, arises to bleat: "Why revive it at all" The feature of the new production is, of course, the exquisitely tender and artfully artless work of Helen Chandler, the season's most gorgeous "find," in the part of the niece, once played by Mabel Moore (Mrs. Walter Hampden). To miss even a glimpse of Miss Chandler is simply to refuse to peep at paradise. And how she can act!

Screen Siftings

Throwing Brickbats—The property man at the Pickford Studios has a delicate task on his shoulders. He must be able to find a brick that can be thrown at the famous Mary without leaving a mark on her forehead. The bricks are to be used in a gang fight between Mary's gang and a rival bunch of outlaws in her new picture, "Little Annie Rooney."

Becomes a Father—Wallace Beery is cast as a father in pictures for the first time in his celluloid career. He will be the father of Lois Wilson in "Rugged Waters" which Irving Willat will direct for Paramount. Joseph Lincoln wrote the story, and Warner Baxter will appear as the hero. Most of the exteriors will be "shot" at San Francisco.

New Pathe Serial—"Sunken Silver" is the title of the fifth Pathe serial in which Ailene Ray has starred. It is adapted from "Black Caesar's Clan," a story by Albert Peyson Terhune. Walter Miller, a recent recruit from the legitimate stage, plays the leading male role opposite Miss Ray. George R. Seitz is directing the production.

Singer's Brother Filmed. — Carlo Schipa, brother of the famous singer Tita Shipa, has been assigned the role of "Tony the Greek" in "Little Annie Rooney," Mary Pickford's new picture. Gorgon Griffith, a Franklin high school boy of Los Angles is cast as Tim Rooney, Mary's brother and Walter James is to play her father in the production. The leading man has only been playing in pictures for six months. His name is Hugh Allan, and he graduated from the high school at Oakland, Cal., just two years ago.

Buys New Home—Alma Rubens has purchased a new Spanish style home in the exclusive Beverly Hills colony of film celebrities, for a consideration of $50,000. House Peters and Patsy Ruth Miller are two other recent additions to the exclusive set.

Monte Changes Partners.—Vera Reynolds has been loaned to Warner Brothers by Cecil B. De Mille to play the leading feminine role in "The Limited Mail." She will play opposite Monte Blue. It is the first time in almost a year that Monte has had a leading woman other than Marie Prevest. Willard Louis is cast in the important hobo role in the picture.

McGrail Finally Signed—Walter McGrail, who caused a lot of commotion in Hollywood recently by refusing a contract offered him by Cecil De Mille, has been signed to play a featured role in "Havoc," which Rowland Lee is producing for Fox.

John Roche Loaned—John Roche who played a featured role in "Kiss Me Again," the Ernst Lubitsch special recently released, has been loaned to Fox studios by Warner Brothers. He is playing opposite Shirley Mason in "The Woman."

McKee Has Business Sense—Raymond McKee, the motion picture actor, is also a good business man. He owns several bungalows in Hollywood, is part owner of a theate,r has interests in an automobile company, and owns the Zulu Hut, a famous eating place on the outskirts of Los Angeles.

Ropes Cowboy as Hubby—Helen Holmes, the former serial queen, has recently acquired a new husband. He is Lloyd Saunders, a rodeo contestant from Fort Worth, Texas. This is Miss Holmes second venture into matrimony. Her first husband was J. P. McGowan, the director.

Completing Cast — Ben Alexander has been added to the cast of "The Shining Adventure," which Hugo Ballin is directing. Mabel Ballin has the leading role in the picture and Percy Marmont is the leading man.

Movie Magnates Branch Out. — William De Mille, Cecil De Mille and Douglas Fairbanks have bought a sporting goods store in Pasadena, Calif., which they will operate as a "side-line." Fred B. Alexander, famous Davis cup veteran, and Robert Allen, former Pacific Coast junior champion are the active managers of the new concern.

Harry Myers Starred — Harry Myers, best remembered for his work in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," appears as Count Zapata, a unique character in "Grounds for Divorce." The picture is being produced for Paramount by Paul Bern. Florence Vidor, Matt Moore and Louise Fazenda are featured

KEARNEY NORMAL

"The Lone Star Ranger," a Tom Mix picture of the novel by the same name written by Zane Grey was projected in the auditorium Saturday evening. The picture was presented under the auspices of the Zip club and the proceeds will be used for athletic and forensic awards.

New books costing $800 have recently been added to the library. These books are all of a professional nature. Miss Anna V. Jennings, college librarian, has appropriated a nearby cloak-room to use as a storeroom.

George H. Aller, head of the music department, has been engaged by the Victor Talking Machine company to make vocal records. Mr. Aller has secured a leave of absence for the latter six weeks of the summer school term.

Pres. George E. Martin suffered a severe injury as the result of a fall from his porch when he was hurrying to fill a speaking engagement at the Kearney High School. It is expected that he will be confined to his bed for at least a week.

The men's and women's glee clubs went to Roverdale Tuesday for a public rehearsal of the opera "H. M. S. Pinafore."

Rehearsals of the senior class play are under way. This play, "Too Much Money," by Israel Zangwill, is to be presented in the College auditorium May 15. Dr. Ralph Noyer, director of extension, is coaching.

Plans for an extended program in the physical education department are being perfected. Ernest E. Bearg, and "Indian" Schulte, both of the state university, have been engaged to assist Coach Fulmer in carrying out this program.

There will be 400 students in the classes in rural observation and methods this summer. I. D. Weeks, '24, a student at the University of Iowa for the past year, and Joseph Mott of the Teachers' college at Stevenspoint, Wis., will assist Prof. R. W. Powell.

Miss Alice Fowler of Guide Rock, attended the annual meeting of the Classical association of the Middle West and South at Iowa City last week. This is the first time that Kearney college has sent a student representative to a meeting of this sort. Miss Fowler's expenses were defrayed by the Latin club of the college. She was accompanied by Miss Edith Rundle, head of the Latin department.

I have often computed that they move 100,000 cubic feet of earth in one paragraph, but at least I was doing my best. Beryl, whose disappointment never lasts, was all smiles again in a moment, and rewarded me by throwing herself around my neck and giving me a hug.

That afternoon I gathered up all the big stones and built them into walls around the cellar with partition walls across it, dividing it into rooms and compartments. I leveled the floor and packed it tight with sand and gravel and dug a drain ten feet deep from the cellar to the gully about thirty feet away.

There being still a good hour or so of daylight left, I dug a cistern four feet wide and twenty feet deep. I was looking round for something more to dig by moonlight, but Beryl put her foot down (on my head while I was in the drain) and forbade me to work any more for fear I might be fatigued.

Fast-Growing Catalpas.

Next morning we were able to begin our building in good earnest. On our way we stopped at the fifteen cent store for necessary supplies, and bought one hammer, fifteen cents; a saw, fifteen cents; half a gallon of nails, fifteen cents; a crane, fifteen cents; a derick for hoisting, fifteen cents, and a needle and thread, for sewing on the roof, fifteen cents.

As an advice to young builders, I may say that I doubt if we were quite wise in all our purchases. The fifteen cent derrick is too light for the work, and the extra expenditure for the heavier kind (the twenty-five cent crane) would have been justified. The difference in cost is only (approximately) ten cents, and the efficiency of the big crane is far greater.

On arriving at our ground we were delighted to find that our masonry was well set and the walls firm and solid, while the catalpa trees were well above the ground and growing rapidly. We set to work at once to build in earnest.

A Mornings Work.

We had already decided to utilize for our bungalow the waste material which lay on our lot. I drew Beryl's attention to the fact that if a proper use were made of the material wasted in building there would be no need to buy any material at all. "The elimination of waste," I explained, "by the utilization of all by-products before they have time to go by us, is the central principle of modern industrial organization."

But observing that Beryl had ceased to listen to me, I drew on my carpenter's apron which I had made out of a piece of tar-paper, and set to work. My first care was to gather up all the lose lumber that lay upon and around our ground site, and saw it up into neatly squared pieces about twenty feet long. Out of these I mde the joists, the studding, the partitions, rafters, and so on, which formed the frame of the house.

Putting up the house took practically the whole morning. Beryl, who had slipped on a potato bag over her dress, assisted me by holding up the side of the house while I nailed on the top.

By the end of the afternoon we had completed the sides of our house, which we made out of old newspapers soaked in glue and rolled flat. The next day we put on the roof, which was made of tin cans cut open and pounded out flat.

For our hardwood floors, mantels, etc., we were fortunate in finding a pile of hardwood on a neighboring lot which had apparently been overlooked, and which we carried over proudly to our bungalow after dark. That same night we carried over jubiliantly some rustic furniture which we had found, quite neglected, lying in a nearby cottage, the lock of which, oddly enough, was opened quite easily with the key of Beryl's suitcase.

The rest of our furniture—plain tables, dressers, etc.—I was able to make from ordinary pine lumber which I obtained by knocking down a board fence upon an adjacent lot. In short, the reader is able to picture our bungalow after a week of lbor, complete in every respect and only waiting our occupation on the next day.

Seated that evening in our boarding house, with Beryl coiled around me, I calculated the entire cost of our enterprise, — including ground site, lumber, derricks, cranes, glue, string, tin-tacks and other material —as four dollars and ninety cents.

In return for it we had a pretty seven-roomed house, artistic in every respect, with living-room bed rooms, a boudoir, a den, a snuggery, a doggery—in short, the bungalow of which so many young people have dreamed.

Increasing a Chicken's Output.

Seated together that evening Beryl and I were full of plans for the future. We both have a passionate love of animals and, like all country-bred people, a longing for the life of a farm. So we had long since decided to keep poultry. We planned to begin in a small way, and had brought home that evening from the fifteen cent store, a day-old chicken, such as are now so widely sold.

We put him in a basket beside the radiator in a little flannel coat that Beryl had made for him, and we fed him with a warm mash made of breakfast food and gravel. Our printed directions that we got with him told us that a fowl eats two ounces of grain per day and on that should lay five eggs a week. I was easily able to prove to Beryl by a little plain arithmetic that if we fed this fellow 4 ounces a day he would lay 10 eggs in a week, or at 8 ounces per day he would lay 20 eggs in a week.

Beryl, who was seized at once with a characteristic fit of enthusiasm suggested that we stick 16 ounces a day into him and begin right now. I had to remind her laughingly that at 8 ounces a day the fellow would probably be working up to capacity, and carrying what we call in business his peak load. "The essential factor in modern business," I told her, "is to load yourself up to the peak and stay there."

In short, there was no end to our rosy dreams. In our fancy we saw ourselves in our bungalow, surrounded by hens, bees, cows and dogs, with hogs and goats nestling our dreams were destined to be shattered.

Disturbing News.

Up to this point our experience with building our bungalow had followed along after all the best models, and had even eclipsed them. But from now on we met a series of disasters of which we had had no warning. It is a pity that I cannot leave our story at this point.

On arriving at our bungalow next day we found notices posted up forbidding all trespassers, and two sour-looking men in possession. We learned that our title to the ground site was worthless, as the man from whom we had bought it had been apparently a passer-by. It appeared also that a neighboring contractor was making serious difficulties about our use of his material. It was divulged further that we had been mistaken in thinking that we had taken our rustic furniture from an empty cottage. There were people living in it, but they happened to be asleep when Beryl moved the furniture.

As for our hen—there is no doubt that keeping fowls is enormously profitable. It must be so, when one considers the millions of eggs consumed every day. But it demands an unremitting attention and above all—memory. If you own a hen you must never forget it—you must keep on saying to yourself—"How is my hen?" This was our trouble. Beryl and I were so preoccupied with our accumulated disaster, that we left our one-day-old chick behind the radiator and never thought of him for three weeks. He was then gone. We prefer to think that he flew away.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor I heard that there was to be a school of some kind which would train people to become actors and actresses Is this true and if so will you kindly tell me all you know about it? Is it an authentic school and how long does it take to learn to be an actor I am a young man just out of high school and my lifes ambition is to be a movie actor Ive heard that it is very hard to get in though and that it is not advisable to go to Hollywood without sufficient money to stay for a long time without work Since that would be impossible for me to do I would like to get into this school where I would have a better opportunity to get work How much does it cost to go where is it located and what should one do to get in Somebody told me they saw a piece in the paper about it but I failed to see it I thought if there was anything of the sort you would no doubt know all about it Thanking you for whatever information you may be able to give me I am

There has been a new school for embryo motion picture stars established by Paramount in New York recently and that is no doubt the school to which your friend referred It will be known as the Paramount Picture School Inc and was founded to meet the problem of findin gand developing new screen material All young men between the ages of 18 and 30 and girls from 16 to 25 are eligible The candidates must have exceptionally attractive faces and figures good health versatility intelligence a certain ability to act and at least a common school education Only five applicants from each district or a total of 150 from the whole country will be accepted in the preliminary weeding out Mail your application with your photograph to the Paramount Pictures School headquarters at Long Island N Y if you are interested If you are fortunate enough to be one of those chosen as probable screen material you will receive a wire to report at one of the branch offices for the screen test. There are branches at Kansas City Chicago and Denver which would be nearest Nebraska You will have to defray your own expenses for the test but there is no charge for the screen test which is made by cameraman placed there for that purpose You have until May 16 to mail your application Only twenty students will be chosen for the first term

Some of the essential features of screen technique which will be taught are a loss of self consciousness graceful carriage poise etiquette the selection and correct wearing of modern clothes and the costumes of other periods motion picture make up pantomine and the playing of parts proper use of the hands and emotional control and character study

The students will be permitted to act as extras in some of the Paramount pictures and at the end of the term the members of the class will make a complete motion picture Those who successfully complete the course will be given recommendation and strips of film showing their best acting for help in securing employment The most promising will be offered Paramount contracts

A tuition fee of $500 is charged for the term Students will also have their living expenses to pay for twenty three weeks at the rate of $25 a week. Therefore it will be necessary for you to have about $1 000 if you consider taking the course Breaking into the movies at the best seems to be a rather expensive enterprise

Dear Movie Editor—Please tell me all you can about Dorothy Sebastian I think her performance in Sackcloth and Scarlet was wonderful but I hope that she will not be confined to such unsympathetic roles in the future That will probably be her fate though for that is the way of the movies

I will thank you now for whatever information you can give me Sincerely A I

Im sorry that your question got side tracked last week and was not answered Ill make amends for it by sending you a picture of Miss Sebastian which she autographed herself if you will send me your address

Miss Sebastian is a newcomer to the movies in fact Sackcloth and Scarlet was her first picture She landed the role of Polly Freeman by walking into the studio unannounced finding Director Henry King and asking him for a job Things like that do not happen everyday at the studios and it was only Dorothys second day in Los Angeles She was born in Birmingham Ala and received her education at the university of her home state She was on the stage in Ziegfeld Follies and George Whites sandals before she made the rounds of the motion picture studios She sings paints in oils sketches and plays the piano and banjo She is five feet three inches tall weighs 115 and has brown hair and hazel eyes Should you care to write her she lives at 5077½ Melrose avenue Los Angeles

Dear Movie Editor—Would you please tell me some of the names of the moving picture actors and actresses who live in Hollywood Cal I would also like to know if moving picture shows do more good than harm to minors? If so why or why not? I remain Yours truly TED Dorchester Neb

There are only between twenty five and thirty thousand actors and actresses who live in and around Hollywood Ted so I should have no difficulty in naming a few of them such as Mary Pickford Douglas Fairbanks Charles Chaplin Norma and Constance Talmadge Leatrice Joy Buster Keaton Jack Holt and so on down the line Even Gloria Swanson is getting her home ready for her return to the west in spite of the assertion she made that she would not return to the west coast for pictures Perhaps the fact that Pola Negri is in Europe has something to do with it They are supposed to be rivals you know Gloria was the queen of the West Coast film colony until the Countess Dombski put in her appearance Then Gloria fled Now that she has a Marquis and title all her very own she has nothing to fear from Pola so she can return in glory

There has been much said both for and against the movies for children and grown ups as well Opinions differ as to whether the movies are harmful as they do upon the dance and smoking question It is claimed that the modern picture is sensual that girls and boys see things at the movies they never should be allowed to hear or think about and that as a result they are demoralized It is true that there are pictures of that type There are also books that are not fit for the young to read and various kinds of amusement that most of us would prefer our children did not enter into but there are good clean books amusements and movies too

I think a mother should pick the movie for her youngsters the same way in which she should pick the books they read and the companions they seel Surely nobody could find anything demoralizing suggestive or censorable in pictures like Peter Pan The Ragman The Little minister Sentimental Tommy and A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthurs Court If there is harm in a minor reading the books of Barie Mark Twain, Booth Tarkington and Robert Louis Stevenson then of course there is harm in their seeing pictures adapted from these stories I thought The Thief of Bagdad was a wonderful picture for the kiddies. It was a picture anybody could enjoy from a three year old to the seventy year old. The producers are all endeavoring to give the public clean pictures with a moral to them It is true some of them fall short of the ideal but the motion picture is in its infancy yet and who knows what it will bring forth in the next ten years. There are historical pictures, pictures of plant insect life news reels and numerous other pictures which are certainly not harmful to the minor Im sure I dont have as many anxious moments about my small daughter when she is attending a motion picture with me as I do at times when she is just out playing However I could not go so far as to say that the motion picture does more good than harm to minors

Dear Movie Editor—I have a little girl of eight that I have been told by various people would do very well in the movies She has curly hair and is considered quite a beautiful child Im not telling you this to brag about her but because I want you to understand the circumstances so you can give me your opinion She has taken dancing lessons and does very nicely and she photographs well What I want to know is do you think I should take her to California and try to get her in the movies? I want her to have every opportunity there is in life and if she should have a motion picture career I dont like to stand in the way On the other hand she is so young and they say that the life of the average child player in the movies is anything but attractive and that the children who are in the movies do not live to be very old becauses they have to work so hard We are not wealthy people and it would mean quite a sacrifice to move to California to give her the opportunity of getting in motion picture work We would be glad to do it though if we were sure it was the right thing to do Please tell us what you think about it Sincerely MRS M W Fairbury

You are putting a lot of responsibility upon my shoulders because if I should advise you not to go and you afterward felt you kept your little daughter from a brilliant career because you followed my advice you would feel bitter toward me If I advised you to go and you were not successful in getting in you would also feel that I had given the wrong tip I really think it is a problem you must work out for yourself There are a great many children who have made good in the movies and who have gotten in without much trouble and there are more who have tried to get in and have not been successful I have in mind a mother who has two very talented little boys They are ten and eleven years of age but small for their age so they have the mentality of older youngsters and can grasp things better than the five or six year old child Yet they are small enough to play roles of boys of that age These boys are exceedingly clever They sing and dance for public entertainments in and around Los Angeles and Hollywood so they are before the public and yet the mother has tried to get them into the movies without any success whatsoever She has made the rounds of the studios several times and has left their photos with all of the casting directors but has never been able to get them in even for a small part On the other hand Baby Peggy Montgomery got her chance by merely answering an advertisement for a child to play with Brownie the wonder dog of the screen

I think I should hesitate for sometime before I made the journey to Hollywood just to get my little daughter in the movies She may be beautiful and talented but there are so many many children in Hollywood, who are equally beautiful and talented that she would stand about one chance in a hundred of ever getting past the guard at the studio gate

Dear Movie Editor—I havent written to you for a couple of months so Im sure you are lonesome I have quite a few questions to ask this time so I hope you are feeling like working today Please tell me if it is true that Gloria Swanseon has signed a long term contract with Famous Players for something like $17 000 a week It paid her [illegible] a marquis, didnt it? I see where we will all have to pay more to see her pictures if she get a salary like that and while I like her awfully well, and never miss seeing her if I can help it I dont think she is worth paying any more to see.

I saw Norma Talmadge in The Lady and thought she did some wonderful work. She really is a lady in every sense of the work She is not afraid to play the role of an old woman in pictures either Some of the actresses are playing merely to get a chance to show their beautiful faces and figures all dolled up in pretty clothes Gloria Swanson used to be that kind of a player but Ill have to admit she has done some pretty clever work lately and hasnt been afraid to appear in rags either when necessary Colleen Moore is another one of my favorites I thought she did exceptionally well for so young a girl in So Big Please tell me if she is able to work yet I noticed she had quite a severe accident that kept her in a cast for a while What is the title of her next picture? I am anxious to see her in Sally

What will Leatrice Joys first picture for De Mille be? I notice that she has signed up with him

What company does Paul Bern the director work for? Who directed Pola Negri in The Charmer?

Thanking you kindly for your time and space I remain—AN OLD FAN

It was reported that Gloria had been tendered a contract by Famous Players Lasky whereby she would receive the largest weekly salary ever paid a star but according to a recent announcement Gloria has not signed the contrct She is said to be considering five or six offers that have been made to her She is one of the best box office attractions in the movies so can sort of pick her salary and the company that pays it Her contract with Laskys does not expire until next December

Yes Colleen is working again rather gingerly however because her neck is still sore She is completing The Prairie Flower and will then go to Europe for a vacation before starting her next picture

Leatrice Joys first DeMille picture will be Hells Highway

Jacqueline Logan is starring in Peacock Feathers for Universal She just signed a long term contract with Fox Film corporation so she will move her make up box to the Fox lot as soon as her work in Peacock Feathers is completed

Paul Bern is with Famous Players Lasky Sidney Olcott directed Pola Negri in The Charmer

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor: I heard that there was to be a school of some kind which would train people to become actors and actresses. Is this true, and if so, will you kindly tell me all you know about it? Is it an authentic school, and how long does it take to learn to be an actor. I am a young man just out of high school, and my life's ambition is to be a movie actor. I've heard that it is very hard to get in, though and that it is not advisable to go to Hollywood without sufficient money to stay for a long time without work. Since that would be impossible for me to do, I would like to get into this school, where I would have a better opportunity to get work. How much does it cost to go, where is it located, and what should one do to get in. Somebody told me they saw a piece in the paper about it, but I failed to see it. I thought if there was anything of the sort, you would no doubt know all about it. Thanking you for whatever information you may be able to give me, I am

AMBITIOUS,
Fairbury, Neb.

There has been a new school for embryo motion picture stars established by Paramount in New York recently, and that is no doubt the school to which your friend referred. It will be known as the Paramount Picture School, Inc., and was founded to meet the problem of findin gand developing new screen material. All young men between the ages of 18 and 30, and girls from 16 to 25 are eligible. The candidates must have exceptionally attractive faces and figures, good health, versatility, intelligence, a certain ability to act, and at least a common school education. Only five applicants from each district, or a total of 150 from the whole country, will be accepted in the preliminary weeding out. Mail your application, with your photograph to the Paramount Pictures School headquarters, at Long Island, N. Y., if you are interested. If you are fortunate enough to be one of those chosen as probable screen material, you will receive a wire to report at one of the branch offices for the screen test. There are branches at Kansas City, Chicago and Denver, which would be nearest Nebraska. You will have to defray your own expenses for the test, but there is no charge for the screen test which is made by cameraman placed there for that purpose. You have until May 16 to mail your application. Only twenty students will be chosen for the first term.

Some of the essential features of screen technique which will be taught are a loss of self-consciousness, graceful carriage, poise, etiquette, the selection and correct wearing of modern clothes and the costumes of other periods, motion picture make-up, pantomine and the playing of parts, proper use of the hands, and emotional control and character study.

The students will be permitted to act as extras in some of the Paramount pictures, and at the end of the term, the members of the class will make a complete motion picture. Those who successfully complete the course will be given recommendation and strips of film showing their best acting, for help in securing employment. The most promising will be offered Paramount contracts.

A tuition fee of $500 is charged for the term. Students will also have their living expenses to pay for twenty-three weeks, at the rate of $25 a week. Therefore it will be necessary for you to have about $1,000 if you consider taking the course. Breaking into the movies at the best seems to be a rather expensive enterprise.

Dear Movie Editor—Please tell me all you can about Dorothy Sebastian. I think her performance in "Sackcloth and Scarlet" was wonderful, but I hope that she will not be confined to such unsympathetic roles in the future. That will probably be her fate, though, for that is the way of the movies.

I will thank you now for whatever information you can give me Sincerely—A. F.

I'm sorry that your question got "side-tracked" last week and was not answered. I'll make amends for it, by sending you a picture of Miss Sebastian, which she autographed herself, if you will send me your address.

Miss Sebastian is a newcomer to the movies, in fact "Sackcloth and Scarlet" was her first picture. She landed the role of "Polly Freeman" by walking into the studio unannounced, finding Director Henry King and asking him for a job. Things like that do not happen everyday at the studios, and it was only Dorothy's second day in Los Angeles. She was born in Birmingham, Ala., and received her education at the university of her home state. She was on the stage in Ziegfeld Follies and George White's sandals, before she made the rounds of the motion picture studios. She sings, paints in oils, sketches and plays the piano and banjo. She is five feet three inches tall, weighs 115 and has brown hair and hazel eyes. Should you care to write her, she lives at 5077½ Melrose avenue, Los Angeles.

Dear Movie Editor—Would you please tell me some of the names of the moving picture actors and atcresses who live in Hollywood, Cal. I would also like to know if moving picture shows do more good than harm to minors? If so, why or why not? I remain Yours truly, TED, Dorchester, Neb

There are only between twenty-five and thirty thousand actors and actresses who live in and around Hollywood, Ted, so I should have no difficulty in naming a few of them, such as Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Leatrice Joy, Buster Keaton, Jack Holt, and so on down the line. Even Gloria Swanson is getting her home ready for her return to the west, in spite of the assertion she made that she would not return to the west coast for pictures. Perhaps the fact that Pola Negri is in Europe has something to do with it. They are supposed to be rivals, you know. Gloria was the queen of the West Coast film colony until the Countess Dombski put in her appearance. Then Gloria fled. Now that she has a Marquis and title all her very own, she has nothing to fear from Pola, so she can return in glory.

There has been much said both for and against the movies for children and grown-ups as well. Opinions differ as to whether the movies are harmful, as they do upon the dance and smoking question. It is claimed that the modern picture is sensual, that girls and boys see things at the movies they never should be allowed to hear or think about, and that as a result they are demoralized. It is true that there are pictures of that type. There are also books that are not fit for the young to read, and various kinds of amusement that most of us would prefer our children did not enter into, but there are good, clean books, amusements and movies, too.

I think a mother should pick the movie for her youngsters, the same way in which she should pick the books they read, and the companions they seek. Surely nobody could find anything demoralizing, suggestive, or censorable in pictures like "Peter Pan," "The Rag man," "The Little minister," Sentimental Tommy" and "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court. If there is harm in a minor reading the books of Barie, Mark Twain, Booth Tarkington and Robert Louis Stevenson, then of course there is harm in their seeing pictures adapted from these stories. I thought "The Thief of Bagdad" was a wonderful picture for the kiddies. It was a picture anybody could enjoy, from a three-year-old to the seventy-year-old. The producers are all endeavoring to give the public clean pictures with a moral to them. It is true some of them fall short of the ideal, but the motion picture is in its infancy ye,t and who knows what it will bring forth in the next ten years. There are historical pictures, pictures of plant insect life, news reels and numerous other pictures which are certainly not harmful to the minor. I'm sure I don't have as many anxious moments about my small daughter, when she is attending a motion picture with me, as I do at times when she is just out playing. However, I could not go so far as to say that the motion picture does more good than harm to minors.

Dear Movie Editor—I have a little girl of eight that I have been told by various people, would do very well in the movies. She has curly hair, and is considered quite a beautiful child. I'm not telling you this to "brag" about her, but because I want you to understand the circumstances so you can give me your opinion. She has taken dancing lessons and does very nicely, and she photographs well. What I want to know is, do you think I should take her to California and try to get her in the movies? I want her to have every opportunity there is in life, and if she should have a motion picture career, I don't like to stand in the way. On the other hand, she is so young, and they say that the life of the average child player in the movies, is anything but attractive, and that the children who are in the movies, do not live to be very old becauses they have to work so hard. We are not wealthy people, and it would mean quite a sacrifice to move to California to give her the opportunity of getting in motion picture work. We would be glad to do it, though, if we were sure it was the right thing to do. Please tell us what you think about it, Sincerely, MRS. M. W., Fairbury.

You are putting a lot of responsibility upon my shoulders, because if I should advise you not to go, and you afterward felt you kept your little daughter from a brilliant career, because you followed my advice, you would feel bitter toward me. If I advised you to go, and you were not successful in getting in, you would also feel that I had given the "wrong tip." I really think it is a problem you must work out for yourself. There are a great many children who have made good in the movies, and who have gotten in without much trouble, and there are more who have tried to get in and have not been successful. I have in mind a mother who has two very talented little boys. They are ten and eleven years of age, but small for their age, so they have the mentality of older youngsters, and can grasp things better than the five or six year old child. Yet they are small enough to play roles of boys of that age. These boys are exceedingly clever. They sing and dance for public entertainments in and around Los Angeles and Hollywood, so they are before the public, and yet the mother has tried to get them into the movies without any success whatsoever. She has made the rounds of the studios several times, and has left their photos with all of the casting directors, but has never been able to get them in, even for a small part. On the other hand, Baby Peggy Montgomery got her chance by merely answering an advertisement for a child to play with Brownie, the wonder dog of the screen.

I think I should hesitate for sometime before I made the journey to Hollywood just to get my little daughter in the movies. She may be beautiful and talented, but there are so many, many children in Hollywood, who are equally beautiful and talented, that she would stand about one chance in a hundred of ever getting past the guard at the studio gate.

Lincoln Society Plans Gay Summer Season With Country Clubs Center of Activities

Opening Dinner Dance At the Country Club Is May 2, While Eastridge Festivities Begin Several Weeks Later; Weddings Hold Center of Stage During Past Week.

The first week of the after Easter season was gay — quite unusually so and the round of gaiety bids fair to continue for some weeks to come. The first dinner dance of the Country club's summer season will be Saturday evening, May 2 and with the Eastridge opening a few weeks later the summer season will be well under way with the country clubs the center of social activities.

An important and interesting event of early May will be the wedding the evening of May 7 of Miss Zella Roope to Burks Harley, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harley, for which invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Roope. Three hundred seventy-five invitations were sent out the latter part of the week for the ceremony at 8 o'clock at the First Baptist church while for the reception following at the Roope home, 1945 C street, have been bidden only the very close friends and the members of the two families. Miss Roope will be entertained at a number of charming prenuptial affairs during the days preceding her wedding.

Saturday is becoming very popular as a wedding day and several were on the calendar for yesterday.

WOODWARD-BARNARD

A simple though very attractively arranged home wedding took place at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Miss Dorothy Woodward, daughter of Mr and Mrs. E. E Woodward, 2412 Ryons street, became the bride of Hawley N Barnard of Jackson, Mich. Rev. Paul C Johnston of Westminster Presbyterian church read the marriage lines and the guests were the members of the family and a very few old friends.

The ceremony took place in the living room before the fireplace concealed by a Chinese screen and banked with palms and ferns Baskets of roses in pink, calla lilies and lavender tulips, carrying out the color scheme of rose, white and lavender, stood on either side while over the setting was cast a soft light from two torchieres

The bride, who was unattended, wore an afternoon gown of crabapple crepe and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and valley lilies. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Mrs. Emerson Kojer of Wahoo as the bride and groom took their places before the improvised altar.

An informal reception followed Spring flowers in rose, white and lavender graced the table in the dining room which was lighted with lavender tapers and the colors were repeated in the ices and cakes which were served.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs Roy Gustafson of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Kojer of Wahoo, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Felt, parents of the groom, and his brother, George, of Superior, Mr. and Mrs George Burgert of Kearney and Miss Mary Herzing of Waterloo, Ia

Mr. and Mrs Barnard left later in the afternoon for Jackson where they will make their home The bride's going away costume was a natural color Kasha cloth ensemble.

Both bride and groom are graduates of the University of Nebraska and Mrs. Bernard is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority while Mr. Barnard belongs to Acacia fraternity and was elected to membership in the Innocents in his senior year. He is a civil engineer and is engaged in that line of work in Jackson.

CAMPBELL-RANDOLPH

Miss Isabel Campbell, daughter of Mr and Mrs. George B Campbell 1129 North Thirty-seventh street, became the bride at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon of Floyd Randolph of Kansas City at a prettily arranged home ceremony.

Rev. Paul C Johnston read the marriage service Silver screens, palms and ferns inset with baskets of tulips, roses and lilacs were combined to form a charming spring setting for the ceremony which took place in the living room

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Harriet Cruise sang "Because," by d'Hardelot and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," by Stultz Miss Marian Strand was the accompanist while Miss Agnes Randolph sister of the groom, played the Lohengrin wedding march The bride's only attendant was Miss Helen Voorhees and the best man was the groom's brother, Roy Randolph. The members of the wedding party approached the improvised altar through an aisle formed by four little cousins of the bride, Jane Dimery of Sidney Janet Ramsey, Theo Ramsey and Jo Ann Wood.

The bride wore a lovely afternoon gown of banana georgette and her corsage was of Ophelia roses, lavender sweetpeas and lilies of the valley The maid of honor was gowned in lavender crepe and her bouquet was of Ophelia roses, pink snapdragons and sweetpeas.

During the reception in the late afternoon Miss Frances McChesney was in charge of the dining room while assisting in serving the ices and cakes were Miss Lucile Palmer and Miss Almeda Richards of Omaha Miss Margaret Caster presided in the gift room and little Alice Randolph had charge of the guest book.

Mr and Mrs Randolph left yesterday afternoon to motor to Kansas City where they will make their home.

Among the guests were Mr and Mrs C. H Campbell Miss Florence Campbell, Mr. and Mrs M. F. Scheer Mr. and Mrs. Fayette Wood Mr and Mrs T R. Ramsey, Howard Scheer Frederick Scheer, Ralph Hunter of Seward, Mrs. E M. Sunderland and sons, Verne and Edwin, Miss Almeda Richards, Mr and Mrs. John Weitzel, Mrs M. LONG-WITMER

The marriage of Miss Mary Virginia Long to Merlin Kendrick Witmer took place at Calvary Evangelical church, Eleventh and Garfield streets, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. Frank Lenz, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs Earl Hagerman sang "Oh, Promise Me," preceding the ceremony, and "I Come to Thee" at its close She was accompanied by Mrs. George Garrison, who also played the Lohengrin wedding march.

Mrs. George Bancroft was matron of honor, and wore yellow charmeuse trimmed in cream lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses tied with cream-colored tulle. Miss Carrie Markel, maid of honor, was gowned in pale green silk crepe, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds. Miss Ruby Polemus, bridesmaid, wore powder blue silk crepe and carried pink roses. The two little flower girls, Letha Pettitt and Roberta Scherbacher, wore white organdie trimmed in ruffled bands and carried baskets of sweet peas and rosebuds. Armand Scherbacher was the groom's best man

The bride's gown was of white silk canton crepe, trimmed with pearls and rhinestones. She wore a long chiffon veil, with a head band of silver and white flowers. Her shower bouquet was of pink and white rosebuds.

Mrs Frank Corniff, Miss Mary Ellen Booth and Mrs. W. S. Feather assisted at the reception which followed the ceremony, and which was held in the parlors of the church. Mrs C. G. Long had charge of the guest book and Mrs. Burr Lincoln was in the gift room.

Mr. and Mrs. Witmer left for a short wedding journey, going to Sioux City and Shenandoah, Ia. After a short tour they will be at home at 922 South Tairteenth street.

CASEBEER-AGNEW

Of interest to the older families of Lincoln is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Wilma Casebeer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Maxwell Casebeer of San Diego, Cal., formerly of Lincoln, to Jesse B. Agnew of Visalia, Cal The wedding took place Monday, April 6 at high noon in the St Cecilia chapel of the Mission Inn at Riverside. Rev. Ira W. Barnett, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Riverside, read the marriage service in the presence of twelve guests, including only the immediate relatives of the bridal couple.

A wedding breakfast was served at the close of the service after which Mr. and Mrs Agnew left for San Francisco from where they sailed on a trip around the world which will extend over a year

Mrs. Agnew's wedding gown was a two-tone ensemble of blonde, and trimmed in fur, with hat to match.

Dr and Mrs. Casebeer and their family left Lincoln some years ago. They made their home in Cherryvale, Kas., for a time and for the last ten years have lived in San Diego. Mrs. Agnew attended the University of Kansas and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Rose Bogdanoff Gives Special Instruction In Stagecraft To University Dramatic Students

Russian Artist, Exponent of Symbolism in Theatre, Conducts Courses on Use of Light and Color in Stage Settings.

Rose Bogdanoff of California, who knows all the secrets of the make believe world of the theater, is in Lincoln for a month or so and is teaching students of the dramatic art department of the university many interesting bits about the theater which they have not known. Practical stagecraft it is called and under this broad head come color, design, crafts, lighting and make up in their relations to the theater.

Rose Bogdanoff is Russian. Her hair is black, very black, her skin and eyes are dark and she wears in the class room a crimson blouse in tunic style over a dark skirt and on her wrists are bracelets—wide bands which fit very tight. She looks quite different. One feels the influence of her country in her art and style of dress.

Miss Bogandoff is an exponent of the new movement in the theatre — that of symbolism, the simplification of stage settings of which Sam Hume of the Greek theatre of California is leader and holds a prominent place in the foremost rank of theatrical producers. Opening Dinner Dance At the Country Club Is May 2, While Eastridge Festivities Begin Several Weeks Later; Weddings Hold Center of Stage During Past Week.

To those who have wanted a Mason & Hamlin
and the AMPICO

WITHIN the austerely beautiful case of the Mason & Hamlin has been placed a miracle. It is called the Ampico. Through it, at your will, great artists come and play on your piano!

Is there enough music in your life? Are you denying yourself the comfort and inspiration that flow from Chopin, Mozart, Mendelssohn? To these masters the great pianists of today turn again and again, ever seeking. What Godowsky, Lhévinne, Rosenthal seek — what they find — is given to the Ampico, given as they want the world long to remember. It is themselves — their best.

• • • •

Or would you or your children dance tonight — dance at home within the circle of loved ones? Vincent Lopez, Paul Lange, J. Milton Delcamp have danced — danced in an infectious glee that tumbles irresistibly from their joyous Ampico riotings to your restless feet!

• • • •

There is a time to dance. There is a time to listen to the great [illegible] of the ages. The sensitive soul of the Ampico has caught all that the masters of either kind of music have given. Technique, phrasing, pedalling—yes, the very spiritual qualities that make them masters — are imprisoned in their recordings. Imprisoned, only to be released as often as you wish.

Need we say that the addition of the Ampico has in no way changed the Mason & Hamlin? It is the same superb instrument chosen by Bauer, Casals, Gabrilowitsch, Dame Nellie Melba, Schmitz and countless others who hold supreme, pure singing tone!

When the Ampico is not in use it does not affect or even touch the pedals, the strings, or the keys. It lies concealed within the piano. So concealed that its presence is unsuspected when the Mason & Hamlin is played by hand.

To those who have wanted a Mason & Hamlin and the AMPICO

WITHIN the austerely beautiful case of the Mason & Hamlin has been placed a miracle. It is called the Ampico. Through it, at your will, great artists come and play on your piano!

Is there enough music in your life? Are you denying yourself the comfort and inspiration that flow from Chopin, Mozart, Mendelssohn? To these masters the great pianists of today turn again and again, ever seeking. What Godowsky, Lhévinne, Rosenthal seek — what they find — is given to the Ampico, given as they want the world long to remember. It is themselves — their best.

• • • •

Or would you or your children dance tonight — dance at home within the circle of loved ones? Vincent Lopez, Paul Lange, J. Milton Delcamp have danced — danced in an infectious glee that tumbles irresistibly from their joyous Ampico riotings to your restless feet!

• • • •

There is a time to dance. There is a time to listen to the great [illegible] of the ages. The sensitive soul of the Ampico has caught all that the masters of either kind of music have given. Technique, phrasing, pedalling—yes, the very spiritual qualities that make them masters — are imprisoned in their recordings. Imprisoned, only to be released as often as you wish.

Need we say that the addition of the Ampico has in no way changed the Mason & Hamlin? It is the same superb instrument chosen by Bauer, Casals, Gabrilowitsch, Dame Nellie Melba, Schmitz and countless others who hold supreme, pure singing tone!

When the Ampico is not in use it does not affect or even touch the pedals, the strings, or the keys. It lies concealed within the piano. So concealed that its presence is unsuspected when the Mason & Hamlin is played by hand.

Courage and the Urge to Work Are the Stepping Stones to Success For the Newspaper Woman — Minerva Tells of One Nebraska Woman Who Has Wrested Fame and Adventure Through the Use of Her Typewriter And How She Did It—Why Older People Are Not Universally Respected Is Also Discussed

One Gallant Career

Dear Minerva: I am a student in the university and am said by my teachers to be very good in English. Although I have two years in school before I graduate I am tempted to stop school this spring and go into newspaper work. I want very much to be a writer. I have a little money and wonder if it would be best form to go directly to New York and try my luck at getting on a newspaper there or get experience on a smaller paper first. Please advise me.—CLARA.

A. I think you would be foolish to sacrifice your college diploma if you have the money to carry you through the two years more work. A writer needs the polish and depth which good thorough schooling gives. Though not all of them have it by any means.

The best advice I can think of to give you at this moment is to read Rheta Childe Dorr's autobiography, "A Woman of Fifty," which has but recently been published. Mrs. Dorr is a Nebraska woman. She went to the university here a short time but was restless as you are and left to make her own way in a world of adventure and letters. She went into newspaper work when women were almost unknown factors in that work and wrested success for herself through extreme difficulties. Her book is instructive and inspirational, also exceedingly fascinating.

But Mrs. Dorr was and is a real feminist and urged by strong impulses which all women do not have. If you are of her make and mould you would do well to do as she has. But if you are of a different type success for you would be found in another channel.

In her book Mrs. Dorr tells whimsically of the development of her feministic character through childhood which led her into slamming the door upon conventional womanhood.

She says: "Ibsen imagined the free woman as a character for romance but even Ibsen took Nora no further than the front door while I have written what happens after the door slams."

She says feminism cropped out prematurely when she was but eight years old and hunting butternuts in a New England burying ground. Being naturally curious she read the inscriptions on the tombstones as she munched nuts and when she read on one stone after another such as "Also Harriet, wife of the above," "Also Sarah Jane, wife of the above," etc., she suddenly announced: "Hugh, I bet I never finish on any ole gravestone as Rheta, wife of the above." And this first ambition to live so that she might merit an individual gravestone was a pattern for all her later ambitions.

The first chapters of Mrs. Dorr's book tell of her early days in New York. She visited museums and the opera, studied art, all vivid adventures to her. Then she decided that writing was her forte and started storming the gates of the editors. When she earned $12 a week she felt rich and she led a rich life indeed gathering impressions of N. Y. in all its colorful phases.

Then she married a man of old fashioned solid literary tastes and also alas old fashioned and solid ideas concerning women. When nothing remained in the marriage but a clash of ideas Rheta took her small son and her very small stock of worldly treasures and a large stock of courage and again faced the world as a wage earner. Mrs. Dorr was fiercely maternal and she refused to relinquish the child to relatives who wished to take him.

She knew the weight of the double burden of wage earning and motherhood but she never regretted the separation and thought the child better off in his irregular life in boarding schools than he would have been in a discordant home.

Breaking into the newspaper game as a serious profession was difficult indeed for a woman in 1898. Mrs. Dorr was given to understand that Park Row was a masculine monopoly. Every step of her struggle was difficult and humiliating. For three years she peddled stories being regarded as something between a book agent and a tinware vendor before she was given a dignified assignment. She found the professional world entirely hostile to women. This first assignment was an interview with Col. Roosevelt. Later she became the friend of hundreds of notable men and women at home and abroad.

An assignment to investigate a story of a strike of men gold beaters whose complaint was that women were invading their trade aroused her vivid interest in women in industry which led her to concentrate on this phase of investigation for many years and later to the writing of her first book, "What Eight Million Women Want." Mrs. Dorr was the first woman to throw herself into the ranks of manual workers with a view of surveying their conditions in relation to the whole social fabric. As a factory girl she spun cotton, sewed shirts and handled wet sheets in a steam laundry and lived in tenements among the workers.

Then came a journey to Russia to study the revolutionists which completed her transformation from an individualized to a socialized human being she said. She then swore to battle for freedom and opportunity for everything that wore chains, especially sex chains. She worked with the leading suffragists writing, lecturing, lobbying, marching in parades. She trailed feminism to England where the suffragists were becoming militants and later collaborated with Mrs. Pankhurst in writing a book. She lived in Sweden as Ellen Key's guest and studied her philosophy.

She defines feminism as a state of mind of women who realize that their whole position in the social order is antiquated as a woman cooking over an open fire with iron pots would know that her housekeeping was out of date.

Mrs. Dorr credits Alice Paul and Lucy Burns as being leaders of the successful fight for the federal amendment and considers the securing of this amendment one of the immense achievements of her time. But it was the war she believes that won women real recognition that enabled them to break into the human race as she says.

Mrs. Dorr and her son both hastened into the thick of the fray. I can touch but lightly upon the tremendous adventures of Mrs. Dorr in this epoch of her life. She went to the front with the Russian woman's battalion of death, served as war correspondent in France and was many times under fire. Ignominiously upon her return to America to make a home for her wounded son she was struck by a motorcycle and seriously injured. After many months of suffering she entirely recovered her health and has since written many interesting articles and this book.

Mrs. Dorr has great optimism for the women of the future. She be[illegible] her economic and social freedom can have both a career and home and children that she has a better chance to be a good mother, a good wife and a good citizen than had those women who are now among the women of fifty.

I didn't intend to give such a lengthy review of this book when I started. But I had just finished reading it and your query just gave me an outlet for my enthusiasm.

Wisdom And Old Age

Dear Minerva: I heard a young man in his teens say the other day that a sign a man was getting old was when he started criticizing the younger generation. There is a grain of truth in that I admit, for the younger generation has been the subject of criticism since Cain and Abel entered the scene but on the other hand it strikes me that this flippant remark by this particular young man illustrates a growing characteristic in the modern youth which was not found in the former generation and which is very distasteful. The older generation, to be sure, was not without faults two or three decades ago, but on the other hand whatever those faults was the youth of a generation ago respected and listened to the wisdom of the elders. That cannot be said of the modern young generation. It seems to be smart to do just exactly the opposite of what parental advice is. I will not argue that wisdom and age go hand in hand. There are a lot of old fools. But I think wisdom is found in old age more often than in youth. From the Bible we learn that youth should listen to the wisdom of old

And Speaking of Border Materials—

I must tell you about those I saw the other day. They are prints, dark colors and patterns contrasted on lighter colors, or vice versa. One has a tan top with navy blue pattern, and the border is of navy blue with pattern in tan. You use only the width, as the fifty-four inches forms the length, and there is material left at the top for trimming, binding, etc. Fine quality flat crepes at $6.75 a yard. You'll find them at Golds, of course.

Smartly Dressed Women

Are already wearing fashion's most attractive creation, the georgette ensemble. It will be very good this summer — the tailored, dark, sheer georgette coat and the simple frock over a gay slip.

Have You Noticed

Yellow, Red and Green

Tulips scattered over a white ground and a black border and cascade of red crepe added effective color touches to a stunning white frock recently observed at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Combinations

For Just the Right Effect—

Sheer colored hose and the black patent leather sandals. Just in and different from those of last year. There are plenty of cut-outs through which lovely hose may show, and moderately low heels. Also ladies crepe soled golf oxfords, the most comfortable sports shoe. Stop in at Ben Simon's and see these attractive shoes at $1.85. Fashionable footwear for all occasions.

Next Week, Only

You can get one of these near-gallon cans of black raspberries or gooseberries for only eighty-nine cents. You'll find them at the Grand Grocery, Tenth and P streets, where good foods cost reasonable prices.

When the Skirt Is Full or Flared

The trimming is accented on the skirt rather than on the upper part of the frock.

Nowadays

House frocks and aprons are made and trimmed as attractively as silk frocks, and have as much style. Milady has come to realize that style belongs to every minute of the day and is not reserved for state occasions, only.

The Jumper Frock

And Speaking of Border Materials—
I must tell you about those I saw the other day. They are prints, dark colors and patterns contrasted on lighter colors, or vice versa. One has a tan top with navy blue pattern, and the border is of navy blue with pattern in tan. You use only the width, as the fifty-four inches forms the length, and there is material left at the top for trimming, binding, etc. Fine quality flat crepes at $6.75 a yard. You'll find them at Golds, of course.

Smartly Dressed Women
Are already wearing fashion's most attractive creation, the georgette ensemble. It will be very good this summeer — the tailored, dark, sheer georgette coat and the simple frock over a gay slip.

Have You Noticed

Yellow, Red and Green
Tulips scattered over a white ground and a black border and cascade of red crepe added effective color touches to a stunning white frock recently observed at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Combinations

For Just the Right Effect—
Sheer colored hose and the black patent leather sandals. Just in, and different from those of last year. There are plenty of cut-outs through which lovely hose may show, and moderately low heels. Also ladies crepe soled golf oxfords, the most comfortable sports shoe. Stop in at Ben Simon's and see these attractive shoes at $4.85. Fashionable footwear for all occasions.

Next Week, Only
You can get one of those near-gallon cans of black raspberries or gooseberries for only eighty-nine cents. You'll find them at the Grand Grocery, Tenth and P streets, where good foods cost reasonable prices.

When the Skirt Is Full or Flared
The trimming is accented on the skirt rather than on the upper part of the frock.

Nowadays
House frocks and aprons are made and trimmed as attractively as silk frocks, and have as much style. Milady has come to realize that style belongs to every minute of the day and is not reserved for state occasions, only.

The Jumper Frock

The Element of Thoughtfulness must always be evident in services such as we render; otherwise there will be blunders where there should be tact. Thoughtfulness, foresight and tact go hand in hand in the successful service.

We try to foresee and to plan ahead; our experience and training do much to help us do the right thing at the right time.

Handel's "Messah," considered the greatest oratorio ever written, has been sung annually at Wahoo, for the last twenty years before large and appreciative audiences. In fact, it has become a tradition that it be rendered each spring in connection with the commencement exercises of Luther college at that place. This year will be no exception for extensive and elaborate plans are now in progress for its rendition Monday evening, May 11. At that time a chorus of 175 voices, composed of college students and singers from Wahoo and vicinity, and accompanied by a special orchestra will render the well-known "Halleluah" chorus and other immortal numbers of the Messiah. This annual rendition of Handel's great oratorio has placed Wahoo on the map musically and has proved a means of bringing artists of more than ordinary calibre to this community.

A Hint for Beginners

The cross-word puzzle diagram is merely a means of concealing words which are synonymous to those listed and which will interlock perfectly and so read equally well crosswise or downwards. Always look for the number of the synonym on the diagram. If horizontal, you must find a word to fit between that number and the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, you must fit your word between the number and the first shaded stop below.

Handel's "Messah," considered the greatest oratorio ever written, has been sung annually at Wahoo, for the last twenty years before large and appreciative audiences. This year will be no exception for extensive and elaborate plans are now in progress for its rendition Monday evening, May 11. At that time a chorus of 175 voices, composed of college students and singers from Wahoo and vicinity, and accompanied by a special orchestra will render the well-known "Halleluah" chorus and other immortal numbers of the Messiah. This annual rendition of Handel's great oratorio has placed Wahoo on the map musically and has proved a means of bringing artists of more than ordinary calibre to this community.

A Hint for Beginners

The cross-word puzzle diagram is merely a means of concealing words which are synonymous to those listed and which will interlock perfectly and so read equally well crosswise or downwards. Always look for the number of the synonym on the diagram. If horizontal, you must find a word to fit between that number and the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, you must fit your word between the number and the first shaded stop below.

Miss Clara Slade, psychology expert of the public schools, gave a talk on "The Uses of Psychology in the Public Schools," preceded by Miss Lulu Runge's report of the national convention of the A. A. U. W. held last week in Indianapolis. Miss Runge was delegate from the Lincoln branch, of which she is vice president.

Seventy thousand dollars in scholarships each year is given students through its branches and the national board, Miss Runge reported. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, a member of the association, made a talk on international relations, in which she pleaded for peace.

The convention was attended by women from foreign countries as well as from all parts of the United States, and gave her an insight of the influence and value of the organization, Miss Runge declared

Psychology is something the knowledge of which enables us to live better, thus becoming a factor of everyday life, was Miss Slade's opening statement. The Binet method of group tests modified by American experts, is the one followed. Originally it was a tool, for developing sub-normal children to their maximum capabilities, but was later used in the development of normal and above-normal children

The group tests show a wide range of difference in the ability of children in the same grade, Miss Slade said. The purpose of the tests is a better classification of groups, rather than those of the same chronological age. They make a better effort to do all ow which they are capable when placed homogeneously .

Public school psychology tests are an aid in vocational guidance, not only finding the thing for which they will fail, for this may discourage them all through life. The tests are an aid in special promotion, for it is considered a bad thing to allow children to remain in a class where they do not have to study. Children whose behavior is a problem to the school may be dealt with more understandingly by means of these tests. Finally, sub-normal children are helped to become useful citizens, being taught the use of tools and the branches of home-making as well as those academic subjects which will help them in everyday life.

JOHN BAKER, JR.

John J. Baker, jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs John Baker, 330 South Nineteenth street, was born July 25, 1924, and passed away at the home April 7, 1925. Thy days, my darling one, were few,
  An angel's morning visit
That same and vanished with the dew,
  'Twas here—'tis gone— where is it?

I cannot tell to what sweet dell
  The angels may have borne thee;
But this I know, thou can'st not go
  Where my heart will not find thee.

Gem of our hearth, our household's pride,
  Earth undefiled,
Could love have saved, thou hadst not died
  Our dear, sweet child.

Humbly we bow to Fates decree
Yet we hoped that time should see
Thee mourn for us, not us for thee.

Yet, 'tis sweet balm to our despair,
  Fond, fairest boy,
That heaven is God's, and thou art there
  With him in joy.

There past are death and all its woes
  There life's sweet stream forever flows
And rapture's day no sunset knows.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

age, but I cannot say that modern youth has very much use for old age. What do you think about this, Minerva. Don't you think I am right.—JOHN.

There seems to be a prevalent tendency toward an extreme lauding of all things and persons useful and a lessening of the respect and veneration due old age, and the middle grounds between youth and old age. This is a much-discussed phase of modern life. And it certainly does exist to shameful proportions.

Certainly one compensation for losing youth (and we all dislike to part with it) is the dignity and authority which is vested in the adult years. The deference given to an older person is that person's just due, for the years of experience and learning behind him.

When youth is exalted rather than experience, a topsy-turvy condition prevails which is anything but satisfactory.

The youth itself is spoiled. When the young man thinks himself quite all-wise and self-sufficient, when he thinks he knows more than the elders about him, he has stopped growing and developing. And, having stopped, he commences going backward.

I think we all have had the experience of observing how much more worth while and splendid many a man is than are his sons, and how much more gracious and charming, how much better poised is many a woman than is her daughter.

What to do about it all

The remedy lies in the individual adults. If they demand respect and obedience from the youths with whom they are associated, demand it with never-ceasing vigilance, they will get it. But it must be worked for these days. The parents who would keep in touch with their children and hold over them strong influence must demand respect that never slumps.

The mother who loses sight of this need in her endeavor to be as flapperish as is the daughter herself, or who grows neglectful of her own dignity in her never-ceasing quest for excitement is certainly going to pay for it. The time will come when she wants to be looked upon with respect and reverance. And she will find she cannot demand these things over night

This is the age of youth, the youngsters cry. And it is said that ours will go down as the age of flapperism

All well and good if our youths are producers, if they work and achieve and create in noteworthy manner. But unless they are wise enough to learn what their elders have learned through experience, and profit thereby, and add to this the total of their own initiative and fresh viewpoints, they cannot achieve or create with any degree of success.

For instance, the youthful novelist may have a glib gift of gab. He may be able to combine words in a most harmonious and pleasing manner. He may have wit and originality. But unless he has the wisdom to study of the classics of his elders, the histories evolved through years of study by his superiors, the essays resulting from years of study, thought and observations, poems inspired by the highest inspiration and genius, his productions will be shallow and vapid and will not live.

and Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, all past presidents, form the committee.

Miss Clara Slade, psychology expert of the public schools, gave a talk on "The Uses of Psychology in the Public Schools," preceded by Miss Lulu Runge's report of the national convention of the A. A. U. W. held last week in Indianapolis. Miss Runge was delegate from the Lincoln branch, of which she is vice president.

Seventy thousand dollars in scholarships each year is given students through its branches and the national board, Miss Runge reported. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, a member of the association, made a talk on international relations, in which she pleaded for peace.

The convention was attended by women from foreign countries as well as from all parts of the United States, and gave her an insight of the influence and value of the organization, Miss Runge declared.

Psychology is something the knowledge of which enables us to live better, thus becoming a factor of everyday life, was Miss Slade's opening statement. The Binet method of group tests modified by American experts, is the one followed. Originally it was a tool, for developing sub-normal children to their maximum capabilities, but was later used in the development of normal and above-normal children.

The group tests show a wide range of difference in the ability of children in the same grade, Miss Slade said. The purpose of the tests is a better classification of groups, rather than those of the same chronological age. They make a better effort to do all ow which they are capable when placed homogeneously .

Public school psychology tests are an aid in vocational guidance, not only finding the thing for which they will fail, for this may discourage them all through life. The tests are an aid in special promotion, for it is considered a bad thing to allow children to remain in a class where they do not have to study. Children whose behavior is a problem to the school may be dealt with more understandingly by means of these tests. Finally, sub-normal children are helped to become useful citizens, being taught the use of tools and the branches of homemaking as well as those academic subjects which will help them in everyday life.

Obituary

JOHN BAKER, JR.

John J. Baker, jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, 330 South Nineteenth street, was born July 25, 1924, and passed away at the home April 7, 1925. Thy days, my darling one, were few,
An angel's morning visit
That same and vanished with the dew,
'Twas here—'tis gone,— where is it?

I cannot tell to what sweet dell
The angels may have borne thee;
But this I know, thou can'st not go
Where my heart will not find thee.

Gem of our hearth, our household's pride,
Earth undefiled,
Could love have saved, thou hadst not died
Our dear, sweet child.

Humbly we bow to Fates decree
Yet we hoped that time should see
Thee mourn for us, not us for thee.

Yet, 'tis sweet balm to our despair,
Fond, fairest boy,
That heaven is God's, and thou art there
With him in joy.

There past are death and all its woes
There life's sweet stream forever flows
And rapture's day no sunset knows.

MINERVA'S MAIL

age, but I cannot say that modern youth has very much use for old age. What do you think about this, Minerva.. Don't you think I am right.—JOHN.

There seems to be a prevalent tendency toward an extreme lauding of all things and persons useful and a lessening of the respect and veneration due old age, and the middle grounds between youth and old age. This is a much-discussed phase of modern life. And it certainly does exist to shameful proportions.

Certainly one compensation for losing youth (and we all dislike to part with it) is the dignity and authority which is vested in the adult years. The deference given to an older person is that person's just due, for the years of experience and learning behind him.

When youth is exalted rather than experience, a topsy-turvy condition prevails which is anything but satisfactory.

The youth itself is spoiled. When the young man thinks himself quite all-wise and self-sufficient, when he thinks he knows more than the elders about him, he has stopped growing and developing. And, having stopped, he commences going backward.

I think we all have had the experience of observing how much more worth while and splendid many a man is than are his sons, and how much more gracious and charming, how much better poised is many a woman than is her daughter.

What to do about it all?

The remedy lies in the individual adults. If they demand respect and obedience from the youths with whom they are associated, demand it with never-ceasing vigilance, they will get it. But it must be worked for these days. The parents who would keep in touch with their children and hold over them strong influence must demand respect that never slumps.

The mother who loses sight of this need in her endeavor to be as flapperish as is the daughter herself, or who grows neglectful of her own dignity in her never-ceasing quest for excitement is certainly going to pay for it. The time will come when she wants to be looked upon with respect and reverance. And she will find she cannot demand these things over night.

This is the age of youth, the youngsters cry. And it is said that ours will go down as the age of flapperism.

All well and good if our youths are producers, if they work and achieve and create in noteworthy manner. But unless they are wise enough to learn what their elders have learned through experience, and profit thereby, and add to this the total of their own initiative and fresh viewpoints, they cannot achieve or create with any degree of success.

For instance, the youthful novelist may have a glib gift of gab. He may be able to combine words in a most harmonious and pleasing manner. He may have wit and originality. But unless he has the wisdom to study of the classics of his elders, the histories evolved through years of study by his superiors, the essays resulting from years of study, thought and observations, poems inspired by the highest inspiration and genius, his productions will be shallow and vapid and will not live.
